For pay of physician, teacher, carpenter, miller, engineer, farmer, and blacksmith, as per tenth article treaty of July third, eighteen hundred and sixty-eight, three thousand dollars.

For first of three instalments, for the purchase of seeds and farming implements, as per eighth article same treaty, eight hundred dollars.

For transportation of goods that may be purchased for the Shoshones and Bannocks, four thousand dollars.

For this amount, being the first of five instalments of the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars named in a certain agreement dated September twenty-sixth, eighteen hundred and seventy-two, which agreement is hereby confirmed, made under the provisions of the act of June first, eighteen hundred and seventy-two, by F. R. Brunot, president of the Board of Indian Commissioners, with the Shoshone tribe of Indians, for the relinquishment by said Indians of certain lands within the limits of the reservation ceded to said Indians by the treaty made with them July third, eighteen hundred and sixty-eight, the sum to be expended, under the direction of the President, in the purchase of stock-cattle, five thousand dollars; to be available immediately upon the passage of this act.

For this amount, being the first of five instalments, to be paid to Wash-a-kie, chief of the Shoshones, as per said agreement of September twenty-sixth, eighteen hundred and seventy-two, five hundred dollars; to be available immediately upon the passage of this act.

SHOSHONES, BANNOCKS, AND OTHER BANDS OF INDIANS IN IDAHO AND SOUTHEASTERN OREGON.

For this amount, to be expended by directions of the President, in assisting the roving bands of Indians in Southern Idaho to move to and locate on the Fort Hall reservation in Idaho Territory, and to assist them in education and agricultural pursuits on said reservation, ten thousand dollars.

For this amount, to be expended by directions of the President in assisting the roving bands of Indians in Southeastern Oregon to move and locate on some proper Indian reservation in Oregon, and to assist them in agricultural pursuits thereon, ten thousand dollars.

SIX NATIONS OF NEW YORK.

For permanent annuity, in clothing and other useful articles, per sixth article treaty of November seventeenth, seventeen hundred and ninety-four, four thousand five hundred dollars.

SIOUX OF DIFFERENT TRIBES, INCLUDING SANTEE SIOUX IN THE STATE OF NEBRASKA.

For fifth of thirty instalments, to purchase clothing for males over fourteen years of age; for flannel, hose, and calico, and domestics required for females over twelve years of age; and for such flannel and cotton goods as may be needed to make suits for boys and girls, per tenth article treaty of April twenty-ninth, eighteen hundred and sixty-eight, one hundred and fifty-nine thousand four hundred dollars.

For fifth of thirty instalments, to purchase such articles as may be considered proper by the Secretary of the Interior for persons roaming and for persons engaged in agriculture, two hundred thousand dollars.

For pay of second blacksmith, and furnishing iron, steel, and other material, per eighth article of treaty of April twenty-ninth, eighteen hundred and sixty-eight, two thousand dollars.

For this amount, to be expended in the purchase of beef, flour, bacon, and sugar, in proportionate quantities, for thirty thousand persons; and for subsistence of the Yankton Sioux and Poncas; and for purposes of civilization, one million one hundred thousand dollars; Provided, That the President may withhold the said supplies from said Indians, or any band thereof, until they shall consent to remain north of the Niobrara and outside of Wyoming, if he deems it expedient so to do.

For pay of physician, five teachers, one carpenter, one miller, one engineer, one farmer, and one blacksmith per thirteenth article of treaty of April twenty-ninth, eighteen hundred and sixty-eight, ten thousand four hundred dollars.

For second of three instalments, for the purchase of seeds and agricultural implements, to be furnished to heads of families or lodges who shall engage in farming as per eighth article treaty of April twenty-ninth, eighteen hundred and sixty-eight, fifteen thousand dollars.

For industrial school at the Santee Sioux agency, three thousand dollars.

For transportation, and the necessary expenses of delivering goods, to be purchased for the different bands of the Sioux Indians, under treaty of April twenty-ninth, eighteen hundred and sixty-eight, seventy-five thousand dollars.

SIOUX, SISSETON AND WAHPETON, AND SANTEE SIOUX OF LAKE TRAVERSE AND DEVIL'S LAKE.

For this amount, being the second of ten instalments of the sum of eight hundred thousand dollars named in a certain agreement, which agreement is hereby confirmed, made by the commissioners appointed by the Secretary of the Interior, under the provisions of the act of June seventh, eighteen hundred and seventy-two, with the Sisseton and Wahpeton bands of Sioux Indians for the relinquishment by said Indians of their claim to or interest in the lands described in the second article of the treaty made with them February nineteenth, eighteen hundred and sixty-seven, the same to be expended, under the direction of the President for the benefit of said Indians, in the manner prescribed in said treaty of eighteen hundred and sixty-seven, as amended by the Senate, said amendment as amended having been ratified by the Indians, as provided by act of February fourteenth, eighteen hundred and seventy-three, eighty thousand dollars.

THE BLACK CAT—A PARODY.

[J. Weed Vandewater, in N. Y. Era.]

When at midnight gently dozing, on my humble couch reposing,
Now and then my eyelids closing, in unconscious
dreamy thought,
All at once I heard a scratching, as of something lightly scratching
At the casement's fastened latching, as if it an entrance sought;
Scratching, catching at the latching, as if it an entrance sought:
Is it aught, or is it naught?

Then said I, with whispered wonder, "What in thunder! what in thunder!
Is this something, whose faint scratching I have thus distinctly caught?"
But I wasn't much enlightened, thereupon becoming frightened,
And my fears were getting heightened, as against my fears I fought,
I determined to determine, while against my fears I fought,
Whether it was aught or naught.

Then I felt a little better, and my fears dropped like a fetter
From my spirit, upon which they thus so potently had wrought:
But I waited half a second, for in truth I rather reckoned
That the ghost of Rover beckoned, and his cushioned cover sought,
Rover, gentle Rover beckoned, and his ancient quarters sought,
Rover, ne'er by me forgot.

Soon with trembling limbs uprising, in excitement past disguising
I proceeded to the window, and the casement wildly caught:
But there was no need of raising, for I saw my Rover gazing
From the dog-star that was blazing, in its high and holy spot,
Meekly gazing down upon me from that high and holy spot—
Other object there was not.

From the casement I retreated, but again was hardly seated
Ere the summons was repeated, and almost to frenzy wrought
I uprose, while loudly pawing, came a harsh, incessant clawing,
Mingled with a dismal gnawing, and then rose a dreadful thought
That most likely I was sent for, but I wouldn't go, I thought:
After all, perhaps 'tis naught.

Then I turned me, half despairing, with a kind of desperate daring,
Little fearing, little caring what should prove to be my lot;
Raised the courage that was needed, to the window I proceeded,
Lifted up the latch as he did: he whom I such tricks had taught,
He, the fond and faithful creature, whom I once such tricks had taught,
He who was, but now is not.

Open here I slammed the shutter, when with many a mew and splutter
In there crept with tail a flutter, that tom-cat I oft had sought;
Not the least acquaintance feigned he, nor the least politeness deigned he,
But with miss most unexplained, he jumped upon my humble cot;
Vacantly he glared upon me, from his seat upon my cot,
Glared, and sat like one forgot.

Still this solemn cat kept glaring, while his nails were quickly tearing
The old quilt with matchless daring, that my mother-in-law had wrought.
This cat is a rara avis from whose claws no soul can save us,
Even though at night he raise us from our sleep with angry shouts.
"'Tis the cat that mewed," I whispered, "o'er the witch's boiling pot."
Glared, and moved not from the spot.

Finally the cat behaving in a manner most depraving,
Worked my spirit into raving, and my wrath I did outpour;
"Cease thy antics, caterwauler! quit thy pranks, midnight squaller!"
But his back grew only taller, and his tail did higher soar.
"Cat," I cried, "why art thou scratching? Cease this hubbub, I implore."
Quoth the tom-cat, "Nev-er-more."

Then I prayed for heaven to send me some kind aid that would defend me
From this cat whose nails might rend me, ere the sphinx the night passed o'er;
But he seemed wrapped up in thinking, with his quick, incessant blinking,
And his nails in bed-quilt sinking deeper, deeper than before.
"Tis," I cried, "an imp of evil, from the dark Catonian shore!"
Quoth the tom-cat, "Nev-er-more."

Darker grew the air around me, constantly the eyeballs found me,
While their brightness did astound me, filling all my soul with awe.
"Fiend!" I yelled, "thou art all evil, some relentless prying devil,
That hath come to help upheaval of my grief for lost Rover.
Cease, oh cease this heartless scratching at my bosom's icy cover!"
Quoth the tom-cat, "Nev-er-more."

"Cat, or devil! speak, I prithee; answer, or by Jove I'll give thee
Knocks that will at once out with thee, from my cot and lowly door—
Is there any hope of joining, is there any way of learning,
Is my Rover sadly yearning for his master o'er and o'er?
Has my fond and gentle canine gone from me for evermore?"
Quoth the tom-cat, "Nev-er-more."

"Liar! fiend!" I shrieked, arising, "I shall give thee a chastising,
If I don't it is surprising, for I am with thee at war.
Get thee gone with all thy clatter, o'er the wild Catonian water—
Where the demons yell and chatter; cease this dismal 'nev-er-more!'
Get thee gone, for thou dost chill me with thy dismal 'nev-er-more!'"
Quoth the tom-cat, "Nev-er-more."

Now my anger fiercer boiling, by the tail I caught the hireling—
Flung him through the window whirling, sprinkling glass upon the floor;
To the window I went creeping, hoping to see Tom retreating,
But instead, wem-eared and reeking lay the cat—whose life was o'er.
And its life so sadly ended did my frightened soul restore—
Sleepless nights? ah! nevermore.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 26, 1874.

The Ohio Election.

Full and official returns of the late State election in Ohio show that 238,406 votes were cast for William Bell, dem., for secretary of state, 221,204 for Allen T. Wikoff, rep., and 7815 for John R. Buchtel, prohibitionist, for the same position. Bell's official majority over Wikoff is 17,202. The official majorities in the several congressional districts of the State are as follows:

First district—Sayler, democrat, 3314 majority.

Second district—Banning, democrat, 1535 majority.

Third district—Savage, democrat, 1162 majority.

Fourth district—MacMahon, democrat, 1099 majority.

Fifth district—Rice, democrat, 5199 majority.

Sixth district—Hurd, democrat, 1787 majority.

Seventh district—Neal, democrat, 2225 majority.

Eighth district—Lawrence, republican, 378 majority.

Ninth district—Poppleton, democrat, 428 majority.

Tenth district—Foster, republican, 160 majority.

Eleventh district—Vance, democrat, 1941 majority.

Twelfth district, (long term)—Walling, democrat, 3913 majority.

Twelfth district (short term)—Fincks, democrat, 1789 majority.

Thirteenth district—Southard, democrat, 3951 majority.

Fourteenth district—Cowan, democrat, 5180 majority.

Fifteenth district—Van Voorhees, republican, 999 majority.

Sixteenth district—Danford, republican, 1226 majority.

Seventeenth district—Woodworth, republican, 276 majority.

Eighteenth district—Woodworth, republican, 2134 majority.

Nineteenth district—Garfield, republican, 6346 majority.

Twentieth district—Payne, democrat, 2519 majority.

This gives the democrats thirteen and the republicans seven congressmen.

Letter from Hanover.

Messrs Editors: In the GAZETTE of today, I notice a letter from Dartmouth, which I regret to say, contains some false statements. It pertains wholly to the recent race between the Seniors and Juniors.

"Bug" claims that the Junior crew was the favorite, on account of its having had more practice than the other. I think very likely it was the favorite with the Junior and Freshman classes, and it is perfectly right that it should be. But by no means was it the favorite with the Seniors and Sophomores. And in speaking of the broken rudder he says, "After working until 3 P. M. it was fixed." It was fixed sometime before 3 P. M. And he forgets to mention who had it fixed. It probably would not have been repaired that day if a popular Thayer school student and a few Seniors had not taken it upon their hands to see that it was done. And then the Juniors were reluctant about rowing, and had to call a class meeting to decide whether they should or not.

Now come the false statements. He gives the Senior time as 21 minutes. A telegraph line was put up expressly for the occasion, but did not work, for reasons better known to Juniors, than anybody else. But gentlemen on horseback and in carriages at the stand, who rode to the finish, had watches that did work. And they made the time between 16 and 17 minutes.

Then he goes on by saying that the referee decided the race to the Seniors from the testimony of outsiders alone. Such a remark is disgraceful to himself for making it, and also to the gentleman he refers to. In the first, the referee (who is a professor) would not do such a thing, and in the second place he did not do so. For when the crews came down he told them that he should reserve his decision until he could see the starter (who is also a professor) and he did so. Abiding by his (the starter's) word and the rules for College regattas, he decided the race to the Seniors.

Fishermen's Perils.

Captain Williams, of the schooner Laura Nelson of Gloucester, reports the loss of Benjamin Griffin and Neil McLain, two of the crew of the schooner Clara B. Chapman of the same port, on Grand Banks on the 4th instant, caused by their dory swamping while using their trawls. Griffin belonged in Shelburne, N. S. McLain was a native of Cape Breton.

George M. Roberts and James Austin, two of the crew of the schooner Marathon of the same port, arrived home on Thursday night, after an experience of eight days in an open dory at sea, without food. They left the vessel on the afternoon of the 7th instant, to visit their trawls on Grand Banks, and got loss in a heavy fog, and were unable to regain their vessel. They relate terrible sufferings from hunger. It rained during the first night, and they were fortunate enough to catch a good supply of water in the trawl tubs which they had. Of this they drank sparingly. For eight days they watched for some glimpse of a passing vessel, but with no signs of relief, and their courage nearly gave out when, on the morning of the ninth day, their dory was seen by the steamer Greece, which rescued them their perilous situation, both men being so weak and exhausted that they were unable to get aboard the vessel without assistance.

Arrest of a Noted Rascal.

Henry Pike of Acton, for whose apprehension a reward of $500 was offered, was captured Friday in Henniker by Deputy Sheriff Spalding of Nashua. Pike's crimes are numerous and of a most dastardly character. He is wanted at Acton, where he is suspected of the murder of Aaron Woods a year or two ago, and where there is proof that he entered the railroad depot, robbed and set fire to it. His recent crimes are entering private houses in the night time, first disguising himself by blacking his face, and robbing the inmates. At Acton he robbed the house of Mrs. Blood of silver ware and clothing, presenting a revolver at the heads of the three lady occupants and demanding the property and threatening to take their lives. At Westford he robbed the house of Mrs. Temple, while she was absent from home, of clothing and valuables. Also, a barber shop of its paraphernalia. Nearly all the property stolen was recovered from under a pile of railroad ties at Blood's Crossing, in Merrimack, Saturday morning, by City Marshal Brown, of Nashua, who elicited the facts concerning the place of concealment through a female accomplice. The property has been recognized. The criminal is 27 years of age, unmarried, and a desperate character.

State News.

Margaret Murray, while working in No. 3 mill of the Manchester Corporation, was struck on the head by a piece of shafting breaking loose, and sustained a compound fracture of the skull. She died soon afterward.

Frank P. White of Wentworth had his right arm crushed by the cars on Thursday night so badly that it had to be amputated at the shoulder joint.

At the annual meeting of the State Teachers' Association at Whitefield, Mr. Channing Folsom of Dover was chosen president.

Miss Mary C. Knight, daughter of Dr. L. M. Knight of Franklin, has just sailed for England to resume her work as lady superintendent of the department of music in the normal college for the blind in London.

Professor Ephraim Knight of New London has been appointed supervisor of the State normal school.

Marcellus Hanson, who was recently shot in the head by Simon Cole, at North Wakefield, is now expected to recover. Cole is in jail at Ossipee.

S. H. Dumas, of the Boar's Head Hotel, Hampton beach, will soon open the Arlington House on Causeway street, Boston.

Says the Manchester Dispatch: "Who will be the candidate of the republicans for Governor, is often asked, but not readily answered. It is quite as uncertain as is the other question, who will be the democratic nominee? Bell is on the lead, and who is better metal than Charles H. Bell? If the convention of the republicans should find it necessary to start anew, on nomination for Governor, and after Gen. McCutchins withdraws, turn the cold shoulder on Bell, either B. F. Prescott of Epping, or a gentleman of this city, whom our people would be glad to honor, but for modesty's sake will not name, would make a candidate that the entire party would generally support." Person C. Cheney?

The Rochester Courier concludes that "no one wants to re-nominate President Grant and he couldn't be re-elected if he was nominated."

Thirty of the squirrels shot in the recent grand hunt at Canaan, were hedgehogs!

John B. Hull of Dover had his collar bone badly broken by being thrown from a load of corn.

About two weeks ago, Mrs. Doherty, of Salmon Falls, started with her boy, Willie, for Providence, R. I. While passing through Boston, Willie strayed from his mother, and since then she cannot obtain a trace of him.

Stealing a Locomotive.

[Boston Traveller.]

A railroad in New England—say in Vermont State—went up a few months ago, greatly embarrassing the principal contractor. This contractor owned several locomotives, employed in construction. One of them was attached and put in charge of a keeper in Vermont. The contractor was desirous of obtaining the locomotive to use it elsewhere. There was no let-up on the part of the creditors, and the locomotive remained exposed at the precise point where it had been seized and the keeper placed in charge. The contractor resorted to strategy. He sent up an engineer and fireman with a written request to the attaching parties that they would allow the engine to be fired up and worked, so as to lubricate the machinery, and thus save depreciation. The bait took, and the keeper was instructed to allow this privilege. The engine was fired up, and the keeper went on his experimental trip until they arrived at a station, near which there was a well-known saloon. It was proposed to step off for refreshments. The keeper agreed, the fireman accompanying him. Meanwhile the keeper kept his eye on the locomotive, and seeing the engineer backing and filling, he thought all was right. Suddenly the engineer opened the throttle "wide," and in a short time was over the line and in New Hampshire, leaving the astonished keeper a wiser if not a more thirsty man.

—In October, the affectionate husband weeps to see his wife skip about the house, flourishing a duster, and to hear her shriek, in accents wild, "Kill him! There's another moth miller!"

—A man in Cincinnati, advertising for a situation, says: "Work is not so much an object as good wages."

—Some American ladies were recently turned out of the church of Les Invalides in Paris for whispering during the service.

—The fashion among the ladies of wearing beads on their sacques makes them very attractive, since they secure a background of dust through which these bits of black glass shine cheerfully.

Trumpery Tonics.

Moderation in the use of stimulants, like the avoidance of all excesses, is unquestionably praiseworthy and life-prolonging. All sensible persons admit this. But the vendors of non-alcoholic slops, desirous of undermining the reputation of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters in order to sell their own worthless trash, have thought fit to go to the extreme length of denouncing as baneful all invigorants containing spirits. Now the very reverse of this is the case, the fact being that no vegetable bitters entirely devoid of alcohol are worth a rush, that being the one ingredient which prevents the decomposition and souring of the others. Probably no one knows better than you, Messieurs the Trumpery Tonic Vendors, that the perfectly pure liquor used to dissolve the botanic constituents of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the very best medium that could have been selected to facilitate and confirm the invigorating, protective and remedial action of the great stomachic.

Change in the Cabinet.

Now that the President's Long Branch season is over, it is confidently predicted that there will be a change in the cabinet, and that before the first of December. It is known that the President and all heads of departments have bought largely of tickets for the next grand Gift Concert of the Public Library of Kentucky, to draw Nov. 30, and they flatter themselves that they will capture one or more of the large prizes, which will make plenty of change in the cabinet.

Personal.

Alderman William H. Sise, who has been severely sick for several weeks, we are glad to hear is recovering.

Mr. Edward N. Anderson, the courteous and attentive messenger of the navy yard, has been detached from business by illness for several weeks.

The family of Mr. Frank Cousens, in Wibird street, has been terribly afflicted with diphtheria. Two of their three children have died of this dread disease; the other and the mother are now suffering from it.

Laconics.

"Steam sloop No. 1" will be launched from No. 4 ship-house at the navy yard, at 12 o'clock, noon, to-day.

An unsuccessful attempt was made at about half-past 7 o'clock, Friday evening, to set fire to a barn in Hon. Albert A. Fernald's lumber yard at the North End. A New York Ledger, saturated with kerosene and wrapped around several bunches of matches and other combustibles, was set on fire and thrown through a small window in the rear of the horse stalls, but fortunately struck just behind the horses and went out without igniting the hay in the building.

The eclipse of the moon, Saturday night, was a very successful affair and attracted a numerous though not crowded audience, many who started out with the intention of seeing the thing through retiring before the close of the performance. One of the bank-watch informs us that in all his years of service he never saw so many people on the streets from midnight till 2 o'clock A. M., as on this occasion.

The saloon of Albert Rand, at the north end of Market street, was entered on Saturday night and robbed of cigars and money. The thief evidently effected an entrance from the dock, up through a privy, thence into the cellar and up through a trap-hatch into the saloon. Two watchmen—one a private watchman and the other a city supernumerary—were on duty in the immediate neighborhood, but the thief's route was entirely concealed from their view, and they were not expecting river pirates, anyway.

A buggy belonging to John Dixon came to grief in Penhallow street on Saturday, owing to the horse attached to it running away. The buggy was smashed to pieces against a post, but neither the horse nor any one else was injured.

A limited number of evening tickets to the Lyceum will be for sale at Preston's and at the door. Good seats will be secured to all who are admitted.

Readables.

Sheriffs' officers have seized the office and effects of Henry Clews & Co., New York, on account of creditors of that firm.

The total majority for license to sell liquors at the recent Connecticut election was 3710.

Commander George N. Morris, who commanded the frigate Cumberland during her contest with the Confederate ram Merrimack, in Hampton Roads, has been placed on the retired list, in consequence of physical disability.

The republican congressmen elected from Iowa received majorities ranging from 1000 to 6000. The reelected members were assailed and vilified during the canvass, and several of them have brought suits for libel against their calumniators.

The twin or double-hull steamship Castalia, built to overcome the effects of the rough sea of the English Channel, and intended to ply between Dover and Calais, has made a trial trip from Ramsgate to Calais. She proved a most comfortable boat, neither rolling nor pitching.

Alexander D. Hamilton, the defaulting treasurer of Jersey City, has returned and given himself up to the authorities. He absconded last February with $80,000, and has been to Matamoras, Europe and California, but tired at last of his outcast and roving life. He was fleeced out of $20,000 by a guide between Corpus Christi and Brownsville. His refusal to pay would have ended in his assassination, eight or ten men constantly accompanying him, with orders to shoot him if necessary.

The report of Postmaster James of the New York post office, for the last quarter, shows a balance in favor of the United States of $472,000, in round numbers.

The general condition in which its unexpected and unwonted victories have left the democratic party has its chaotic features. One of the Cleveland papers publishes the following as a verbatim report of the speech of Hon. H.B. Paine at the jollification meeting held in celebration of his election to Congress: "Friends and fellow-citizens,—you feel very (bang) happy this (music) evening, and this joy (whizz from a sky-rocket) comes up I am sure (bang, bang) from the very bottom (bang, across the square "Mulligan Guards") of your hearts. Rejoice, I say (another rocket), again rejoice and be ("Hoop la" from the crowd) exceeding glad, for we have reasons to be very joyous."

The official canvass of the vote in Colorado for delegates gives Patterson, democrat, 2,163 majority.

A son of Albert Pierce of Leominster, Mass., while out hunting in that town discovered traces of the Milford Bank robbers. A tin trunk was found in the woods, with envelopes, each marked with the amount of money they contained in the envelope, and deposited at the Milford bank. One envelope is marked $7000 of Cincinnati bonds. Near the tin trunk were found a pair of overalls, knit jacket, dark lanterns and a mask. Three suspicious looking men with packs were seen at South Fitchburg. The traces of the robbers are genuine. Four men drove through the town on Tuesday morning, and the envelopes found bear the names of the principal depositors in the bank and the date of deposit.

The democrats of Indiana are making vigorous preparations for concentrating all of their strength upon the new election for member of the House in Knox county, which has been ordered for November 7. The county has hitherto been democratic, but at the last election there was a tie vote. If the next election is favorable to the democrats, they will have a certain majority in the legislature, and can elect whomsoever they choose for United States Senator. If the republicans are successful, the independents will hold the balance of power, and can virtually dictate the nomination.

Cyrus Lufkin caught his foot in the railroad track at Danvers, Mass., Friday evening. He was unable to extricate it, and an approaching train ran over his leg and severed it.

—Dr. Franklin said: "The eyes of other people are the eyes that ruin us. If all but myself were blind, I should neither want a fine house nor fine furniture."

—The old lady who said: "O doctor, I'm getting so terribly nervous that I wish I had no nerves at all, like an oyster!" made a mistake in regard to the bivalve. The nervous system of the oyster has been demonstrated by science to be a very beautiful affair.

STOVES! STOVES!

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Oven Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

TIN AND SHEET IRON WORK.

We are practical Tin and Sheet Iron Workers, and are prepared to do work in our line in the most substantial and workmanlike manner, and at figures as low as anybody.

A Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

—THE—

Art Journal of America,

ISSUED MONTHLY.

"A magnificent conception, magnificently carried out."

The necessity of a popular medium for the representation of the productions of our great native artists, has always been recognized, and many attempts have been made to meet the want. The successive failures which so invariably followed each attempt to establish an art journal, did not prove the indifference of the people of America to the claims of high art. So soon as a proper appreciation of the want and an ability to meet it were shown, the public at once rallied with enthusiasm to its support, and the result was a great artistic and commercial triumph—THE ALDINE.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there is the chromo, besides!

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in no narrow sense. True art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate only on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign sources.

PREMIUM FOR 1872.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in oil colors, of the same valuable dog whose picture is a former issue attracted so much attention.

"Man's Essential Friend"

Will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves such a dog, and the portrait is executed so true to the life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage tells us that his own Newfoundland dog (the finest in Brooklyn) barks at it! Although so natural, no one who sees this chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.

THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. To every series of 5000 subscribers, 100 different pieces, valued at over $2,500, are distributed as soon as the series is full, and the awards of each series as made, and to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.

TERMS.

Olio Subscription, entitling to THE ALDINE one year, the Chromo and the Art Union,

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the cunce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.

A Boston Institution.

[Boston Globe.]

"Houghton's" has been to every Yankee woman as much one of the institutions of Boston as the State House or the Frog Pond. The lady visitor to the "Hub" may or may not have laid her plans to visit the dry goods palaces which have so much to attract a woman's eye; but a season of shopping at the Pavilion has been a matter of course, oftentimes doing away with the necessity of entering any other establishment. And yet in spite of the fact that Messrs. Houghton & Dutton's emporium is daily thronged with buyers, it may be safely said that not one of these has any adequate idea of the extent of the business transacted in the length and breadth of that mammoth store. So admirably is the establishment arranged in departments—each of which forms, in effect, a store by itself—that all business proceeds like clock-work, the continual running to and fro of the "cash girls" giving only some idea of the liveliness of trade, and no conception of the extent of stock so compactly and attractively arranged. The average buyer goes to Houghton's with the purpose of buying some small wares, which she, like every other shopper, knows can be purchased cheaper at the Pavilion than anywhere else; and although she may not go away without investing money in many bargains of which she had not thought more than half the departments are sure to be unvisited.

Mr. Houghton's old "Pavilion" was almost totally destroyed by fire, two years ago, Thursday, and, for the space of a few months, the favorite resort of Boston ladies ceased to exist. But its indefatigable manager, Mr. Houghton, who has won rare reputation in this community for thorough business capacity and working energy, at once set about the work of reconstruction, and the new Pavilion, with many improvements in arrangement and accommodation, found at once the public favor. It is unnecessary to enumerate the infinite variety of goods there offered. The stock in hand, to-day, is estimated to be worth about $300,000, and it has, as a matter of course, to be constantly renewed and replenished. The amount of business yearly transacted within the four walls of the Pavilion cannot be less than $1,300,000.

Some mention of the system which rules in Messrs. Houghton & Dutton's establishment, and a note or two concerning certain improvements now making, may help to give some idea of the workings of the great establishment. The Pavilion is divided, at present, into three grand sections. Section I. includes the first 100 feet of the store, from the Tremont street entrance to the offices, and Section II. takes in the remaining part of the first floor, stretching back 200 feet from the outer doors. The second story is included in Section III., and, when the new wholesale department is installed in the front half of the second story, now remodelling, that part of the establishment will be called Section IV. These sections are each subdivided into various departments, designated by the letters of the alphabet. Department A is one of the most frequented in the store, and forms in itself a complete hosiery shop. Here are to be found, besides hoisery, ladies' knit goods, umbrellas, etc., in great abundance. Department B is designed to accommodate the large stock of domestic and foreign dry goods, which needs no commendation to the ladies of Boston. Hoop skirts and corsets, in seemingly inordinate profusion, form Department C in the establishment, and nowhere have the clerks more to do than here. The next department in order, D, is one of the pleasantest in the establishment, and includes the artificial flowers, feathers, etc., which are spread upon the table, such an attractive display as but few "speciality" importers can hope to rival. Ribbons, velvets and millinery silks comprise the next department, while the collection of small wares, haberdashery and variety goods, which goes by the name of Department F, is enough to fit out at least a full military company of Yankee peddlers. Laces, embroideries and veilings in all conceivable forms; kid gloves, straw goods, hats, bonnets and millinery articles; jewelry, perfumery, toilet and fancy soaps and varieties; boots and shoes for ladies and children; velvet ribbons, trimmings, gimp, cord and tassels; toys of all kinds, American and German, pictures, frames and brackets; ladies' suits, shawls, ready-made garments of all kinds; tinware, glass ware and crockery; stationery and writing materials; ladies' underclothing, linen and white goods, handkerchiefs, etc. This comprises a summary statement of the articles classified in the other departments of the establishment, and will, perhaps, convey some idea of the varied responsibilities attending the management of the Pavilion, the only concern of the kind in new England.

The business of the establishment has outgrown its present quarters, where over 300 employees attend to the wishes of the public, and the addition of a wholesale department in the front half of the second story, which is now finishing, will doubtless relieve a little the pressure of trade at Houghton & Dutton's. The interior department of the establishment, with its spacious store room above and below the main emporium, and the "marking rooms," where the goods are proved and appraised as they arrive, are very interesting places to see and show, better than anything else, the extent of the Pavilion business. With shrewd policy in buying, the firm secure the best goods at the lowest rates, and plenty of them; and, although very often goods are offered at so low a price that profit seems impossible, yet in the careful management of a very extensive business, Messrs. Houghton & Dutton doubtless find the Pavilion a place of profit to themselves as well as to the public which so largely patronizes that favorite establishment.

In a well considered article on the recent election and its effect on the future, the Springfield (Ohio) Republic closes by a suggestion which is equally true in this latitude: "The best people have a very important duty to perform at all primary meetings, in the way of using their influence for the selection of proper men for candidates! If good men will turn out en masse at the primaries, they can secure a good nomination of men who are unobjectionable in every respect."

The Boston base-ball club has won for the third consecutive season the professional championship of the United States.

The recent burning to death of two postal clerks while in service in their cars, has opened the question of dispensing with explosive lights on railways. A man in Berlin claims to have mastered the difficulty. He abandons coal gas altogether, and makes his gas from oil. He packs it in iron retorts at a pressure of ninety pounds to the square inch, and supplies it to to the lamps through an ingenious regulator. Some few of the Continental railways have already adopted this system of lighting. In England an experimental carriage has been fitted with it on the London and Northwestern Railway, and has been running some weeks.

Robert Collyer is a strong man. This is demonstrated by the fact that he has been able to resist New York's $10,000 salary temptation, and cling to his Chicago church with only $5,000. A man who can do that in these days, is one out of $10,000.

General Sheridan, who is now in the Indian Territory, telegraphs from Fort Sill, October 19, that Lieutenant-Colonel Buell struck a small camp of hostile Indians on the head waters of the Salt Fork of the Red River, near the Staked Plains, on the 9th of October, destroying it and killing one Indian, then continued in pursuit of the Indians up the river, destroying a camp of fifteen lodges and one of seventy-five lodges and finally a camp of about 400 lodges, driving the Indians still further west, on the edge of the Staked Plains, when they turned north to the headwaters of McClellan's Creek and North Fork. Colonel Buell is still in pursuit.

The Hotel Boylston, in Boston, was damaged $25,000 by fire, on Monday.

The Presidency of Bengal has been visited by a terrible cyclone extending over the entire province, entailing great loss of life and property. The shipping in the Bay of Bengal suffered severely, many vessels being wrecked. Over 2000 lives have been lost by the disaster.

In pronouncing sentence upon Phelps, the defaulting State cashier of New York, Judge Westbrook made some very timely strictures upon the loose way in which it is becoming the fashion to palliate or cover up such offences. "The enforced borrowing of another's money," he remarked, "by an unlawful taking against the owner's will, hoping, by subjecting it to the hazard of gambling speculation, to return its equivalent, is just as reprehensible in wholesome morals and sound public policy as the taking with no such intent."

Senator John F. Lewis, of Virginia, whose term expires with this Congress, is the republican candidate for the House, against John T. Harris, (democrat,) in the seventh Virginia district.

Clarence W. Miller, of Gansevoort, Saratoga county, N. Y., has been suddenly checked in the prosecution of a little business enterprise. He inserted in a well-known literary and family paper, an advertisement to the effect that "photographs, rich, rare and racy," could be procured by remitting twenty-five cents to C. W. M., Gansevoort, Saratoga county. This advertisement was seen by Special Agent Comstock, who immediately suspected the true business of "C. W. M." The result was the arrest of Miller for disseminating obscene pictures. Within twenty-four hours afterwards he was serving out a term of a year and six months in the Albany penitentiary. The Government is determined to break up the business of such men as Miller, who are engaged in the infernal work of corrupting the minds of the young.

Ship Mogul, of Boston, Capt. Freeman, has been burned at sea. All hands were landed at Tahiti.

An incendiary fire at Georgetown, Mass., destroyed $125,000 worth of property, Monday morning. Steamers from Newburyport and Haverhill aided in extinguishing the flames. Geo. Tenny & Son lost a large four-story building 200 feet long, filled with shoe-stock, machinery, etc., the house of Mr. Geo. Tenny and also their barn. Their loss will probably reach $60,000, on which they have policies in various companies, amounting to about half their loss.

The steamer Mary foundered on a voyage from Glasgow to Trinidad. Ten persons went down with the ship. The remainder took to the boats, one of which, with five men, is supposed to have been swamped. The other, containing two of the crew living and three dead, was picked up by the steamer Horseguard, from Odessa.

State News.

The Circuit Court for Merrimack county adjourned Saturday morning. There have been no jury trials, nearly all of the cases having been referred under the new law.

Captain Hiram Wilking, flagman at the Concord Railroad station at Nashua, was caught between the dead woods while coupling cars, Saturday, and instantly killed, He belonged in Burlington, Vt., where he leaves a wife and family.

Pistol Practice in Montana.

[Virginia Enterprise.]

Yesterday afternoon, at a saloon on the Divide, some men were discusing the shooting affray which occurred during the morning between the two brothers-in-law, Fallman and Ward, as mentioned in another column. It was agreed on all hands that it was shocking bad shooting—a discredit to Washoe. At last a Pioche man bantered a Comstock man, whom he knew to be a good shot with a pistol, to go out in his back yard with him and do some shooting, just to show the "boys" how it should be done. In the saloon was a box of eggs, and what the Piocher proposed was that each shoot two eggs off the bare head of the other at the distance of ten paces, the one missing to treat the crowd. The Comstocker was bound not to be bluffed by a man from the other end of the State, so to the back yard all hands adjourned. Each man used his own six-shooter. The Comstocker first "busted" his egg on the top of the Piocher's head, which exploit was loudly applauded by all present. It was then the Piocher's turn to shoot, and an egg was produced to be placed upon the head of the Comstocker, but when he removed his hat there was a great laugh, for the top of his head was as smooth as a billiard ball. For full ten minutes all hands tried in vain to make an egg stand on his head. It couldn't be done. The Piocher then taunted the Comstocker with having gone into the arrangement, knowing that he was safe. The latter told him to set up his egg and it was all right—he was there. The Piocher went into the saloon and a moment after came out with a small handful of flour, which he dabbed upon the bald head of the Comstocker, and then triumphantly planted in his egg, fell back ten steps and then knocked it off. The Comstocker then told him to set up his second egg and shoot at it, as he didn't want to have his head chalked twice during the game. This was done, and the wreck of a second egg streamed over the Comstocker's pate. The Piocher now stood out with his last egg on his head. The Comstocker raised his pistol and fired. The Piocher bounded a yard into the air and the egg bounced whole from his head. "I've lost!" said the Comstocker. "By a slip I've put half the width of my bullet through the top of his left ear!" and so it proved upon measurement.

Too Attentive to Business.

Metcalf's grocery store in our place has been closed for a week or so. Metcalf was perfectly willing to have it open, but circumstances rendered it necessary for him to suspend business for a while. There had been a good many burglaries, and Metcalf bought a dog to keep in his store at night. The man who sold the dog said that its one strong peculiarity was its vigilance. That dog would watch that store closer than the Genius of Liberty watches the destinies of America. So the man turned the dog loose in the store and Metcalf locked up and went home. When he came down in the morning the dog flew at him as soon as he opened the door and attempted to breakfast on Mr. Metcalf's legs; whereupon Mr. Metcalf suddenly shut the door and sat down to think. Then he went after the man who sold the dog, but he had gone out of town to see his aunt, and wouldn't be back for a month. Metcalf then undertook to coax the dog through the crack of the door, but the animal still manifested a resolute determination to chew Metcalf's legs, and so Metcalf closed the door again and began to wish he had bought a dog less attentive to business. Then he procured a double-barreled gun and spent the remainder of the week shooting slugs and bullets down the chimney, and through the doors and windows, and up through the cellar ceiling, and still the dog held out, until Metcalf got a section of wire fence, placed it across the doorway, opened the door and banged the obnoxious animal into eternity. Then he entered and found that he had shot holes through the molasses cans and coal-oil barrels, and had blown all the Chinaware to atoms, so that the store looked as if a fifteen inch shell had burst in it. Metcalf cleaned up and resumed; but he is anxiously awaiting that man's return from his visit to his aunt's. He wants to see him about something.

—Sunday night a Detroit policeman, passing a certain house about 10 o'clock, saw a man drop from a window, and heard smothered cries inside. He seized the man for a burglar, but soon found that he had the owner of the house in his clutches. "Well," said the officer, "it looked suspicious to see you drop out of a window that way." "Well," replied the man, heaving a sigh, "when the old woman gets her dander up I ain't particular about what road I take to get out of the house."

—A keen-witted servant girl told the milkman the other day that he gave his cows too much salt. "How do you know that?" said the lactealist. "Sure I kin tell be the milk that they drink too much water entirely!" said the girl. The milkman drove off in a hurry.

Trumpery Tonics.

Moderation in the use of stimulants, like the avoidance of all excesses, is unquestionably praiseworthy and life-prolonging. All sensible persons admit this. But the vendors of non-alcoholic slops, desirous of undermining the reputation of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters in order to sell their own worthless trash, have thought fit to go to the extreme length of denouncing as baneful all invigorants containing spirits. Now the very reverse of this is the case, the fact being that no vegetable bitters entirely devoid of alcohol are worth a rush, that being the one ingredient which prevents the decomposition and souring of the others. Probably no one knows better than you, Messieurs the Trumpery Tonic Vendors, that the perfectly pure liquor used to dissolve the botanic constituents of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the very best medium that could have been selected to facilitate and confirm the invigorating, protective and remedial action of the great stomachic.

HACKNEYED DOCTOR-TALK.

"All has been done that can be done," says the physician when he gives up a consumptive patient and retires from the field. Not so, good friend—not so. Nothing, comparatively, has been done, if Hale's HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR has not been prescribed and perseveringly administered. Let the prudent take the case into his own hands, and use the remedy that Nature and Science have furnished. It never fails.

Local Matters.

Wong Chin Foo

Had quite a large audience, Sunday evening, to listen to his "child-like and bland" manner of putting the doctrines of Confucious before the public. He speaks English with but few incorrect pronounciations, but uses some phrases comically. The word "thunderstruck" he takes to mean "struck by lightning." That his audience was interested to an almost painful extent was shown by the stillness pervading the Temple except when some late-comer with squeaking boots appeared inside the door, or the gamins in the entry made haste into the street to escape the clutches of the janitor or policeman. Wong has a singular intonation which causes the listener to keep his hearing facilities in a constant strain lest the omission of a word destroy the meaning of a sentence. The diminutive Mandarin did not have the appearance of being an arch-conspirator of such importance as to warrant the cruel edict that went forth from the Chinese court that he should be sliced into eighteen pieces before the breath should leave his body. He was especially happy in placing before his hearers familiarly the faith of Confucius (who flourished two thousand three hundred years ago,) which has never needed the sword or other warlike power to sustain it, though it prevails among four hundred and fifty millions of people. Confucius was a philosopher. He was elected to high offices of trust, but only remained in position long enough to see the vile corruption that existed therein, and gave up all that he might teach his people an honest religion. His conversions were not confined to the poor and ignorant classes alone, but he went among officials high in office and taught them religion, and they erected not only monuments to his memory, but beautiful temples and idols. He taught gravity, propriety, sincerity, virtue and filial piety.

The law of gravity is universally observed, and even the little children walk the streets with the air of a person fifty years of age. The lecturer read a translation of Confucius' doctrine touching propriety. He said that his people would never cease abiding by the laws of propriety. Boys are not allowed to run through the streets or shout, but they must be dignified. Everybody is obliged to dress according to his situation in life. The dress is loose at all times, and a style that is good for a day is good for a century or longer period. The men are not allowed to see them publicly before fifty years of age. [It may be imagined that Young America as yet shows no sign of adopting China as a future home. Harry Bloodgood himself might be eternally disgraced on account of his "Funny Old Gal."] The disregard of foreign nations for the laws of propriety is the prime cause of China's estrangement.

The speaker said that the Chinese are noted for their hospitality, and he read quotations from Confucius regarding it. A foreigner would be treated with profound courtesy in China, especially if he should adopt their style of dress and habits. They would sympathize with and assist a stranger for the reason of his being so far from home. He also read from the same authority in regard to sincerity. The Chinaman, he said, were not over scrupulous in being honest in trade, but they make friendship in true sincerity. "Sincerity," says Confucius, "is the beginning and end of things." In this country the speaker had heard men say, "if a man has plenty of money, he'll have friends enough." In China it is not so. A man's circumstances make little difference in the estimation in which he is held. The Chinese are fond of society and firm in their friendship. Two friends will often unite themselves in sincere friendship by a religious ceremony. When they do this their compact includes the care of each other's families, requires that their prosperity be common, and that no other man shall be received by either into such friendship.

He said that when ordered by the Emperor to be cut into eighteen pieces, through the generosity of his friend, who sold all he had and borrowed more to pay Wong's heavy ransom to the jailor, he was allowed to fly for his life. That was the kind of sincerity which was professed and carout in China, said the lecturer. He then read his translation of Confucius' ideas of virtue. He said that benevolent institutions were not necessary in this country. The true secret of everybody's being in comfortable circumstances was the strict economy practiced by them. He paid a compliment (?) to our country by saying that instead of sending the worst Chinamen to jail they transport them to the United States, so we do not get a fair representation of that race. Their industry, he said, could not be disputed, and they also were very modest, which was the case with himself before coming to this country.

The last and fifth point, filial piety, is the greatest. A child's happiness depends in a large measure on its faithfulness to its parents, and vice versa. When a parent dies the law obliges the relatives, if their condition is such as to warrant it, to shut up the house three years to mourn over their loss. During that time no one is allowed within. Images themselves are not worshiped, except perhaps among the most ignorant classes, but they are kept to preserve the memory of some dear one fresh in the mind, as a lock of hair would be kept by us for the same purpose. There are few murders, and men dare not take the name of God in vain. Confucius was one of the greatest moral teachers, and his followers believe that they will receive the blessing of God if they obey his teachings. The Chinese revere their mothers and teach their children to do so, mourning their decease with unfeigned sorrow.

We understand that the managers of the S. P. C. A. are contemplating a supplementary lecture to the lyceum course by Wong Chin Foo, which will afford an opportunity for many who have not heard him to attend as well as the fulfillment of a desire on the part of those who have already seen him to hear more of China, its customs and religion.

The Launch.

On Monday the new "Steam sloop-of-war No. 1" was launched from ship-house No. 4, (the "Alabama" ship-house,) at this naval station, and now lies at the wharf to be fitted for sea. The name of the new sloop will probably be the "Boxer," after the crack brig-of-war captured from the British in the war of 1812 by the U. S. Brig Enterprise; but the navy department not having officially named the new vessel, the ceremony of christening was omitted, and the vessel is only "Sloop No. 1." Her dimensions are as follows: registered tonnage, 620; length over all, 214 feet; tread of gun deck, 198 feet; breadth of beam, 35 feet; depth of hold, 16.2 feet; area of midship section, 360 square feet; angle of entrance at load line, 20 degrees; angle of clearance at load line, 43 degrees; dead rise, 7 deg., 30 min. She is fitted with 9 ports each side, and will carry an armament of one 11-inch pivot gun, four 9-inch broadside guns (each side,) and one 60-pounder pivot gun on forecastle. She has a poop deck 42 feet in length, and a top-gallant forecastle of 51 feet. Her forward berth deck (for the berthing of the crew) extends aft to the boilers, and her after berth deck (for the accommodation of the officers) extends forward to the engine. The boilers and engine occupy a space of 50 feet in the length of the ship. The cabin (with pantry, office, armory, etc.,) is under the poop deck. Her keel is of white oak, as is the outside planking, the hooks, keelsons and frames are of live oak, and the ceilings and decks of yellow pine. Though she registers, (or will register) but little over 600 tons in the way register, she is of nearly 1200 tons carpenter's measurement; and a finer ship of her size and class was never floated. Handsome as a yacht, built of thoroughly seasoned materials and of a size suited either to coast or harbor defence or ocean cruising, she is a valuable addition to the effective force of the navy.

At 12 minutes before 12 o'clock the workmen commenced wedging up; at 5 minutes past 12 the gangway was taken in; at 7 minutes past 12 the operation of "sawing off" was commenced; at 10 minutes past she commenced to move, at 12 minutes past she had shot out abreast the Receiving Ship Sabine, whose guns thundered out a salute to the ship-of-war, and 26 minutes past 12, 38 minutes from the time the first blow was struck on the wedges, the sloop was fast alongside the wharf and the guests who had been launched in her, were going ashore.

As the ship commenced to move the Naval Band struck up "Yankee Doodle," changing to "Hail Columbia" as the first gun of the Sabine's salute sounded. About a hundred and fifty persons (a large proportion of them ladies) were launched on board the vessel, and probably not less than two thousand witnessed the launched. After the ship was moored Commodore Bryson held a reception, which was attended by most of the ladies and officers; after which the clerks and leading men of the yard and representatives of the press were hospitably entertained by Naval Constructor Wilson, and later by Civil Engineer B. F. Chandler, at their residences on Seavey's island.

Among the distinguished visitors were Isaiah Hanscom, Chief Constructor, Wm. W. W. Wood, Chief of Bureau of Steam Engineering, Civil Engineer Brownell Granger, of the Charlestown navy yard, Naval Constructors John W. Easby, Samuel H. Pook and Wm. L. Hanscom, Congressmen Burleigh and Small, Hon. John E. Butler, of Biddeford, Me., John Trickey, Esq., of the firm of Trickey & Jewett, and John W. Griffiths, Esq., builder of the "Enterprise," a sister vessel of Sloop No. 1.

The vessel was built under the supervision of Naval Constructor Theodore D. Wilson and Assistant Naval Constructor Philip Hichborn, and they have no need to fear a comparison of this work with anything that floats, of her class. The launch was perfectly successful, and the new sloop is a valuable addition to the effective force of the United States navy.

Circuit Court.

The case of Cunningham et als vs. Canon Walsh et als goes to the full bench on questions of law.

On Monday, Joseph Ryan of Exeter, charged with horse-stealing, was put on trial.

The following is a list of the petit jurors: Candia, Thomas A. Palmer, Thomas B. Turner; Deerfield, John W. Silver, Isaac H. Morrison; Derry, Edward L. Jones, Nathaniel H. Brown; Exeter, Chase Wiggin, Geo. W. Fernald; Londonderry, Hiram Cutler, Amos C. Webster; New Market, Charles C. Downing, Albert F. Haines; Salem, Francis B. Kelley, John Chase; Portsmouth, William Alton, John O. Ayers, William B. Randall, Richard H. Beacham, Thomas Tredick, John L. O. Coleman; Nottingham, Samuel S. Brown, Alfred Fernald; Plaistow, Hezekiah H. Cheney, Joseph Kimball; Raymond, Nathaniel C. Garland, John F. Brown; Rye, Charles J. Brown, Arthur L. Goss; Sandown, Harrison Sanborn, Ebenezer Hoyt, 2d.

The Shakers.

A modest little band of eight Shakers paid a second visit to this city on Sunday and held meetings at Rechabite Hall in the morning at 10:30, in the afternoon at 2:30, and in the evening at 7:30. The services were well attended and were conducted in the simple form of this sect, which consists only of singing and speaking. Addresses were made by Elders Blinn and Hartley and one of the Eldresses. In the afternoon Elder Blinn appropriated the hour to correcting many errors and reports concerning the Shakers that exist in the minds of many of us who suppose ourselves already sufficiently well informed concerning this misunderstood people. Elder Hartley supplemented the remarks of the former with a hasty sketch of the origin, trials and progress of Shakerism, adding an earnest appeal to his hearers to come forth from their graves of selfishness, pride, lust and prejudice, and seek a religion that teaches men to "cease to do evil and learn to do well."

Elder Hartley, young enthusiast as he is, would have us all become Shakers, we presume (although he did not say so,) while Elder Blinn, who is a man of large experience and withal an excellent speaker and sound reasoner, holds the matter of joining the Shakers as secondary, and would rather have us attend to the weightier matters of the law, and pay those grudging tithes of self-denial, thus purifying and perfecting ourselves in the image of God. We trust these quiet and unpretending people will visit us often, and enlighten the ignorant concerning their manners and religion.

HEARER.

Lost Overboard.

On the 10th inst., Herbert L. Brown of Newcastle, mate of schooner "Carrie Bell," while walking on the deck, was suddenly struck by the main boom, and thrown into the water. The boats were immediately cut away and put off to his rescue, but the united efforts of the crew were of no avail. He had received his fatal blow, and after a single struggle, sunk to rise no more. Mr. Brown was a very promising young man of excellent reputation, one of those brave, ambitious characters, we so much admire, yet seldom meet with; whose frank and pleasing manner won the respect of all who knew him. His loss is deeply felt by his wife and child, and by a large number of relatives and friends, with whom he was a general favorite. Had his life been spared a short time longer, he would have been made Captain, which position he was fully competent to fill. At the time of the accident, the schooner was near Montank Point, bound for Kennebunk Port with a cargo of timber.

Lyceum.

A limited number of evening tickets will be for sale at Preston's and at the door, at twenty-five cents each. Good seats will be secured to all who are admitted. The next entertainment of the course will consist of a lecture, to-morrow evening, by James T. Fields, Esq. Subject, "Longfellow." The managers have invited the pupils of the high school to attend this lecture.

Laconics.

On Sunday, the police unearthed the thief who took so much trouble to enter Albert Rand's saloon on Market street. He turned out to be Michael Gilligan, Jr. On being brought before Judge Page, he confessed, and went to jail in default of $500 bonds.

The Court of Commissioners of the Alabama claims has begun work at Washington. Among the ships captured, in whose cases parties in this city are interested, are the Express, Rockingham, Charles Hill and Star of Peace. One of the earliest cases on the docket is the claim of Capt. Orlando G. Robinson of Greenland, former master of barque Gypsey, a whaler burnt by the Shanandoah, who is represented by Frank W. Hackett Esq., of this city as attorney.

Two able-bodied tramps entered the house of Mr. Henry M. Clark on Monday, during the absence of Mr. Clark, and terrified the females of the family by demanding money, clothes, food, etc. The rascals got nothing, but would have got more than they wanted had Mr. Clark been at home.

Mr. Samuel Staples, the veteran fish dealer of the Spring Market, was robbed of about $35 on Monday afternoon by some scoundrel who burst open the money draw of the fish market.

A court martial, ordered by the Navy department, is to assemble at this naval station for the trial of Capt. Richard Renshaw, of the Ticonderoga, for sending a file of marines to compel the surgeons in charge of a hospital at Pensacola to receive a number of yellow fever patients taken from on board that ship.

The Rockingham House is now under the control of Mr. Frank W. Hilton, favorably known as manager of the "Oceanic" at the Shoals the past season. With an experienced landlord and board reduced to three dollars a day, the Rockingham should be more popular than ever.

—A student at an Iowa college boarded himself on sixty-five cents per week, and studied twenty hours per day. He is now an Overseer of Highways.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

New Publications.

Mr. Johnson renews in Scribner's for November his recollections of Charles Sumner, giving a new and fresh account of what has been often described before,—namely, his home and pictures. He quotes to some extent from Mr. Sumner's own account of them given in a magazine article on "The Best Portraits in engraving," contributed to The City,—a magazine of which only one number was printed; and has added some incidents of the household life of Mr. Sumner which will be new to most readers. The leading illustrated article bears the title, "Pictures in Florida," and is followed by a friendly sketch of J. T. Trowbridge, with a portrait, and a poem, "The Story of an Outcast," by Boyesen; "The Miracle of Lourdes," by Charles Fairbanks; the poem from Dr. Holland's "Mistress of the Manse," entitled "Mildred in the Library;" the beginning of a new story by Saxe Holm, called "My Tourmoline," and a great variety of entertainments besides. The number begins a new volume, and promises much for the coming year.

The contributors to St. Nicholas for November have presented an unusual opulence to its young readers in the way of curious and entertaining stories, and of descriptive and illustrated articles. This number is the beginning of a new volume, to which all the old writers and many new ones are contributing of their best.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the prevailing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

A Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

—THE—

Art Journal of America,

ISSUED MONTHLY.

"A magnificent conception, magnificently carried out."

The necessity of a popular medium for the representation of the productions of our great native artists, has always been recognized, and many attempts have been made to meet the want. The successive failures which so invariably followed each attempt to establish an art journal, did not prove the indifference of the people of America to the claims of high art. So soon as a proper appreciation of the want and an ability to meet it were shown, the public came rallied with enthusiasm to its support, and the result was a great artistic and commercial triumph—THE ALDINE.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the purest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with details of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of line paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there is the chromo, besides!

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in no narrow sense. True art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to foster a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate only on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign sources.

PREMIUM FOR 1875.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in oil colors, of the same noble dog whose picture in a former issue attracted so much admiration.

"Man's Unselfish Friend"

Will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves such a dog, and the portrait is executed so true to the life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage tells us that his own Newfoundland dog (the finest in Brooklyn) barks at it! Although so natural, no one who sees this chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.

THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. To every series of 5000 subscribers, 100 different pieces, valued at over $2,500, are distributed as soon as the series is full, and the awards of each series as made, are to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.

TERMS.

Only Subscription, entitling to THE ALDINE one year, the Chromo and the Art Union.

SIX DOLLARS PER ANNUM, IN ADVANCE.

(No charge for postage.)

Specimen copies of THE ALDINE, fifty cents.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON, President.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot possibly place more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Piano and Singing.

THOS. P. MOSES, thorough and tasteful Teacher of Music, from A to Z in the alphabet to composition and arrangement, has concluded not to accept a recent call to go South again, but will retain his permanent location in the grand "Old Town by the Sea" where he was born,—and renews the offer of his services as above, with unabated zeal and love for this branch of human refinement. He is no novice or humbug to beg, borrow or buy bolsters to uphold him in an art he does not fully understand in every phase of its beauty; but would respectfully point to the best of references, WORKS, and ability to discover, develope and train inherent talent to accomplish splendid results. His pupils are shining in private and public, here and elsewhere. His many Musical Exhibitions—such as others seldom or never present to the public—have been and will still be his solid credentials, aside from favoring favoritism where true merit is too often absent. Terms, $12 for twelve weeks (twenty-four lessons) at his Music Room, or $15 at the pupil's residence, for Piano or Scientific Vocalization, separately or together. Mr. Moses will also TUNE PIANOS,—a business "familiar as household words" to him,—and solicits orders.

LAWS

OF THE

UNITED STATES

PASSED AT THE

FIRST SESSION OF THE FORTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 73.]

AN ACT making appropriations for the current and contingent expenses of the Indian Department, and for fulfilling treaty stipulations with various Indian tribes, for the year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-five, and for other purposes.

MISCELLANEOUS.

For this amount, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to defray the expenses of a general council of certain Indians in the Indian Territory, as provided by the twelfth article of the treaty with the Cherokees of July nineteenth, eighteen hundred and sixty-six, the tenth article of the treaty with the Creeks of June fourteenth, eighteen hundred and sixty-six, the seventh article of the treaty with the Seminoles of March twenty-first, eighteen hundred and sixty-six, and the eighth article of the treaty with the Choctaws and Chickasaws of April twenty-eighth, eighteen hundred and sixty-six, seven thousand dollars.

For this amount, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to subsist and properly care for the Kansas Indians, including agricultural assistance, pay of employees, and the erection of a mill on their new reservation in the Indian Territory, said amount to be refunded to the United States from the proceeds of the sale of their lands in Kansas, thirty thousand dollars.

For this amount, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for the erection of necessary agency-buildings on the new reservation of said Indians in the Indian Territory, said amount to be re-imbursed to the United States from the proceeds of the sale of their lands in Kansas, ten thousand dollars.

For this amount, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to provide, under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, settlements, clothing, food, agricultural implements, and seeds, for the Modoc Indians that have been removed to and are now residing within the Indian Territory, ten thousand dollars.

That the Secretary of the Interior be, and is hereby, authorized to pay the sum of one hundred thousand dollars from the proceeds of the sales of land known as the Cherokee strip in Kansas to the treasurer of the Cherokee Nation, to be used for the payment of outstanding claims against the nation and for the erection of suitable buildings for a penitentiary.

For the second of ten instalments, to be paid, under the direction of the President, to the Flathead Indians removed from the Bitter Root Valley to the Jocko reservation, in the Territory of Montana, five thousand dollars: Provided, That the proceeds of the sales of land in Bitter Root Valley, Montana Territory, referred to in the second section of the act of Congress approved June fifth, eighteen hundred and seventy-two, entitled "An act to provide for the removal of the Flatheads and other Indians from the Bitter Root Valley, in the Territory of Montana," shall be paid into the Treasury of the United States; in the same manner that other moneys derived from the sale of other public lands are now paid in: And provided further, That in lieu of the amount provided to be set apart therefrom by the act of Congress of June fifth, eighteen hundred and seventy-two, hereinbefore referred to, there shall be annually appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury of the United States, not otherwise appropriated, the sum of five thousand dollars, for the period of ten years, to be expended, under the direction of the President, in the manner deemed for the best good of the Indians who have been removed from Bitter Root Valley: And provided further, That no part of said sum shall be paid to any Indian of said tribe who shall not have settled upon the Jocko reservation.

For wagon-road from the Northern Pacific Railway to the agency for Chippewa Indians of the Mississippi: For this amount, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for the construction of a wagon-road from Red Lake agency, Minnesota, by which supplies may be transported from such point on the railroad as may be determined by the Secretary of the Interior, ten thousand dollars; to be available immediately.

Settlement of the Otter-Tail Pillagers: For this amount, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for subsisting and establishing the Otter-Tail Pillager band upon the White Earth reservation, Minnesota, in accordance with the act approved March third, eighteen hundred and seventy-three, by which the right of said Indians has been secured to one township of land for reservation purposes; fifteen thousand dollars; to be available immediately.

For this amount, being the unexpended balance of sums due to the Mississippi Chippewas, and to the Pillager band at Leech Lake, under treaty-stipulations, to be expended by the Secretary of the Interior for the civilization and benefit of said Indians, twenty-three thousand and ninety-six dollars and twenty-three cents.

Settlement of Pembina band of Chippewas on White Earth reservation, Minnesota: For this amount, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for the removal and establishment of the Pembina band of Chippewa Indians upon the White Earth reservation, Minnesota, in accordance with the act approved March third, eighteen hundred and seventy-three, fifteen thousand dollars; to be available immediately.

For this amount, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to relieve the necessities of the Chippewa Indians attached to the Red Cliff and Bad River reservations in the State of Wisconsin, two thousand dollars; to be available immediately.

For this amount, to enable the Secretary of the Interior to carry out the provisions of the fourth section of the act entitled "An act for the relief of the Stockbridge and Munsee tribe of Indians in the State of Wisconsin," approved February sixth, eighteen hundred and seventy-one, by causing to be credited to said tribe the estimated value, at sixty cents an acre, of eleven thousand eight hundred and three acres of land remaining unsold of the two townships referred to in said act: Provided, That the expenses of enrollment and payment required by the provisions of said act shall be defrayed from the amount hereby appropriated, seven thousand and eighty-one dollars and eighty cents.

Pay and expenses of three commissioners to make appraisements: For this amount, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for the purpose of defraying the expenses of a commission provided for by section two of the act approved March third, eighteen hundred and seventy-three, to make an examination of the country proposed for the location of the Round Valley reservation, and to make an appraisement of all improvements of white persons north of said boundary of the reservation, four thousand dollars.

Pay and expenses of five Indian inspectors: For of five Indian inspectors, at three thousand dollars each, fifteen thousand dollars.

For this amount, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to defray the necessary traveling-expenses of five Indian inspectors provided for by section six of the act making appropriations for the current and contingent expenses of the Indian Department for the fiscal year eighteen hundred and seventy-four, seven thousand five hundred dollars.

INTEREST ON TRUST-FUND STOCKS.

For payment of interest on certain abstracted and non-paying State stocks belonging to various Indian tribes, (and held in trust by the Secretary of the Interior,) for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth eighteen hundred and seventy-four, namely:

For interest on the Cherokee national fund, twenty-five thousand four hundred dollars.

For interest on the Cherokee school fund, two hundred and ninety dollars.

For interest on the Chickasaw national fund, twenty-five thousand two hundred and twenty dollars.

For interest on the Chickasaw incompetents' fund, one hundred dollars.

For interest on the Choctaw general fund, twenty-seven thousand dollars.

For interest on the Creek orphans' fund, four thousand and forty-eight dollars.

For interest on the Delaware general fund, eight thousand nine hundred and thirty dollars.

For this amount, to enable the Secretary of the Interior to pay to the childrens of the Delaware Indians who became citizens of the United States under the provision of the ninth article of the Delaware treaty of July fourth, eighteen hundred and sixty-six, and the children of Betsey Zeigler, who died before completing her citizenship under the provisions of said article, their proportionate share of the money and stocks held in trust by the United States for the Delaware tribe of Indians, fifty-four thousand five hundred and fourteen dollars and twenty-three cents, of which twenty-one thousand four hundred and forty-eight dollars and seven cents shall be deducted from the money-credits of said tribe, and thirty-three thousand and sixty-six dollars and sixteen cents, to be taken equitably from their several kinds of stock, shall be transferred to the Secretary of the Treasury and become the property of the United States: Provided, That if the Secretary of the Interior shall so determine, the whole amount hereby appropriated shall be taken from the money-credits of the tribe, the Secretary of the Interior to designate the funds from which said amounts shall be taken: Provided, That in the case of deceased persons, the Secretary of the interior shall make payment to their legal representatives; and said Delaware children are hereby declared to be citizens of the United States, with all the rights, privileges, and immunities of such; and the Secretary of the Interior is hereby authorized and directed to cause patents to issue in fee-simple to said persons for the lands allotted to them; and in case of the decease of any persons, the said patent shall issue in the names of such deceased persons, including the said Betsey Zeigler, and the title to the lands designated in such patents shall inure to and become vested in the heirs, devisees, or assignees of said deceased patentees, as if the patent had issued to the deceased person during life; and the Secretary of the Interior shall cause patents to be issued in fee-simple in the names of Barbara Zeigler, Martha Zeigler, Samuel Ketchum, Nathan S. Tiblow, and Francis H. Grinter, who belonged to the families of the citizen class, and who died prior to the census of said Indians made by the agent under the provisions of the treaty of July fourth, eighteen hundred and sixty-six, for the lands allotted to them; and the land designated in such patents shall inure to and become vested in the heirs, devisees or assignees of said deceased patentees, as if the patent had issued to the deceased person during life.

For interest on the Iowas' fund, two thousand nine hundred and eighty dollars.

For interest on the Kaskaskias, Weas, Peorias, and Piankeshaws' fund, three thousand nine hundred and one dollars.

For interest on the Kaskaskias, Weas, Peorias, and Piankeshaws' school-fund, one thousand four hundred and forty-nine dollars.

For interest on the Menomonees' fund, nine hundred and fifty dollars.

For interest on the Ottowas and Chippewas' fund, two hundred and thirty dollars.

For interest on the Pottawatomies' educational fund, three thousand three hundred and fifty dollars: Provided, That the sum of one thousand five hundred dollars of above amount may be expended, with the consent of said Indians, for a physician, who shall furnish medicines.

For contingent expenses of trust-funds, one thousand five hundred dollars.

INVESTIGATION OF ALLEGED FRAUDS IN PAYING BOUNTIES TO INDIANS.

For this amount, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to meet expenses incurred by the Department of the interior in investigating alleged frauds in the payment of bounties to members of the First, Second, and Third Regiments of Indian Home-Guards during the years eighteen hundred and seventy one and eighteen hundred and seventy-two, two thousand eight hundred and thirty-four dollars and fifteen cents.

SEC. 2. That the sum of fifteen thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to pay the expenses of the commission of citizens serving without compensation, appointed by the President under the provisions of the fourth section of the act of April tenth, eighteen hundred and sixty-nine, is hereby appropriated; and said Board of Indian Commissioners is hereby continued with all the powers and duties conferred and imposed by existing laws. But nothing herein provided shall be construed to supersede or interfere with the duty heretofore imposed upon said board of commissioners to visit Indian agencies and inspect the vouchers, books and papers thereof.

SEC. 3. That for the purpose of inducing Indians to labor and become self-supporting, it is hereby provided that in distributing the supplies to the Indians for whom the same are appropriated, the agent distributing the same shall require all able-bodied male Indians, between the ages of eighteen and forty-five, to perform service upon the reservation, for the benefit of themselves or of the tribe, at a reasonable rate, to be fixed by the agent in charge, and to an amount equal in value to the supplies to be delivered. And the allowances provided for such Indians shall be distributed to them only upon condition of the performance of such labor, under such rules and regulations as the agent may prescribe: Provided, That the Secretary of the Interior may, by written order, except any particular tribe from the operation of this provision where he deems it proper and expedient. ■

Daily Chronicle.

A Journalistic Murderer.

[Detroit Free Press.]

The other day a compositor in this office got hold of a part of a page of the chirography of G. M. D. Bloss, of the Cincinnati Enquirer. It isn't writing at all, but Bloss seems to kick the ink bottle at a sheet of paper and then send the paper down to the compositors as editorial. This part of a page was used as the foundation of a plot to deliberately destroy a human life. A line or two was written above it, Bloss' page marked "solid," and it was handed to a "jour," who had just struck the office. He claimed to be "lightning" on the "set" and on reading manuscript, and he set up the introductory line like a whirlwind. When he came down to Bloss he grabbed for a cap "A," held it a second, and then dove into the "Y" box. Then he threw that back and picked out a dollar mark. No sentence can commence with a dollar mark, and the typo paused, spat on his hands, and rested one foot on the crossbar of his rack. After a moment he grabbed an "ell," but slowly replaced it, and toyed with an italic "Z." Then he spit on his hands some more, corrugated his brow, and hauled the manuscript under his eyes. It was no go. He held the page further off, close to his nose, slanting to the right, and square before the window, but he couldn't start it, and he knew in his soul that no other human compositor outside of the Enquirer could do it. As afternoon faded into twilight he laid the page aside, set up two or three lines out of his head, and then slipped into his coat, said he'd got to go to the depot to see a friend, and he was gone. In his stick he had set up the words: "Tell my mother that I will meet her on the other shore." He probably will. He was seen at the foot of Griswold street, heard to ask if death by drowning wasn't easier than hanging, and it is probable that his marble form now lies at the bottom of the cold green river, while Bloss is a murderer.

Rubber Overshoes for Horses.

Rubber overshoes for horses are a recent invention, which promises to be a boon to the equine inhabitants of paved cities. The shoe is made and lined in precisely similar manner to the articles of apparel worn by the human race, and, in fact, presents no points of difference save in its shape and its manufacture of the best quality of India-rubber. It is designed as a substitute for the iron shoe, and as a means of preventing the many maladies to which horses' feet are subject. Horses suffering with cracked or contracted hoof, and similar painful hurts, it is said, are quickly cured by the substitution of the rubber covering for the unyielding metal shoe. The elasticity of the former allows the hoof to remain in its natural shape, while protected from abrasion against pavements by the heavy rubber sole beneath. The device is easily removed from or put on the hoof, and hence, while standing in the stall or turned out to pasture, the horse may be left barefooted. In winter time the covering serves as a protection against illness due to the common practice of mingling salt with the ice and snow in city streets, while the roughened surface of the rubber beneath serves to give the animal a foothold in slippery weather. As compared with iron shoes, the cost of the rubber ones is about one-third more, and their weight is about 40 per cent. less, while they are very durable. Sixteen sizes are manufactured, so that accurate fits may be obtained.

Jones' Ear.

[San Francisco Golden Age.]

He was a tall boy, was Jones, and he lived out on the "divide." No one ever thought of calling him a man, though he stood six feet without stockings. Stockings he regarded as an effeminacy only indulged in by tender-footed people, and if there was anything Jones prided himself on, more than his ears, it was his feet. It was often remarked that Jones' feet would require a separate coffin when he "petered out." On the "divide" he was generally considered to be a capitalist, because his subsistence came without effort on his part. And the "divide" was right—majorities always are. Jones' capital stock consisted of his ear—the other one had been "chawed off" extemporaneously by a ruthless "Pike," who once accused Jones of having washed his face twice in a month. Jones spurned the insult, and, without more ado, proceeded to furnish a subject for his private graveyard; but the opposing party in the skirmish managed to encircle Jones' ear with his incisors and gently pulled it off. The effort was too great for human endurance—in two minutes the bitist was a corpse through strangulation. They buried the ear with him, and had a double funeral service read. As the corpse was being interred

Jones remarked, "There wuzn't such another year in Nevayda." His consolation was that it killed the man any way.

From thence dated Jones' fortune. With two ears there was some symmetry, but with that unapproachable ear only remaining, he became the standing wonder of the "divide." In its capacious depth he carried his tobacco—in the summer time he had but to wag and the air on the "divide" became a zephyr—in winter he had only to waft a portion of it over his head and the rain ran off in cataracts.

"Divide" mothers reclaimed their wayward broods by its mention, and divorce suits arose from odious comparison.

But aside from these internal discussions the "divide" was proud of that ear. They took strangers to see it, and won their money betting on its size. The "divide" parson once fainted on seeing Jones' ear fill the doorway, but Jones fanned him back to consciousness again, and the next Sunday's sermon was on the text, "Ye have ears and hear not."

When Bill Stewart, the bald-headed eagle of Nevada, was passing through the "divide" he called on Jones' ear, and remarked that it kind of crawled off with anything in the Senate—and there were some pretty asinine ones there. Jones didn't understand foreign languages, but said that William was a "bully galoot."

Alas! and alas! Great men we can not always have with us. One fair morning the "divide" woke up to a sensation.

Jones was found outside the camp stiff and cold, his ear clean cut off and nowhere visible. They buried him tenderly and shed a few tears. Then they started to find the ear, because without it the "divide" could never hold up its head.

They found it in the bottom of a shaft, but, sad to relate, it was too far gone to be kept. Hauling it up to the surface, they all took a last farewell, and then dumped it back again. They filled up the shaft and read another funeral service. It was the only honor to be done—but it is not every man who has three funerals.

And it may be remarked that there never was and never will be such a phenomenal ear as Jones'.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1874.

Sensible Talk.

Governor Dix spoke in New York city, Monday evening. On hearing loud cries of "How about the third term," he said:

I do not come to thrust any opinion of mine into this canvass; but since I am asked the question I will answer it frankly lest a misconstruction should be put upon my silence. I say then, distinctly, that I am not in favor of third terms. [Enthusiastic cheering.] I proposed some time ago an amendment of the Constitution extending the President's term to six years, making him ineligible the next six; and until this amendment is made I am in favor of the rule which had its origin in the patriotic breast of Washington, and was held sacred by his successors for three-quarters of a century, and has acquired, from practice, a force almost as potential as if engrafted in the Constitution. I do not believe such a purpose exists anywhere. Washington and Jackson were rewarded by their country with the highest distinction in its power to give, and they voluntarily retired from office after having a second time received the highest mark of confidence and gratitude from their countrymen. General Grant [cheers] has been rewarded for his great services to his country by the same high distinction, and I do not doubt that when the proper time arrives, it will be his express desire to be relieved from the cares of office, and give, by his action, additional force to the examples of his illustrious predecessors.

Another Outrage.

A special to the Courier-Journal from Shelby county, Ky., gives the account of a bloody outrage committed Saturday night last. A band of masked men visited a religious meeting, but did no violence beyond halting certain parties as they came out of the church. Afterwards they went to the house of Thomas Ford (white,) where they whipped three negroes and threatened Ford with the same treatment unless he discharged the negroes employed by him. From there the party went to the house of a negro named Barrington, and called him to come outside. Upon his refusal to do so they fired into the house, one bullet striking the daughter of Barrington, sixteen years of age, while stooping on the floor, putting out her eye and burying itself in her shoulder. Two of the band then broke in the door, and after cursing Barrington, rode off. At last accounts the wounded girl was still alive, but in a precarious condition. It is probable that Governor Leslie will take immediate steps to capture and bring to justice the murderous wretches.

—A Fitchburg man developed a fine strategic talent. He was paying a hack fare, when he dropped three bank bills, and the wind whisked them swiftly away. After unavailing search for an hour, a bright idea struck him. He folded a piece of paper and dropped it where the bills fell, followed its flight, and where it rested, there he found also his money.

—A bad little boy in Dover dislocated his arm, Friday morning, while stoning a good little kitten, says an exchange. He should have been a good little boy and stayed at home to stone raisins, and let a bad little kitten climb up his back.

—"Faith, and why did yer cut a hole in me ticket?" said a Wicklow Home Ruler recently, on his first trip by that novel invention, a railway. "Well," replied the ticket porter, "it was in order to let you through."

Next Tuesday, the 3d of November—there will be Congressional elections in Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Texas, South Carolina, Louisiana, Florida and Rhode Island; on the same day, there will be both State and Congressional elections in New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Illinois, Massachusetts, Delaware, Alabama, Missouri, Michigan, California, Kansas, Wisconsin, Mississippi, Minnesota, Nevada.

The turbulent, discontented, warlike Modoc disappeared when Capt. Jack, Schonchin, Boston Charley and Black Jim were executed on the scaffold at Fort Klamath, and those now in existence are leading quiet and peaceable lives in the different reservations to which they have been assigned. Schonchin's followers are living at Yainox, a bleak and dreary district seventy miles northeast of Fort Klamath. They number about 120, including women and children. Jack's people, numbering about 170 persons, are settled in the Indian Territory, under the chieftainship of Scarface Charley. Some sixty of the tribe, who had not been engaged in the hostilities against the whites, and were friendly to them, are living in the new country of the Modocs, which formerly was a part of Siskiyou, in the lava region. There is no perceptible increase in their population, and in a few years they will undoubtedly have ceased to exist as a distinct tribe.

One thing is certain, Tennessee cannot stand another four years of democratic misrule, such as the past four years, and preserve inviolate her honor and credit as a State.

The tender appeal of a travelling trunk which passed through the railroad depot in Scranton, Penn., on Wednesday last, had the desired effect of securing careful handling by the baggage smashers. The trunk was a large, dilapidated Saratoga, and on the lid, in large letters, appeared this touching legend: "I've been through the war. Gentlemen, handle me carefully, as I am growing old." The baggage smashers gathered around the old trunk and read the recommendation carefully; then, reverently removing their hats, they took it up tenderly and deposited it carefully in the baggage car.

For the benefit of democratic voters we may remark that it will be two years yet before the people are called upon to elect a President.

It is stated that ex-Senator Thayer will be returned to the United States Senate from Nebraska in place of Tipton, as the result of the republican victory in that State—a republican gain.

A few days after they called upon the owner, who supposed they had come to square accounts; but before proceeding to business they called for some wine, which was drank and paid for when they started to leave. Being reminded the melons had not been paid for, they could not stop then as they were in a hurry to enter a complaint against him for liquor selling, which they would not do, however, if he would call it square on the melon business. It did not take him long to make up his mind to accede to their very liberal proposition.

Incident of Bull Run.

The editor of the Terre Haute Daily Journal relates the following anecdote of the late Joseph Glenn of Cincinnati:

When Gen. McDowell marched from Arlington Heights to fight the first battle of Bull Run, "Joe Glenn" was then in Washington, and hired a horse and accompanied the army as a correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette. On the day of the battle Glenn rode along with Schenck's brigade, and remained where it held position, close by the stone bridge, during all the day of of the fight. When the battle was ending, and the head of the panic came dashing along the Washington road, Glenn started to mount his horse and fall back on Centreville, but the horse had been swept away by the current of horses, men and wagons, and poor Glenn had to make a foot journey to that village. This he did in his peculiarly leisurely way, and having quite an aversion to fast traveling, took his time for it. He went slow and the panic went fast, and before he had reached Centreville that terrible exhibition of human passion and individual demoralization passed him. In the rear of the panic all was calmness and peace. Over the hills east of Centreville, and heading straight for Washington, dashed on the wild havoc of men, horses, wagons and artillery. Glenn entered Centreville just at dusk, considerably tired and leg weary. He went to the little tavern where he had taken his breakfast the morning before, called for something to eat, took a candle, went to his room, and wrote a letter for the Cincinnati Gazette. This occupied him until 12 o'clock that night, and having finished it, he retired to bed and slept sweetly until morning. In the morning early he took his letter, went to the landlord, and asked him to send it at once to Washington, so that it could go the next day to Cincinnati. The landlord looked at him in astonishment and said: "They have all gone to Washington. There is not a Federal soldier or Yankee in town. They are all running north, pursued by the Confederates, and are by this time on the other side of the Potomac." Glenn was puzzled. He was the last of the Northern Army in Centreville. He had written his letter and slept soundly surrounded by soldiers who would have been but too glad to get his scalp, or to have taken prisoner the correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette. Had the landlord known who his guest was he would have turned him over to the Confederates at once. Glenn took in the situation at a glance, and walked out of the tavern to the hills east of Centreville. There he saw nothing but Confederate soldiers and the Confederate flag. The thing to be done was to get away from there, so Glenn struck for Washington by the most direct route. The day was a dismal and rainy one, but the correspondent of the Gazette made good time, and arrived in Washington about daylight the next morning.

As soon as he arrived he began to inquire for his horse. Ten thousand loose and riderless horses had run back to Washington, or been captured by the enemy. No man who had lost a horse in that miscellaneous retreat back to the capital ever dreamed of getting it again. Joseph Glenn, however, had notions of his own, and he concluded to advertise for his horse in the city papers. He did so, and his friends all laughed at him for it. But "Jo" had confidence in the virtue of printer's ink, and the second day after the advertisement appeared a soldier rode up to his boarding house and inquired for him. Going to the door the soldier told him that he supposed he had his horse, as it suited the description in his advertisement, and pointing to the hitching post, there stood Glenn's horse, saddle, saddlebags and all. "Jo" was delighted, paid the soldier handsomely, took possession of the horse, and turned the laugh on his friends.

Who would ever have thought of stopping at Centreville and writing a letter at such a time and with such surroundings? Who would have thought of advertising for a horse lost in such a terrible retreat as was made by the Federal Army at the battle of Bull Run. And who would have possessed the luck to get the horse, except our old classmate, old friend, but now deceased, Joseph Glenn?

—Apropos of the Tyndall-Darwin theory comes in one of General Schenck's latest stories that he told to the wife of a British cabinet officer, who assured him that "England made America all that she is." "Pardon, madam," said the general, "you remind me of the answer of the Ohio lad in his teens, who, attending a Sunday school for the first time was asked by the teacher, "Who made you?" "Made me?" "Yes." "Why, God made me about so long (holding his hands about ten inches apart,) but I growed the rest."

—A young woman, rather good looking and well-dressed, created a sensation in Norfolk, Va., recently, by riding about the city in a mule-cart, and giving serenades on an accordeon.

Letter From Dartmouth.

HANOVER, October 26.

The race between the Seniors and Sophomores took place on Saturday afternoon. It was one of the finest days of the season, and everything passed off in a very agreeable manner. The crews started at 3.45, the Sophomores taking the lead. When about a third of the way down the course the Seniors were two boats' lengths ahead, but by a magnificent spurt, the Sophomores quickly passed and held the lead until the finish. The Sophomores won in 15 1-2 minutes; the time of the Seniors was 16 1-4 minutes. After the boats were housed the colors were presented to the Sophomores by S. Wiggin, '75, President of the Boat Club. The victorious crew dressed in their rowing suits were put into a carryall and drawn by their classmates from the boat house up to the College buildings, where they were greeted by hearty cheers from the other classes.

The term of the Medical School finishes November 2d; the graduating class has exercises on Wednesday, November 4th. The College has just been the recipient of a case of specimens of the Atlantic Cable, presented by Captain Arthur McArthur Eastman of Concord.

The lecture of Charles Bradlaugh here last Tuesday on "Republicanism in England," is pronounced as being the best that has been delivered here for a number of years.

The bones of Evans, the murderer, having been cured at the Medical College, were sent to New York last week.

In the absence of Professor Young, H. M. Paul, '73, is making good use of the telescope at the Observatory.

It has been stated in the papers that the Dartmouth Glee Club is to give a concert at Portsmouth; this statement I am sorry to say is denied by the members of that organization. "BUG."

A Peculiar Disease.

[Concord Patriot.]

An autopsy was held on the body of Mrs. Eliza J. Hill, who died at her residence in this city, last week. Mrs. Hill has been sick for three years, and her disease has baffled the skill of all the physicians who have attended her. Until a very recent period it was supposed that her difficulty was either sciatic or rheumatic, and it was treated as such; but of late, different symptoms developed, and she was treated for ovarian diseases.

It was found that on the inside of the pelvis was an abscess which was the primordial disease. This had eaten the large flat pelvis bone entirely away, and had worked its way down to the left ovary, completely destroying it. None of the vitals were affected, as the abscess had not reached the intestines before death ensued. The disease was a most peculiar one, as none of the symptoms of abscess were at any time manifest. During the three years of her sickness, the unfortunate woman suffered the most excruciating pain, and death was doubtless a happy relief. It is a matter of satisfaction that this case has been so thoroughly investigated, as it may subserve the interests of medical science in the future, and afford the means of relief to others who may be affected by this unwelcome disease

Of Interest to Wig Wearers.

If you know of anybody who wears false hair, it may be judicious to mention to them that Professor Lindeman announces that he has discovered in the hair sold at the stores "little nodosites collected in colonies of about fifty psorosperms, which are sometimes flattened into discoids. When heat is applied they are transformed into pseudonavicellæ or fusiform corpuscles." Other people may do as they please, but as for myself, I would rather pass onward down the vista of years, beyond the purple boundaries of youth, and into the serene placidity of a passionless old age as bald as a watermelon, than to frisk about with nodosites and fusiform corpuscles in my hair. This information will be valuable for the purpose of detecting persons who wear purchased tresses. When I go to church now and see discoid psorosperms playing their little pranks upon the heads of women in the pew in front of me, I will know that her coiffure is a base capillary fraud, and when I see a spherical nodosite parading around the rim of a man's hat, I will have sufficient evidence that the man wears a delusive wig. The Indians ought to know about this, for then, when one dashes up to a woman with a tomahawk in his hand, and a knife in his teeth, death in his eyes, and a yearning for scalps in his heart, a glimpse of the pseudonavillæ balancing himself on its hind legs on that woman's waterfall, will induce him to put up his artillery and go home in disgust. What the aboriginal American needs is scientific information.

—The telegraph is being introduced into Turner's Falls. The other day hardly five minutes had elapsed after the erection of one of the posts before some enterprising genius posted a bill thereon, and soon two street arabs were attracted to the spot, when the following dialogue ensued: "I say Mickey, what an invention the telegraph is." "Yis, an' here's a despatch broke out on the post."

The Dictates of Common Sense.

Persons who in most things are prompt to obey the dictates of common sense, too often neglect them when they point to the necessity of promptly revitalizing the depleted body and the wearied mind. And yet how foolish and dangerous it is to neglect such monitions! Disease follows closely on the track of weakness and exhaustion. Arrest his silent but rapid stride by prompt invigoration. The most reliable agent that can be selected for this purpose is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a palatable hygeian elixir which possesses the true requisites for toning, regulating and tranquilizing both body and mind, and which is, besides, the chosen remedy of the American people for relieving weakness or disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, as well as the numerous array of complaints which ultimately follow derangements of these organs.

What is the matter?—Your hair looks dry and dead, it breaks off, and is falling out. You dress it with an alcohol and oil mixture or some well advertised Hair Restorer. The hair is poisoned, it is killed. If you would restore it, cast away these things, go buy a bottle of Benrine which can be had of any Druggist, and we will guarantee a change for the better at once! 9

Gatherings in the South.

There has been much written lately that is very dubious about political gatherings and conflict of races, yet there is one class of gatherings all over the South about which there is not even the shadow of doubt, namely, gatherings for the purpose of purchasing the remaining tickets for the next and last Gift Concert of the Public Library of Kentucky, to come off November 30. The South has been impoverished, and a reasonable share of that $2,500,000 then to be distributed will be very acceptable.

MORTALITY PREVENTED.

It would be a moderate estimate to place the number of cases in which Consumption is prevented by the timely use of HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR, at ten thousand per annum. No cough, cold, bronchial affection, sore throat, or other ailment of the organs of respiration, can ever degenerate into a mortal disease, if this palatable and absolutely infallible specific be taken in time and long enough persevered in.

Two young lads complained of for malicious mischief in removing a post in front of the premises of Mr. George Smart, was brought before Judge Page on Tuesday and by him honorably acquitted, there being no evidence to support a case against them. Both of the boys attend school and have the confidence of their teachers, and their acquittal gives general satisfaction to the people who know them best.

The horse attached to Mr. Samuel M. Joy's sewing-machine wagon ran away with the vehicle during the time of the false alarm on Tuesday afternoon, smashed the wagon against a post near the Academy, cleared himself from the wreck and ran furiously down Congress and Pleasant streets. Near the Academy he knocked Miss Charlotte Walker down, and injured her foot severely.

The rooms of the Young Peoples' Union were opened for the season on Monday evening last.

A large audience will greet James T. Fields, Esq., at the lyceum lecture this evening. His subject is "Longfellow." Evening tickets may be purchased at twenty-five cents each.

The false alarm of fire, late Tuesday afternoon, was occasioned by the whistling of a locomotive, which was mistaken for the fire signal.

The Young Men's Bible Class Association of the Christian Society will give an entertainment next Thursday evening at the Court street church. Tickets ten cents; for sale at Buzzell's.

The Troublesome Tramps.

Ohio seems to be troubled with these pests, according to the Springfield Republic, which says: With the first coming on of frosty nights the army of tramps begins its masterly advance and police authorities are overwhelmed with applications nightly for lodgings. Mr. J. D. Stewart, who is one of those in this place authorized to issue station house permits, reports that from two or three per night the number of applications has increased to ten or a dozen, and the "season" only just commenced. Last season we had more than our share of this class of visitors and it cost the county about $1,200 for their "keep." The word went out that Springfield furnished good rations and exacted no work in return and the consequence was that our city became a sort of Mecca for the horde of hungry pilgrims. To equalize the thing somewhat Council has on the eve of passage, an ordinance to establish a chain gang and receive some sort of return for their outlay in the free hotel business. It is now awaiting the opinions of the Solicitor on some points involved, and will be passed at a future meeting.

"Listen to the Mocking Bird."

The number of canary birds in the United States is estimated at 900,000, of which number 300,000 were imported last year. But not one of them has so sweet a note as the Jenkins of the Chicago Tribune. Hear him:

Miss Honore is about the medium height, perhaps slightly below it, slender, and a clear brunette, with regular features, a brilliant, sparkling face, and a dignified carriage.

She is one of the endearing "little women" of the age, with that marvelously clear, creamy, satin-smooth skin of varying olive hue that the dark Eastern women wear, suffused at the lightest look or word with the rich blood of youth. Her eyes are dark and dreamy—not black, but of that indescribable blue-gray that are black with excitement or anger, but gray and luminous when thrilled with looks of love or sympathy; wistful, intelligent, loving eyes, that, at the faintest tale of sorrow, are suffused with tears of divinest pity and that would give a too tender glance to the expression but that they are supplemented by a nez retrousse, which is just piquant enough to be charming. The mouth is soft and girlish till you come to the corners, where the coral hinges are just the least bit unyielding. There is resolution, will, decision there, but not wilfulness. The lovely, rounded chin, so small and perfect, melts away with a curve of infinite loveliness into the slender, shapely neck, cream-white and rounded like the cup of an India lily. The hair is black—not the dull, jet-black that accompanies a swarthy complexion, but the soft, plump-black that, held up to the light, ripples back in purple shadows, fine and silken as an infant's. In form the new Mrs. Grant is smaller than the medium size; a lithe, girlish form, with the drooping shoulders artists so much admire, and with a round, beautifully-modeled bust that leads to the symmetrical proportions of a tiny waist, that small and loving hands might span. "She is such a marvel of perfection," one thinks, on seeing her, from the small, oval, pink-edged ear to the dainty little foot that nestles like a bird in its kid boot, to the tiny hand with the diamond solitaire gleaming on its tapering index fingers.

Still Another Beecher Scandal.

"B. Dadd," of the Norristown Herald, must receive credit for having explained this affair:

A constant reader asked us to explain the Schleswig-Holstein question. As it is the journalist's duty to enlighten the public on all abstruse topics of the day, we cheerfully comply with the request, in as brief and lucid a manner as possible. We have studied this question from Alpha to Omaha, if not further, and what we don't know about it will never be found in an Encyclopedia. It is probably not generally known that Mr. Schleswig is a popular preacher in Denmark, and Mr. Holstein was formerly a member of his church. Bismarck Moulton, who is the mutual friend of William, made a statement that Miss Susan B. Denmark must sit in the lap of the German Confederation, whereupon King Christian—who appears to be the only Christian mixed up in the affair—gets his spinal vertebra up, and desires to know why his subjects have been expelled from Schleswig's church. Mr. Schleswig continues to come up fresh and smiling every Sunday morning, but admits that when he remembers that other hearts must ache, he is willing to step down and out, and even wishes he were dead. King William says such conduct as those would knock his arrangements higher than a kite; and Miss Susan B. Denmark avers that it is no such a thing; that Bismarck's Bessie is a malicious fabricator of fabulous fabrications. Meanwhile Bismarck Moulton prepares another statement seventeen yards and some feet in length, in which he introduces all the letters ever written by the Schleswig and Holstein families for six generations past; and Mr. Schleswig goes over to the Twin Mountain Hotel, in Denmark, and preaches Grace, Mercy and Peace, for the benefit of a poor woman with seven children and the pleurisy. Mrs. Holstein testified before a committee that Mr. Schleswig's pastoral visits were as harmless as those of a brother, and were syrup of squills and other invigorating medicines to her sinsick soul; and that Mr. Holstein neglected his family and wandered after strange polonaises, and took his brain food at a restaurant. It also appears that Holstein threatened to let the feline out of the sack, if his pastor didn't give him $5,000 to keep his paper, "the Brass Era" on its limbs. Then Rev. Schleswig wished he were dead some more, and slid down off the ragged edge of despair and mortgaged his castle on the Rhine to raise the "rhino," and finally all the parties sue one another for enough damage to pay off our National debt and—and—and now the Schleswig-Holstein question is—Who is guilty? and why not?

—An Indian complaining to a rumseller that the price of his liquor was too high, the latter in justification, said, "That it cost as much to keep a hogshead of brandy as to keep a cow." "Maybe he drinks so much water," replied the Indian, "but he no eats so much hay."

FIFTH AND LAST GIFT CONCERT
IN AID OF THE
PUBLIC LIBRARY OF KENTUCKY.

A Card to the Public.

The management have determined to have the drawing of the Fifth and Last Gift Concert of the Public Library of Kentucky on the 30th day of November next. We believe now that all the tickets will be sold, and that the drawing will be a full one; but whether all are sold or not, the drawing will nevertheless certainly come off on the day appointed.

The special object of this card is to call a meeting of the ticket-holders at Public Library Hall, on the 30th of November, to make arrangements in connection with the committee appointed by the Trustees to superintend the counting of the tags representing the numbers of tickets sold. While there is no actual necessity for the presence of ticket-holders, as under our arrangements the interests of all are equally cared for, yet at the same time I would greatly prefer that as many of those interested as can, would attend this meeting and see each for himself how perfectly fair and impartial the distribution must be.

Every arrangement has been made for the drawing—but little more than a month remains for the sale of the remainder of the tickets, and whatever is done must be done promptly.

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Oven Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

ADVICE.

If you wish for a Bonnet both stylish and neat,
That will surely eclipse every other you meet,—
Or a Hat with abundance of outside show
To make up for absence of brains below,—
Or Flowers and Feathers of every hue,
And other things equally useful and new,
At the lowest possible prices, too,
You had better call without further ado

Two Wrinkles.

[American Builder.]

Very often a screw hole gets so worn that the screw will not stay in. Where glue is handy, the regular carpenter makes the hole larger and glues in a large plug, making a nest for an entirely new hole. But this is not always the case, and people without tools, and in an emergency, often have to fix the things at once. Generally leather is used, but this is too hard that it does not hold well. The best of all things is to cut narrow strips of cork, and fill the hole completely. Then force the screw in. This will make as tight a job as if driven into an entirely new hole.

Another hint of a similar character may be useful. One often desires to put a staple into a block of stone. The hole is made, the staple inserted, and lead melted and run in. But unless the hole is made with the bottom larger than the top, the lead will in time work out, if there is much jar or side strain on the iron. Besides, the lead itself is liable to some compression, which admits of looseness, especially after being subjected to very hot fires. A much better article is sulphur. If this be melted and poured in around the staple instead of lead it makes a much more durable job. Besides, it is often more easy to procure sulphur than lead, as every store keeps it that deals in general variety.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Cure that he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

In the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

A Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

—THE—

Art Journal of America,

ISSUED MONTHLY.

"A magnificent conception, magnificently carried out."

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful life-ature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost. Good then, there is the chromo, basta!

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in no narrow sense. True art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate only on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign sources.

PREMIUM FOR 1875.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in oil colors, of the same noble dog whose picture in a former issue attracted so much attention.

"Man's Unselfish Friend"

Will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves such a dog, and the portrait is executed so true to the life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage tells us that his own Newfoundland dog (the finest in Brooklyn) barks at it. Although so natural, no one who sees this chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.

THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. To whom I should be pleased to meet all my old friends and everyone else in want of anything in my line of business. My LIQUORS are PURE, my CIGARS are of the best brands—in fact everything in my stock is first-class and WARRANTED.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessary fees to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of pushing their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

ALEXANDER DITRIRE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Piano and Singing. THOS. P. MOSES, thorough and tasteful Teacher of Music, from A in its alphabet to composition and arrangement, has concluded not to accept a recent call to go South again, but will retain his permanent location in the grand "Old Town by the Sea" where he was born,—and renews the offer of his services as above, with unabated zeal and love for this branch of human refinement. He is no novice or humbug to beg, borrow or buy bolsters to uphold him in an art he does not fully understand in every phase of its beauty; but would respectfully point to the best of references, WORKS, and ability to discover, develope and train inherent talent to accomplish splendid results. His pupils are shining in private and public, here and elsewhere. His many Musical Exhibitions—such as others seldom or never present to the public—have been and will still be his solid credentials, aside from fawning favoritism where true merit is too often absent. Terms, $12 for twelve weeks (twenty-four lessons) at his Music Room, or $15 at the pupil's residence, for Piano or Scientific Vocalization, separately or together. Mr. Moses will also Tune Pianos,—a business "familiar as household words" to him,—and solicits orders. No. 13 EXCHANGE BUILDING.

LAWS OF THE UNITED STATES PASSED AT THE FIRST SESSION OF THE FORTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 73.]

AN ACT making appropriations for the current and contingent expenses of the Indian Department, and for fulfilling treaty stipulations with various Indian tribes, for the year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-five, and for other purposes.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Concluded.

SEC. 4. That none of the moneys appropriated in this act shall be used to pay salaries or allowances of any kind to employees at agencies except where it is expressly appropriated for such purpose; excepting the contingent fund and incidental fund, and except in cases herein otherwise provided, not more than six thousand dollars shall be paid for the salaries of employees at any one agency, in addition to the salary of the agent and interpreter, and not more at any agency than is absolutely necessary; and Indian agents shall be required to state, under oath, upon rendering their quarterly accounts, that the number of employees claimed for were actually and bona fide employed at the agency and at the salary claimed; and that such agent does not, directly or indirectly, receive any part of the compensation claimed for any other employee, or any pecuniary benefit therefrom: Provided, That where there is no officer in the vicinity of an agency who is authorized to administer oaths, the Secretary of the Interior may direct such returns to be made under the certificate of the agent.

SEC. 5. That none of the appropriations herein made shall be paid to any band of Indians while such band is at war with the United States or with the white citizens of any of the States or Territories.

SEC. 6. That it shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Interior, and the officers charged by law with the distribution of supplies to the Indians, under the appropriations provided for in this act, to distribute them and pay them out to the Indians entitled to them, in such proper proportions as that the amount of appropriation shall not be expended before the end of the current year so as to prevent deficiencies; and no expenditure shall be made or liability incurred on the part of the Government on account of the Indian service for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-five, (unless in compliance with existing law,) beyond the amount of money previously appropriated for said service during said year: Provided, That hereafter all bidders under any advertisement published by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs for proposals for goods, supplies, transportation and so forth, for and on account of the Indian service, whenever the value of the goods, supplies, and so forth, to be furnished, or the transportation to be performed, shall exceed the sum of five thousand dollars, shall accompany their bids with a certified check or draft payable to the order of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, upon some United States depository or solvent national bank, which check or draft shall be five per centum on the amount of the goods, supplies, transportation and so forth, as aforesaid; and in case any such bidder, on being awarded a contract, shall fail to execute the same with good and sufficient sureties according to the terms on which such bid was made and accepted, such bidder shall forfeit the amount so deposited to the United States, and the same shall forthwith be paid into the Treasury of the United States; but if such contract shall be duly executed, as aforesaid, such draft or check so deposited shall be returned to the bidder.

SEC. 7. That for the purpose of properly distributing the supplies appropriated for in this act, it is hereby made the duty of each agent in charge of Indians and having supplies to distribute, to make out rolls of the Indians entitled to supplies at the agency, with the names of the Indians and of the heads of families or lodges, with the number in each family or lodge, and to give out supplies to the heads of families, and not to the heads of tribes or bands, and not to give out supplies for a greater length of time than one week in advance.

SEC. 8. That the sum of twenty-four thousand four hundred and eighty dollars and eighty-six cents, being the unexpended balance of an appropriation of "forty thousand dollars to carry on the work of aiding and instructing the Indians of the Central superintendency in the arts of civilization, with a view to their self support," made by act of March third, eighteen hundred and seventy-one, is hereby reappropriated, and may be expended for the purpose named, and shall be available immediately; and the sum of ten thousand dollars is appropriated for the support of schools in the Central superintendency: And provided further, That the unexpended balance of the appropriation made by act of July fifteenth, eighteen hundred and seventy, for educational purposes for the Indians, be, and the same is hereby, re-appropriated.

SEC. 9. That the several appropriations here made for teachers, millers, blacksmiths, engineers, carpenters, physicians, and other persons, and for various articles provided for by treaty stipulations, may be diverted to other uses for the benefit of various Indian tribes, within the discretion of the President, and with the consent of said tribes expressed in the usual manner; and that he cause report to be made to Congress, at the next session thereafter, of his action under this provision.

SEC. 10. That no agent or employee of the United States Government, or of any of the Departments thereof, while in the service of the Government, shall have any interest, directly or indirectly, contingent or absolute, near or remote, in any contract made, or under negotiation, with the Government, or with the Indians, for the purchase or transportation or delivery of goods or supplies for the Indians, or for the removal of the Indians; nor shall any such agent or employee collude with any person who may attempt to obtain any such contract for the purpose of enabling such person to obtain the same. The violation of any of the provisions of this section shall be a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by a fine of not less than five hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and by removal from office; and, in addition thereto, the court shall, in its discretion, have the power to punish by imprisonment of not more than six months.

SEC. 11. That there is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury of the United States not otherwise appropriated, the sum of twelve thousand dollars for the support and relief of the Otoe and Missouria tribe of Indians, to be available immediately; this amount to be used, under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, in rebuilding agency-buildings in place of those recently destroyed by fire, and for the support of the destitute Indians of said tribe: Provided, That the money hereby appropriated shall be repaid to the Treasury of the United States from the proceeds of the sale of the lands of said Indians, heretofore authorized by act of June tenth, eighteen hundred and seventy-two, entitled "An act for the relief of certain tribes of Indians in the Northern superintendency," which repayment the Secretary of the Interior shall cause to be made as soon as the money arising from such sale shall be available.

SEC. 12. That the Secretary of the Interior cause to be prepared and delivered to the Public Printer by the first day of November, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, a tabular statement of the items paid out of the appropriations made for the Indian Department for the year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, each item being placed under the appropriation from which it was paid, in such manner as to show the disposition made of each appropriation and the amount unexpended of each; also an itemized statement of the salaries and incidental expenses paid at each agency for the said year, and the appropriations out of which paid, and the number of Indians at each agency; and that the same be laid before Congress on the first day of the next session; and that the report of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, with the reports of agents, be printed and laid before Congress on the first day of the next session.

The New Pupil.

"Oh, girls! I shall just die, I know I shall!" exclaimed Belle Burnett, going off into a hysterical fit of laughter, which she vainly tried to smother behind an elegant lace-edged handkerchief.

"What is it, you provoking thing? Why don't you tell us so we can laugh too?"

"Well—you—see," she gasped out at last, "we've got a new pupil, the queerest looking thing you ever saw. I happened to be in Madam's room when she arrived. She came in the stage, and had a mite of an old-fashioned hair trunk, not much bigger than a band-box, and she came into Madam's room with a funny little basket in her hand, and sat down as if she had come to stay forever. She said 'are you Madam Gezin? I've come to stay a year at your school.' And then she pulled her handkerchief out of the basket, and unrolled it until she came to an old leather wallet, and actually took out two hundred and fifty dollars and laid it in Madam's hand, saying, 'That is just the amount, I believe: will you please give me a receipt for it?' You never saw Madam look so surprised. She actually didn't know what to say for a minute, but she gave her the receipt, asked a few questions, and had her taken to No. 10, and there she is now, this very minute."

"Well, what was there funny about all that?"

"Why, this: she has red hair tucked into a black net, and looks just like a fright every way. She had on a brown delaine dress, without the sign of a ruffle or trimming of any kind, and the shabbiest hat and shawl you ever saw. You'll laugh, too, when you see her."

Belle Burnett was an only child, and her wealthy father was pleased to gratify her every whim. So besides being far too elegantly dressed for a school girl, she was supplied with plenty of pocket money, and being very generous and full of life and fun, she was the acknowledged leader among Madam's pupils.

When the tea-bell rang, the new-comer was escorted to the dinner-room and introduced to her schoolmates as Miss Fannie Comstock.

She had exchanged her brown delaine for a plain calico dress, with a bit of white edging about the neck. She did look rather queer, with her small, thin freckled face, and her hair brushed straight back from her face, and hidden as much as possible under a large black net, and but for the presence of Madam, her first reception would have been exceedingly unpleasant. She was shy and awkward, and evidently ill at ease among so many strangers. As soon as possible she hastened back to the seclusion of her own room. The next day she was examined and assigned to her place in the different classes, and, to the surprise of all, she was far in advance of those of her age. But this did not awaken the respect of her schoolmates, as it should have done. On the contrary, Belle Burnett and her especial friends were highly incensed about it, and at once commenced a series of petty annoyances, whenever it was safe to do it, which kept poor Fannie miserable indeed, although she seemed to take no notice of it. A few weeks passed by. Her lessons were perfectly recited. She made no complaint of the slights and sneers of her companions, but kept out of their way as much as possible. Her thin face grew paler, however, and there were dark rings about her eyes. A watchful friend would have seen that all these things were wearing cruelly upon her young life. On Saturday the very spirit of wickedness seemed let loose among them. Madam was away; the other teachers were busy in their own rooms. Fannie had been out for a walk, and was near the door of her room when a dozen or more of the girls surrounded her, clasping hands together so she was a prisoner in their midst. For a moment she begged piteously to be released, but they only laughed the more, and began going around and around, singing something which Belle had composed—cruel, miserable, insulting words. She stood for an instant pale and still; then with a piercing cry she burst through the ring, and rushing into her room, closed and locked the door. Through their wild peals of laughter the girls heard a strange moan and a heavy fall.

"I believe she has fainted," said Belle.

"What shall we do?" said another.

For a moment they stood there, sober enough; then one of them ran for the matron and told her that Fannie Comstock had fainted in her room, and the door was locked.

She had a long ladder put to the window, and sent the janitor to see if it was true. Fortunately the window was open, and in a few moments he had unlocked the door from the inside. The girls were huddled together in a frightened group, while Madam lifted the poor girl and laid her upon the bed. She was in violent spasms. The doctor was sent for, but when the spasms ceased alarming symtons set in, and he pronounced it a serious case of brain fever. It is impossible to tell the shame and remorse of the conscience-stricken girls. They were not brave enough to confess their guilt, but hung around the sick room offering their services, vainly wishing that they might atone for it in some way. But their presence only excited the poor sufferer, so they were all sent away. Day after day passed and still she raved in violent delirium. The little trunk was searched, to find some clue to her friends, but there was nothing in it but the plainest, scantiest supply of clothing. Day after day the doctor came, looking grave and anxious, and at last the crisis came. For many hours she lay as if dead, and not a noise was permitted to disturb the awful silence while they waited to see if she would live or die. At last she opened her eyes; and the suspense was relieved by an assuring word from the doctor, that with careful nursing she would soon be well again. But her convalescence was slow and tedious after all.

Her former tormentors dared not speak of what they had done, but sent daily little bouquets of fragrant flowers, or fruit and other delicacies to tempt her returning appetite. Her eyes would light up with surprise and pleasure at the little gifts. Amidst all her wild ravings not a word of complaint at the ill treatment she had received ever escaped her lips.

One day Madam was sitting by her side, and as she seemed to be so much stronger, she ventured to ask after her friends.

"I have no friends, madam; only cousin John, who has a large family of his own, and has never cared for me. Mother died when I was born. I had a step mother, but father died five years ago, and I've taken care of myself ever since."

"And you are only fifteen now?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"How did you ever get the money to pay for a year's board and tuition here?"

"I earned it all, madam—every cent of it. As soon as I was big enough I went into a factory, and earned two dollars a week at first, and finally three and a half, and I worked for my board nights and mornings."

"Poor child!"

"Oh, no, ma'am. I was very glad to do it."

"But how did you keep along so well with your studies?"

"I used to keep a book open on the loom, where I could catch a sentence now and then, and the overseer didn't object, because I always did my work well. You see, madam, I want to be a teacher some time, and I knew I'd have a better chance to learn here than any where else, so I just determined to do it."

"What are your plans for the long vacation?"

"I must go back to the factory and earn enough to get some warmer clothes for the winter. You see, Madam, why I can't afford to dress better."

Madam's heart was full. She bent over the white, thin little face and kissed it reverently.

That evening, when the girls gathered in the chapel for worship, she told Fannie's story. There was not a dry eye in the room. The moment Madam finished, Belle Burnett sprang up, with the tears pouring down her cheeks:

"Oh, Madam! We have been awfully cruel and wicked to that poor girl. We have made fun of her from the first, and she would never have been as sick as she was if we had not tormented her almost to death. I was the most to blame; it was I that led on the rest and we have suffered terribly all these weeks, fearing she might die. You may expel me, or punish me any way you choose, for I deserve it; and I shall go down on my knees to ask her pardon as soon as you will let me see her."

"My child, I am shocked to hear this! I can scarcely believe that any of my pupils would ill-treat a companion because she was so unfortunate as to be plain and poor. But you have made a noble confession, and I forgive you as I believe she will, when she knows how truly you have repented your unkindness." By degrees, as she was able to bear it, one after another went to Fannie and begged her forgiveness, which was freely granted. She said, "I don't wonder you made fun of me. I know I was poorly dressed and awfully homely. I would have pulled every hair out of my head years ago, only I knew it would grow in again as red as ever. But oh! if I could have felt that I had just one friend among you, I could have borne it; but somehow, it just broke my heart to have you all turn against me."

After this she gained rapidly, and one fine morning the doctor said she might join the girls in the drawing-room for an hour before tea. There had been a vast deal of whispering and hurrying to and fro of late among the girls, of which Fannie had been totally unconscious in the quiet seclusion of her room.

At the appointed time Madam herself came to assist her, and, leaning upon her strong arm, the young girl walked feebly through the long hall, and down the stairs.

"My dear; the girls have planned a little surprise for you, to make the hour as pleasant as possible."

She opened the door, seated Fanny in an easy chair, and the girls came gliding in, with smiling faces, singing a beautiful song of welcome. At its close, Belle Burnett, approached and placed a beautiful wreath of flowers upon the head, saying: "Dear Fanny, we crown you our queen to-day, knowing well how far above us all you are in His sight who looketh upon the heart instead of the outward appearance. You have taught us a lesson we shall never forget, and we beg you to accept a token of sincere love and repentance for our treatment of you in the past, which you will find in your room on your return."

Fannie's eyes were full of tears, and she tried to say a few words in reply, but Madam spoke for her, and after another song they followed their newly-crowned queen to the dining-room, where a tempting feast was laid in honor of the occasion. Fannie was quietly, tearfully happy through it all, yet so wearied with the unusual excitement that Madam said she must not see the girls' "Peace Offering" that night. The first thing she saw the next morning was a fine large trunk, and lying upon it a card, "For Miss Fannie Comstock, from her teachers and school-mates." Having opened it, she saw it was packed full of neatly-folded garments; but she had not time to examine its contents until after breakfast, when they left her alone with her wonderful gift. There were pretty dresses and sacques, a fine new hat and parasol, gloves and ribbons, cuffs and collars, undergarments in abundance—indeed everything which a young school-girl could possibly need. Every one of Madam's two hundred and ten pupils had contributed from her choicest and best to furnishing a complete outfit for their less favored mate. At the very bottom was a well-filled writing desk, an album containing all their pictures, and a pretty purse containing five dollars, and the following note from Madam:

MY DEAR CHILD: This shall be a receipt in full for all expenses, during whatever time you may choose to remain in the Seminary, which I present to you as a sincere token of my love and respect.

JEANETTE GEZIN.

They found her at dinner-time on the floor, surrounded by her new treasures, crying like a baby; but it did her good. She was soon able to resume her studies, and was ever after treated with kindness and consideration, even though all her hair came out and left her head as bald as her face, so she had to wear a queer cap-like wig for many weeks. When the long vacation arrived, Belle carried her off to her beautiful home on the Hudson, where, for the first time in her life, she was surrounded with beauty and luxury on every side, and was treated as a loved and honored guest. It was not long before the hateful wig was cast aside, and Fannie's head was covered with a profusion of dark auburn curls, which were indeed a crown of glory that made her pale face almost beautiful.

Gentle, loving and beloved by all, she remained in the Seminary until she graduated with honor, after which Madam offered her the position of head teacher, with a most liberal salary, which she gratefully accepted.

Ebenezer S. Cate's buildings and contents near the Weirs, were burned early Tuesday morning. Loss, $2000; insurance, $1000.

Mr. John Shoff, of Pittsburg, went to Back Lake to gather sweet flag root, and started for home about three o'clock in the afternoon. Not arriving there at night, search was instituted in the evening, and he was found about half way home, by the roadside, dead. From appearances, it is supposed that he became exhausted and sat down, took off his hat, and fell over, as he was found in that position with a pail partly filled with flag root, and his hat beside him. Another theory is that he was poisoned by some root he had eaten.

— In front of the city editor's desk in the editorial rooms of a certain newspaper in New Haven the kind hands of sympathizing printers have placed the following "cautionary signals" in large full face type:

"Oh! have it published in a pamphlet."

"Oh! go hire a hall, and tell us all about it."

"Write it down, and we'll read it next Sunday."

"The eleventh commandment — Thou shalt not buzz."

"Cut it short, or we'll have to get out two editions."

A Monster Cider Establishment.

Battle Creek, an enterprising little city, situated in the center of the apple district of Michigan, has just erected a very extensive establishment for packing, preserving and drying that fruit, and for the manufacture of cider on an elaborate scale. The buildings are just outside of the city, and are located with special reference to easily receiving supplies and making shipments, side tracks from two railroads having been built for their accommodation. The most interesting portion of the establishment is the cider manufactory, a large building filled with a confusion of tanks, tubs, complicated machinery, presses, boilers, engines, etc. The presses, of which there are three of the largest size, are capable of making 400 barrels of cider a day. The apples find their way into the mill hopper through a long bin or trough large enough to hold 10,000 bushels, which passes through the side of the building to the streets, where the fruit can be thrown into it from the farmer's wagons. The cider, as it trickles from the presses, falls into a large vat beneath the floor; thence it is carried through pipes, by means of a force pump, to several tanks in the second story, where it is again filtered. From these rubber hose is led outside the building to the freight cars to be loaded. The empty barrels being placed in the cars, they are filled one at a time by simply turning a stop-cock, which allows the cider to pass from the tanks through the hose and into them. Including the boiled, four kinds of cider are made—the first is the simon-pure juice, the second is a clarified article, and the third is a compound of cider and hops. The last kind has become a very popular drink for bilious persons. A fruit-preserving house four stories high, and of peculiar construction, is another novelty of the establishment. This has a capacity of 30,000 barrels, and fruit placed in it can be kept perfectly sound for three years. The walls are of solid stone 30 inches thick, and the floors and walls are covered and backed up with 10 inches of sawdust, covered with galvanized iron.

Kilt Him.

[Arcadian.]

Mr. Jeremiah O'Flaherty, of Vandewater street, tells a plain, unvarnished tale of his thrilling experience. He was accosted, he says, one evening, or rather morning—he "disremembers" whether it was one, two, or more o'clock—by a dreadful Comanche or Sioux, who rushed at him with uplifted tomahawk. Remarkable presence of mind, great personal strength and uncommon activity of body enabled Mr. O'Flaherty, after a "short, sharp, and decisive" struggle, to wrench away the lethal weapon from the muscular clutch of the Arapahoe. But he was knocked "spacheless" by the "big toss" he got. Shouting "Erin go Bragh, faugh a ballagh," he immediately leaped up again and "wrastled" with the Pawnee. It was "nip and tuck" for a brief space, when the second round terminated in a similar way to the first. The black-hearted Blackfoot was evidently suffering from the severe "punishment," and was unable to follow up his antagonist, while Mr. O'Flaherty had another "cropper." Several hundred rounds were fought with similar results, till at last, with one desperate and well-planted blow, the Cheyenne was laid prostrate, and Mr. O'Flaherty, placing one foot on his neck, faintly said, "Hurroo" and fell senseless by the side of the killed Kiowa. Mr. O'Flaherty woke up under the tender ministrations of a police surgeon, who was strapping up numerous gaping wounds on his head, while a police sergeant poked him in the ribs with his club, and asked, "What the blazes have ye been afther, anyhow?" It may be mentioned, as a coincidence, that Mr. O'Flaherty's brother-in-law, who keeps a cigar store, has purchased a Highlander in full nudity. "Thim Injuns," said he, "are moighty unpopular charackthers. Here's some dthrunken thafe of the wurrrrld knocked the one I had for a sign into a cocked hat, not to mintion a gross of matches. There's not enough lift uv him to make a decent scarecrow in a pertaty patch."

Writing Another Man's Love Letters.

There resided in the lower portion of Rondout, not long since, a swain whose sweetheart dwelt in a distant place, and in communicating with her lover was compelled to call in the aid of a third person, as his early education was defective, perhaps from too frequent indulgence in "playing hookey." To guard against any temptation for the scribe's falling in love with his sweetheart, the young fellow settled upon a married man to perform the duties thereof, and so for a time things worked most harmoniously. The scribe had been there himself, and, profiting by his experience, he penned such deliciously gushing letters to Mary Ann—in the name of George, of course—that the little maid soon surrendered the citadel of her heart to George, and promised in due time to surrender her hand also. Now, time in its flight caused the swain to move to a neighboring river town to pursue his calling, but it was necessary to keep up the correspondence with Mary Ann in the same handwriting, so George got a friend in his new home to write the tender messages and mail them to the scribe in this city to copy and post. The plan succeded admirably for a time, but on one ill-fated day the scribe, after inditing a most loving epistle to Mary Ann, ending of course, with a prayer for a reply by a return mail, in a fit of abstraction signed his own instead of George's name. The return was a female, and no less a one than Mary Ann's own mother, who searched out the scribe, and laying his last tender effusion to her daughter before his astonished eyes, asked him, in such tones as only an outraged mother can command, how dared he, a married man, with a family, write such a letter to her innocent lamb of a daughter. Then that scribe had to rise and explain how he had been engaged in an amicable fraud, and the words must not be taken as an expression of his own sentiments—oh, no! by no means,—but those of George. His explanations, however, fully satisfied the matron, and all is again serene.

A Woman's Cold Feet.

[Max Adeler.]

Mrs. Battles suffers from cold feet, and the other night she warmed up a brick, intending to take it to bed with her. She laid it down by the bedside while she attended to the baby, and then forgot about it and turned in. After a while Battles came over to the bedroom, and when he had assumed his night shirt, he began to say his prayers. When he was about half through, he happened to move his knee a little to the left, and it came in contact with the brick. For an instant he thought that something had stung him, and, jumping up, he came back to ascertain what it was. He saw the brick lying there, but it never occurred to him that this was the cause of the trouble, so he picked it up for the purpose of throwing it out of the window. Then he suddenly dropped it with a cry of pain, and, after an indignant denunciation of Mrs. Battles, he procured a piece of paper, and in a furious rage hurled the brick through the window sash. It hit a policeman who happened to be standing on the pavement below, and in less than ten minutes Battles was on his way to the station-house, where he was locked up all night on a charge of assault and battery. He was released in the morning after paying $20 fine. He has not finished his prayers yet, and Mrs. Battles now warms her feet with a flannel petticoat.

—There was at one time in the city of London a literary society which met periodically to read selections of prose or poetry, each member being compelled, under penalty of a fine, to discover and amend the errors of the reader who preceded him. On a certain occasion one of the verses of the "Maid of Athens" had been rendered so well that, when it came to the next member's turn to read, he, perplexed and desperate, yet determined to find fault rather than pay a fine, exclaimed: "It appears to me, gentlemen, that the last reader pronounced the word 'die' as if the 'i' was not dotted."

—A Richmond man, who had been complained of for keeping a vicious dog, put the animal upon the stand as a witness. On being asked if he would bite any one, he uttered a peculiar noise, and shook his head. He was then asked if he would bite if his master set him on and replied in the affirmative, by nodding his head and barking. When asked if he would bite the Court he shook his head vigorously, and this secured for him an honorable acquittal.

—It is a curious fact that, while business of every kind is depressed, and the wages of labor are being considerably reduced, the prices of billiards, and boiled chestnuts and opera tickets, and horse hire and sleeve-buttons, and deviled crabs, and other necessaries of life remain unchanged. This is probably owing to the grasshopper plague in the West.

—A Western paper announces the death of a lady celebrated for the "purity of her character and complexion."

FIFTH AND LAST GIFT CONCERT

IN AID OF THE

PUBLIC LIBRARY OF KENTUCKY.

A Card to the Public.

The management have determined to have the drawing of the Fifth and Last Gift Concert of the Public Library of Kentucky on the 30th day of November next. We believe now that all the tickets will be sold, and that the drawing will be a full one; but whether all are sold or not, the drawing will nevertheless certainly come on the day appointed.

The special object of this card is to call a meeting of the ticket-holders at Public Library Hall, on the 28th of November, to make arrangements in connection with the committee appointed by the Trustees to superintend the counting of the tags representing the number of tickets sold. While there is no actual necessity for the presence of ticket-holders, as under our arrangements the interests of all are equally cared for, yet at the same time I would greatly prefer that as many of those interested as can, would attend this meeting and see each for himself how perfectly fair and impartial the distribution must be.

Every arrangement has been made for the drawing—but little more than a month remains for the sale of the remainder of the tickets, and whatever is done must be done promptly.

Foreign advices state that a war with Germany is anticipated by Russia, growing out of the demand to be made by Bismarck for the restoration of the German provinces of Russia.

At a Cabinet meeting, Tuesday, President Grant said that he was not a candidate for a third term and that he thought it beneath the dignity of the office of President of the United States to give any public expression to his opinions on such a subject. He regards the discussion as an idle newspaper sensation, a political trick and a stupid farce.

Schooner William V. Hutchings of Gloucester lost the captain and Rufus Spinney while out in a dory attending their trawls on the Grand Banks.

The brig Lophema, from Liverpool for Baltimore, picked up from a raft five persons belonging to the steamship Mary, which foundered on the voyage from Glasgow to Trinidad.

It is reported that thousands of people in southwestern Nebraska are in a state of utter destitution and on the verge of starvation.

Slim Jim, the Monte King.

[Cor. Sacramento Record.]

We are gliding through the canyon of the Truckee River, at night, nine out of ten of the passengers are dosing, when suddenly the door opens, and in with the cold night comes the queerest specimen of humanity I ever saw. One side of the slouched hat is pinned up, and by the lamplight discloses a face that is young and not unhandsome, a pair of honest blue eyes, and a good forehead. The beard is unshorn, however, the hair unkempt, and every lineament of the countenance betrays unmistakable verdancy. It requires no particular knowledge of character to decide that the fellow is a green Missourian, fresh from the primitive precincts of Pike county. One leg of the corduroy pants is stuffed into the top of an old cowhide boot. These and the woolen shirt, and the dilapidated vest and coat, render his costume decidedly seedy. As if totally oblivious of the situation and surroundings, he begins humming in a low, musical voice—

"Away down South in Dixie, Away, away."

Keeping time to his weird song, he waltzes with a light, shuffling step the entire length of the car, and in a twinkling has disappeared. He has molested no one, noticed no one, and yet everybody is awake and talking about this strange personage. He has not awakened them by his humming song or shuffling dance so much as by his strange indescribable tone, manner and conduct. The boy on the front seat is convulsed with laughter, the young miss across the aisle giggles with glee, broad smiles overspread the faces of men and matrons, and the more serious mutter, "Poor fellow, he is crazy." They are as unconscious of the person at whom they have been looking as of the scenery through which they have been gliding. Ah! that good wife would scarcely have awakened her drowsy husband to "look at that fellow," had she imagined for an instant that it was "the terrible Slim Jim," chiefest of the monte sharps. In a little time he returns, and with the same abstracted air proceeds to walk through the car. Impelled by curiosity, several of us follow him into the smoking car. He is surrounded by a group of laughing fellows, who are listening to his story. At Truckee, he said, a lady had stepped up to the ticket office to buy her ticket and found that her purse was missing. She had asked him for $40, and promised to pay him when she got aboard the train. He let her have the money, and now had gone "clean through" the cars without finding her. He told the story in such a droll manner that everybody laughed, even while they pitied the poor fellow's loss. He seemed to care but little, however, for he drew from his pocket a large leathern bag, fully eighteen inches in length, that was half full of shining gold pieces. He told how he had been swindled out of some of his money by the fellows called "monte sharps," and proceeded to illustrate the manner in which they had fooled him. Believing that he had thoroughly learned the game from the rascals, he offered to bet that no one could tell the ace of diamonds, and in less than five minutes he had lost $400 to well-dressed gentlemen who stood around. His hands moved so awkwardly that a child could pick out the right card.

No man ever saw $18,000 placed conveniently within his grasp who was not tempted to covet the lucre. So it was with the black-visaged man who sprang eagerly from his seat as soon as the greenhorn began losing his money. Of all the men in the car this man was the most perfect villain, if God's handwriting in his countenance was not wholly unintelligible. Carried away with the one idea of stealing the Missourian's money, this fellow planked down his cash, his watch, his gold chain, and—lost! All this occupied not over ten minutes, including the waltz, the game, and the winning. Just as the fellow turned the wrong card, a low whistle from the further end of the car announced the coming of the conductor.

Quicker than "scat" the cards disappeared, the cappers and all hands dropped into their seats, Slim Jim drew his hat down over his eyes, and the victim, after glancing fiercely around for a moment, settled back into his seat in moody silence. The conductor entered and passed slowly through the car, but not a single hint did he obtain of the fact that a game had been going on. Hardly had he left the car ere the villanious-looking victim demanded another chance to bet. From another pocket he had drawn $20, his last cent, and eagerly asked for a "sight." Coolly disregarding his importunities, Slim Jim said, "No sir; I don't want to break you." In another minute he had disappeared through the door, dancing and humming, "Away, away."

Circuit Court.

On Wednesday Charles Miller was sentenced to six months in jail for indecent assault on a little girl.

Mrs. Mary Tallant, of Durham, was tried for assault on a servant girl. Case given to the jury in the evening.

Laconics.

The Coroner's jury summoned some time ago by Coroner Rider to inquire into the cause of the death of the woman found in a pond at East Kingston, returned a verdict stating that she came to her death by some means unknown to the jury. They also state in their verdict that they are unable to identify the body.

The town of Sutton has a town insurance company which has been in operation 25 years. The average amount of property insured has been $120,000, the whole losses during that time being $75—the largest loss being about $45.

"Winter Arrangements" go into operation on the navy yard on Monday, Nov. 2d. Working hours will be from 7:40 A. M. until noon, and from 12:40 P. M. to 4:30.

A woman was divorced from her husband (plea cruelty) in the Circuit Court on Wednesday, the parties having been married in 1827, and the man being 64 years old. The pair have had thirteen children, most if not all whom are living, and nearly all married. We have not heard in whose custody the "children" are placed.

The new "steam-sloop No. 1" will be taken to Boston during the present week, to receive her boilers and machinery. She was ballasted and had a temporary rudder fitted on Wednesday, and will be towed round by the Speedwell, assisted by a steamer from the Charlestown navy yard.

With all the pleasure imaginable we record the fact that we have a hundred or more readers of this paper who peruse it mornings from the doorsteps of subscribers as regularly as the sun rises, and thus save three cents every day. This may be all right but it is not exactly the thing after having stolen your reading to throw the paper down on the door-sill or sidewalk unfolded and rumpled. Please, bummers, leave them as you find them!

The Solemn Book Agent.

[Detroit Free Press.]

He was tall and solemn and dignified. One would have thought him a Roman Senator on his way to make a speech on finance, but he wasn't—singularly enough, he wasn't. He was a book agent. He wore a linen duster, and his brow was furrowed with many care-lines, as if he had been obliged to tumble out of bed every other night of his life to dose a sick child. He called into a tailor shop on Randolph street, removed his hat, took his "Lives of Eminent Philosophers" from its cambric bag and approached the tailor with:

"I'd like to have you look at this rare work."

"I haf no time," replied the tailor.

"It is a work which every thinking man should delight to peruse," continued the agent.

"Zo?" said the tailor.

"Yes, it is a work on which a great deal of thought has been expended, and it is pronounced by such men as Wendell Phillips to be a work without a rival in modern literature."

"Makes anybody laugh when he zees it?" asked the tailor.

"No, my friend, this is a deep, profound work, as I have already said. It deals with such characters as Theocritus, Socrates and Plato and Ralph Waldo Emerson. If you desire a work on which the most eminent author of our day has spent years of study and research, you can find nothing to compare with this."

"Does it shpeak about how to glean cloze?" anxiously asked the man of the goose.

"My friend, this is no receipt-book, but an eminent work on philosophy, as I have told you. Years were consumed in preparing this volume for the press, and none but the clearest mind could have grasped the subjects herein discussed. If you desire food for deep meditation you have it here."

"Does dis book say sumding about der Prussian war?" asked the tailor, as he threaded his needle.

"My friend, this is not an every-day book, but a work on philosophy—a work which will soon be in the hands of every profound thinker in the country. What is the art of philosophy? This book tells you. Who were and who are our philosophers? Turn to these pages for a reply. As I said before, I don't see how you can do without it."

"Und he don't haf anydings about some fun, eh?" inquired the tailor, as the book was held out to him.

"My friend, must I again inform you that this is not an ephemeral work—not a collection of nauseous trash, but a rare, deep work on philosophy. Here, see the name of the author. That name alone should be proof enough to your mind that the work cannot be surpassed for profundity of thought. Why, sir, Gerrit Smith testifies to the greatness of this volume!"

"I not knows Mr. Schmidt—I make no cloze mit him," returned the tailor in a doubting voice.

"Then you will let me leave your place without having secured your name to this volume! I cannot believe it! Behold what research! Turn these leaves and see these gems of richest thought! Ah! if we only had such minds and could wield such a pen! But we can read, and in a measure we can be like him. Every family should have this noble work. Let me put your name down; the book is only $12."

"Zwelve dollars for der book! Zwelve dollar und he has noddings about der war, und no fun in him, or say noddings how to get glean cloze! What you take me for, mister? Go right away mit dat book or I call der bolice and haf you locked up pooty quick!"

New Publications.

We have received from Oliver Ditson & Co., No. 227 Washington Street, Boston, the following pieces of new music: Smuggler Galop, by J. S. Knight; Boat Song, G. D. The Dictates of Common Sense.

Persons who in most things are prompt to obey the dictates of common sense, too often neglect them when they point to the necessity of promptly revitalizing the depleted body and the wearied mind. And yet how foolish and dangerous it is to neglect such monitions! Disease follows closely on the track of weakness and exhaustion. Arrest his silent but rapid stride by prompt invigoration. The most reliable agent that can be selected for this purpose is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a palatable hygeian elixir which possesses the true requisites for toning, regulating and tranquilizing both body and mind, and which is, besides, the chosen remedy of the American people for relieving weakness or disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, as well as the numerous array of complaints which ultimately follow derangements of these organs.

MORTALITY PREVENTED.

It would be a moderate estimate to place the number of cases in which Consumption is prevented by the timely use of HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR, at ten thousand per annum. No cough, cold, bronchial affection, sore throat, or other ailment of the organs of respiration, can ever degenerate into a mortal disease, if this palatable and absolutely infallible specific be taken in time and long enough persevered in.

REPRINTS
OF THE
British Periodicals.

The political ferment among the European nations, the strife between Church and State, the discussion of Science in its relation to Theology, and the constant publication of new works on these and kindred topics, will give unusual interest to the leading foreign Reviews during 1875. Nowhere else can the inquiring reader find in a condensed form the facts and arguments necessary to guide him to a correct conclusion.

STOVES! STOVES!

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gem, Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Open Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL is a new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood-root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or Inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

A Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

—THE—

Art Journal of America,

ISSUED MONTHLY.

"A magnificent conception, magnificently carried out."

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of the ordinary periodicals. A single elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is unrivalled in its original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there is the chromo, besides!

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in no narrow sense. True art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate only on ground of intrinsic merit. Thus, while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign sources.

PREMIUM FOR 1875.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in oil colors, of the same noble dog whose picture in a former issue attracted so much attention.

"Man's Unselfish Friend"

Will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves such a dog, and the portrait is executed so true to the life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal himself. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage tells us that his own Newfoundland dog (the finest in Brooklyn) barks at it! Although so natural, no one who sees this chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.

THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. To every series of 5000 subscribers, 100 different pieces, valued at over $2,500, are distributed as soon as the series is full, and the awards of each series as made, are to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.

TERMS.

One Subscription, entitling to THE ALDINE one year, the Chromo and the Art Union,

SIX DOLLARS PER ANNUM, IN ADVANCE.

(No charge for postage.)

Specimen copies of THE ALDINE, fifty cents.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates; each for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON, President.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

LAWS

OF THE

UNITED STATES

PASSED AT THE

FIRST SESSION OF THE FORTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 74.]

AN ACT to amend and supplement an act entitled "An act to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States," approved March second, eighteen hundred and sixty-seven, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the act entitled "An act to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States," approved March second, eighteen hundred and sixty-seven, be and the same is hereby amended and supplemented as follows: That the court may, in its discretion, on sufficient cause shown, and upon notice and hearing, direct the receiver or assignee to take possession of the property, and carry on the business of the debtor, or any part thereof, under the direction of the court, when, in its judgment, the interests of the estate as well as of the creditors will be promoted thereby, but not for a period exceeding nine months from the time the debtor shall have been declared a bankrupt: Provided That such order shall not be made until the court shall be satisfied that it is approved by a majority in value of the creditors.

SEC. 2. That section one of said act be, and it is hereby, amended by adding thereto the following words: "Provided, That the court having charge of the estate of any bankrupt may direct that any of the legal assets or debts of the bankrupt, as contradistinguished from equitable demands, shall, when such debt does not exceed five hundred dollars, be collected in the county of the State where such bankrupt resides having jurisdiction of claims of such nature and amount."

SEC. 3. That section two of said act be, and it is hereby is, amended by striking out, in line ten, the words, "the same," and inserting the word "any" and by striking out after the words "adverse interest," in line twelve, the words "or owing any debt to such bankrupt."

SEC. 4. That unless otherwise ordered by the court, the assignee shall sell the property of the bankrupt, whether real or personal, at public auction, in such parts or parcels and at such time and places as shall be best calculated to produce the greatest amount with the least expense. All notices of public sales of real estate shall be by advertisement in one of the newspapers of the county where such real estate is situated, such number and amount shall not answer the requirements of this section, the proceedings shall be dismissed, and, in case bankruptcy commenced, with costs. And if such person shall be adjudged a bankrupt, the assignee may recover back the money or property so paid, conveyed, sold, assigned, or attended, contrary to this act: Provided, That the person receiving such payment or conveyance had reasonable cause to believe or fear that he was insolvent, or that the act done was a fraud on this act was intended; and such person, if a creditor, shall not, in cases of actual fraud on his part, be allowed to prove for more than a moiety of his debt; and the limitation on the proof of debts shall apply to cases of voluntary as well as involuntary bankruptcy. And the period of one month under this section may be sufficiently verified by the oaths of the first five signers thereof, if so many there be. And if any of said acts or deeds have been done within three days, in which such petition is to be filed, the same may be signed and verified by the oath or oaths of the attorney or other person acting as agents of such signers, and in computing the number of creditors, as aforesaid, who shall join in such petition, creditors whose respective claims are not exceed two hundred and fifty dollars shall not be reckoned. But if there be no creditors whose debts exceed said sum of two hundred and fifty dollars, or if the requisite number and amount shall not be reckoned. But if there be no creditors whose debts exceed said sum of two hundred and fifty dollars, or if the requisite number of creditors holding debts exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars fail to sign the petition, the creditors having debts of a less amount shall be reckoned for the purposes aforesaid."

SEC. 13. That section forty of said act be amended by striking at the end thereof the following words "And if, on the return-day of the order to show cause as aforesaid, the court shall be satisfied that the requirement of section thirty-nine of said act as to the notice and publication of petitioning creditors has been complied with, or if, within the time provided for in section thirty-nine of this act, creditors sufficient in number and amount shall sign such petition so as to make a total of one-fourth in number of the creditors and one-third in the amount of the provable debts against the bankrupt, as provided in said section, the court shall so adjudge, which judgment shall be final; otherwise it shall dismiss the proceedings, and, in cases hereafter commenced, with costs."

SEC. 14. That section forty-one of said act be amended as follows: After the word "bankruptcy," in line eight, strike out all of said section and insert the words, "Or, at the election of the debtor, the court may, in its discretion, award a venire incias to the marshal, or, in the district, returnable within ten days before him for the trial of the facts set forth in the petition, at which time the trial shall be had, unless adjourned for cause. And unless, upon such hearing or trial, it shall appear to the satisfaction of said court, or of the jury, as the case may be, that the allegations of said petition are true, or if it shall appear that the debtor has paid and satisfied all liens upon his property, in case the existence of such liens was the sole ground of the proceeding, the proceeding shall be dismissed, and the respondent shall recover costs; and all proceedings in bankruptcy may be discontinued on reasonable notice and hearing, with the approval of the court, and upon the assent, in writing, of such debtor, and not less than one-half of his creditors in number and amount; or, in case at the creditors and such debtor assent thereto, such discontinuance shall be ordered and entered; and all parties shall be remitted, in either case, to the same rights and duties existing at the date of the filing of the petition for bankruptcy, except so far as such courts shall have been already administered and disposed of. And the court shall huge power to make all needful orders and decrees to carry the foregoing provision into effect."

SEC. 15. That section eleven of said act be amended by inserting the words "and valuation" after the word "inventory" in the twenty first line; and that section twenty-two be amended by inserting the words "and valuation" after the word "inventory" in the nineteenth line.

SEC. 16. That section forty-nine of said act be amended by striking out after the word "the" in line five, the words "supreme courts," and inserting in lieu thereof "circuit courts," and in lin six, after the word "States," inserting the words "subject to the general superintendence and jurisdiction conferred upon circuit courts by section two of said act."

COMPOSITION WITH CREDITORS.

SEC. 17. That the following provisions be added to section forty-three of said act: That in all cases of bankruptcy now pending, or to be hereafter pending, by or against any person, whether an adjudication in bankruptcy shall have been had or not, the creditors of such alleged bankrupt may, at a meeting called under the direction of the court, and upon not less than ten days' notice to each known creditor of the time, place and purpose of such meeting, such notice to be personal or otherwise, as the court may direct, resolve that a composition proposed by the debtor shall be accepted in satisfaction of the debts owing by him from the debtor, and such resolution shall, to be operative, have been passed by a majority in number and three-fourths in value of the creditors of the debtor assembled at such meeting either in person or by proxy, and shall be confirmed by the signature thereto of the debtor and two-thirds in number and one-half in value of all the creditors of the debtor. And in calculating a majority for the purposes of a composition under this section, creditors whose respective claims are not exceeding fifty dollars shall be reckoned in the majority in value, but not in the majority in number; and the value of the debts of secured creditors above the amount of such security, to be determined by the court, shall, as nearly as circumstances admit, be estimated in the same manner as provided in section forty-one. Any secured creditor who shall not be entitled to vote upon or sign such resolution without first relinquishing such security, shall not be a creditor of the estate.

The debtor, unless prevented by sickness or other cause satisfactory to such meeting, shall be present at the meeting, and shall answer all inquiries made of him; and he, or, if he be so prevented from being at such meeting, some one in his behalf, shall produce to the meeting a statement showing the whole of his assets and debts, and the nature and amount of the creditors to whom such debts respectively are due.

Such resolution, together with the statement of the debtor as to his assets and debts, shall be presented to the court; and the court shall, upon notice to all the creditors of the debtor of not less than five days, and upon hearing, inquire whether such resolution has been passed in the manner directed by this section; and if satisfied that it has been so passed, it shall, subject to the provisions hereinafter contained, upon being satisfied that the same is for the best interest of all concerned, cause such resolution to be recorded and statement of assets and debts to be filed; and until such record and filing shall have taken place, such resolution shall be of no validity. And any creditor of the debtor may inspect such record and statement at all reasonable times.

The creditors may, by resolution passed in the manner and under the circumstances aforesaid, add to, or vary the provisions of, any composition previously accepted by them, without prejudicing the persons taking interests under such provisions who do not assent to such addition or variation. And any such additional resolution shall be presented to the court in the same manner and proceeded with in the same way and, with the same consequences as the resolution by which the composition was accepted in the first instance. The provisions of a composition accepted by such resolution in pursuance of this section shall be binding on all the creditors whose names and addresses and the amount of the debts due to whom are shown in the statement of the debtor produced at the meeting at which the resolution shall have been passed, but shall not affect or prejudice the rights of any other creditors.

Where a debt arises on a bill of exchange or promissory note, if the debtor shall be ignorant of the holder of any such bill of exchange or promissory note, he shall be required to state the amount of such bill or note, the date on which it falls due, the name of the acceptor of the person to whom it is payable, and any other particulars within his knowledge respecting the same; and the insertion of such particulars shall be deemed a sufficient description by the debtor in respect to such debt.

Any mistake made inadvertently by a debtor in the statement of his debts may be corrected upon reasonable notice, and with the consent of a general meeting of his creditors.

Every such composition shall, subject to priorities declared in said act, provide for a pro-rata payment or satisfact on in money, to the creditors of such debtor in proportion to the amount of their unsecured debts, or their debts in respect to which any such security shall have been duly surrendered and given up.

The provisions of any composition made in pursuance of this section may be enforced by the court on motion made by a creditor, or debtor by any person interested, and on reasonable notice; and any disobedience of the order of the court made on such motion shall be deemed a contempt of court. Rules and regulations of court may be made in relation to proceedings of composition herein provided for in the same manner and to the same extent as the same are provided by law in relation to proceedings in bankruptcy.

If it shall at any time appear to the court, on notice, satisfactory evidence, and hearing, that a composition under this section cannot, in consequence of legal difficulties, or for any sufficient cause, proceed without injurious delay to the creditors or to the debtor, the court may refuse to accept and confirm such composition, or may set the same aside; and, in either case, the debtor shall be proceeded with as a bankrupt in conformity with the provisions of law, and proceedings may be had accordingly; and the time during which such composition shall have been in force shall not, in such case, be computed in calculating periods of time prescribed by said act.

SEC. 18. That from and after the passage of this act the fees, commissions, charges, and allowances, excepting actual and necessary disbursements, of, and to be made by the officers, clerks, marshals, messengers, assignees, and registers in cases of bankruptcy, shall be reduced to one-half of the fees, commissions, charges, and allowances therefore provided for or made in like cases: Provided, That the preceding provision shall be and remain in force until the justices of the Supreme Court of the United States shall make and promulgate new rules and regulations in respect to the matters aforesaid, under the powers conferred upon them by sections ten and forty-seven of said act, and no longer; which duties they shall perform as soon as may be. And said justices shall have power under said sections, by general regulations, to simplify and reduce as far as in their judgment will conduce to the benefit of creditors, to consolidate the duties of the register, assignee, marshal, and clerk, and to reduce fees, costs, and charges, to the end that prolixity, delay, and unnecessary expense may be avoided. And no register or clerk of court, or any partner or clerk of such register or clerk of court, or any person having any interest with either in any fees or emoluments in bankruptcy, or with whom any register or clerk shall have any interest in respect to any matter in bankruptcy, shall be or counsel, solicitor, or attorney, either in or out of court, in any suit or matter pending in bankruptcy under the circuit or district court of his district, or in an appeal therefrom. Nor shall they, or either of them, be executor, administrator, guardian, or trustee, assignee, referee, or divider, or assignee of or upon any estate within the jurisdiction of either of said courts of bankruptcy, nor be interested, directly or indirectly, in the fees or emoluments arising from either of said trusts. And the words "except such as are established by this act or by law," in section ten of said act, are hereby repealed.

SEC. 19. That it shall be the duty of the marshal of each district, in the case of the first and last, to report to the clerk of the district court of such district, in a tabular form, to be prescribed by the justices of the Supreme Court of the United States, as well as such other or further information as may be required by said justices.

First, the number of cases in bankruptcy in which the warrants provided in section twenty of said act has come to his hands during the year ending June thirtieth, preceding;

Secondly, how many such warrants were returned, with the fees, costs, expenses, and emoluments thereof, respectively and separately;

Thirdly, the total amount of all other fees, costs, expenses, and emoluments, respectively and separately, earned or received by him during such year from or in respect of any matter in bankruptcy;

Fourthly, a summarized statement of all fees, costs, and emoluments, exclusive of actual disbursements in bankruptcy, received or earned for such year;

Fifthly, a summarized statement of all actual disbursements in such cases for such year.

And in like manner, the register shall, in the same month and for the same year, make a report to such clerk, of,

First, the number of voluntary cases in bankruptcy coming before him during said year;

Secondly, the amount of assets and liabilities, as nearly as may be, of the bankrupts;

Thirdly, the amount and rate per centum of all dividends declared;

Fourthly, the disposition of all such cases;

Fifthly, the number of compulsory cases in bankruptcy coming before him, in the same way;

Sixthly, the amount of assets and liabilities, as nearly as may be, of such bankrupt;

Seventhly, the disposition of such cases;

Eighthly, the amounts and rate per centum of all dividends declared in such cases;

Ninthly, the total amount of fees, charges, costs, and emoluments of every sort, received or earned by such register during said year in each class of cases above stated.

And in like manner, every assignee shall, during said month, make like return to such clerk of,

First, the number of voluntary and compulsory cases, respectively and separately, in his charge during said year;

Secondly, the amount of assets and liabilities therein respectively and separately;

Thirdly, the total receipts and disbursements therein, respectively and separately.

Fourthly, the amount of fees, costs, and emoluments paid or declared, and the rate per centum thereof, in each class, respectively and separately;

Fifthly, the total amount of all his fees, charges, and emoluments, of every kind therein, earned or received;

Sixthly, the total amount of expenses incurred by him for legal proceedings and counsel-fees;

Seventhly, the disposition of the cases respectively;

Eighthly, a summarized statement of both classes as aforesaid.

And in like manner, the clerk of said court, in the month of August in each year, shall make up a statement for such year, ending June thirtieth, of,

First, all such bankruptcy pending at the beginning of the said year;

Secondly, all of such cases disposed of;

Thirdly, all dividends declared therein;

Fourthly, the number of reports made from each assignee therein;

Fifthly, the disposition of all such cases;

Sixthly, the number of assignees' accounts filed and settled;

Seventhly, whether any marshal, register, or assignee has failed to make a return of such clerk the reports by this act required, and, if any have failed to make such reports, their respective names and residences.

And such clerk shall report in respect of all cases begun during said year.

And he shall make a classified statement, in tabular form, of all his fees, charges, costs, and emoluments, respectively, earned or accrued during the said year, giving credit as aforesaid for the same accrued, and also the sum of all moneys paid into and disbursed out of court in bankruptcy, and the balance in hand at the end of said year.

And all the statements and reports herein required shall be under oath, and signed by the persons respectively making the same.

And said clerk shall, in said month of August, transmit every such statement and report so filed with him, together with his own statement and report aforesaid, to the Attorney-General of the United States.

Any person who shall violate the provisions of this section shall, on motion made by the district court of the Attorney-General, be by the district court dismissed from his office, and shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not more than five hundred dollars, or by imprisonment not exceeding one year.

SEC. 20. That in addition to the officers now authorized to take proof of debts against the estate of a bankrupt, notaries public are hereby authorized to take such proof, in the manner and under the regulations provided by law; such proof to be certified by the notary and attested by his signature and official seal.

SEC. 21. That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act be, and the same are hereby, repealed.

Approved, June 22, 1874.

—An erring husband, who had exhausted all explanations for late hours, and had no apology ready, recently slipped into the house about one o'clock very softly, denuded himself gently, and began rocking the cradle by the bedside, as if he had been awakened out of a sound sleep by infantile cries. He had rocked away for five minutes, when Mary Jane, who had silently observed the whole manœuver, said, "Come to bed, you fool, you! the baby ain't there."

News is received of a revolution in lower California. The insurgents plundered and murdered many persons, and then proceeded to Cape San Lucas, where the people rose and gave them battle, killing thirteen insurgents, including the leader, thus putting an end to the revolution.

A most remarkable accident, especially for what it did not accomplish, occurred at about midnight, recently in the Passaic rolling mills, Paterson, N. J. The beam that was going through the rollers had a ragged end, and it got across the "collar," throwing a strain of 240 horse-power on the spindle that connects the rollers with the engine, breaking it and freeing the fly-wheel, a mass of metal twenty-four feet in diameter, and weighing twenty-seven tons. The velocity of the wheel was thus suddenly increased from 65 to 300 revolutions per minute, bursting it at once. One of the fragments, weighing three tons, went through the roof, and smashed a large iron crane in its descent. Another piece, about as large, went through the roof and fell into the mill, about 300 feet away; making two large breaks in the roof. Another piece fell on a cart in the yard, demolishing it without injuring the horse or driver. Over 100 men were at work in the mill, and their escape without injury was miraculous. The mill will be closed for a couple of weeks to make repairs.

Barque Abby Bacon, at New York, reports that October 23, received on board Captain William Lang, his wife and child and the crew, seven in number, of the schooner Dauntless of Halifax, foundered on the night of the 19th. They had been four days in a boat living on half a biscuit per day.

Democrats have urged Tilden's election on the ground that he is a poor man, while Dix is a rich one. Tilden has always felt poor since he had his pocket picked of his gold watch at one of "Boss" Tweed's State conventions. This was before Tilden became a "reformer." The delegate who stole the watch said that Tilden ought not to mind it, as there were plenty more "repeaters" in the democratic party.

The Milford Robbery.

[Nashua Telegraph.]

The search for the robbers of the Milford bank has resulted in clearly tracking them from this city to the line of the Worcester and Nashua railroad, where some of them at least purchased tickets for New York. On Monday afternoon, just before six o'clock, a medium sized, dark complexioned man entered the store of G. C. Shattuck & Co., Railroad Square, and ordered a peck of oats put up in a bag. Mr. Hall said he had no paper bag that would hold a peck, and the man said he would buy a pail, which he did. He then ordered half the oats to be put in a paper bag, and Mr. Hall did as he requested. Among the articles found in the horse-shed of the Congregational church after the robbery was a pail, which Mr. Hall recognized by several marks upon it as the one he sold, and also a paper bag, together with some oats. Mr. Hall first saw this man standing in a doorway of the Indian Head Bank, as he was returning from supper on Monday afternoon. He had on a light overcoat, but otherwise his clothes were dark. Mr. Hall is confident that he could pick the man out of a hundred.

Mr Hall did not see the team of his customer, but a close carriage, drawn by a pair of bay horses, was passed upon the road between this city and Milford late on Monday afternoon. This side of Danforth's corner the driver inquired the way to Wilton, but though the hour was late he was in no hurry, as the team was driven very leisurely, and was passed by several persons on the road.

Arrived at Milford, the party rendezvoused in the horse sheds of the Congregational church, and Senator Wadleigh, who was in his office until 11 o'clock that night, says that he heard them, but his attention was not particularly arrested by the noise. When he went home he observed that he was followed, but as the person stopped when he stopped, he entered his house and retired. He subsequently heard some one in his garden, but as the disturbance ceased, he did not seek to ascertain the cause. He now thinks it was one of the robbers, who was on the lookout to see that he retired for the night and left the coast clear. Senator Wadleigh's office is adjacent to the Congregational church.

The robbers remained about fifteen minutes at the bank, and then returned to their rendezvous. On leaving they drove out to the Square, probably to give a wrong impression as to their direction. They then drove up South street to the bridge, crossed over to Union street, thence proceeded up Union street to Osgood's mill. Here they turned to the left, went round to Keyes' and down to Wright's, near the edge of Brookline. From this point the trail proceeds through the middle of the town of Brookline, across the State line into Townsend, and thence into North Leominster.

Here, in the obscurity of a thick wood, the robbers laid aside their disguises, divided their plunder, and then separated to make surer their escape. On Friday a young man, while hunting, came upon the several articles left by the bandits. In the lot were four masks, jackets, sacks, two bags, a lot of envelopes, several lanterns, and a Scotch cap. All these articles are now in the possession of the bank officers. The route taken by the robbers shows that they pursued the by-roads as far as possible, and were very careful to keep off the line of any telegraph.

From Leominster the robbers proceeded to North Lancaster, but their number was diminished by one, as only three persons were observed in the carriage. At Boylston only two persons were seen in the carriage, and at Shrewsbury only a driver. It is inferred, doubtless with absolute correctness, that one by one the robbers left the carriage, to take the train west on the Worcester & Nashua Road. At Clinton, a stranger with a carpet-bag purchased a ticket for New York, on Tuesday morning, and there is little doubt that he was one of the gang.

A Venal Editor Comes to Grief.

[London Correspondence Chicago Journal.]

One of the most exciting of our local events that have occurred for many years has been the sudden retirement of Mr. Sampson, the well-known city editor of the Times. The announcement that he had been superceded by the late money editor of the Pall Mall Gazette took most people by surprise, although it was an event which a great many people well know ought to have occurred many years ago. Subsequent developments show conclusively that he did not voluntarily resign his post, but was summarily discharged in disgrace. This is a sad ending for a man who has held a position so important and responsible for a quarter of a century; but it is well known that he amassed a large fortune, not the result of his legitimate industry, but acquired by the wholesale prostitution of the enormous powers he possessed.

In his department of the Times he reigned supreme, for the management confided it entirely to him, and he was under no supervision whatever. Hence, it was in his power, to a great extent, to influence the money market daily, and especially to inflate or depress any particular enterprise as his inclination or interest might dictate. That he has been in the habit of using this power cruelly, has been abundantly proved, and that he ventured to abuse it once too often is confirmed by his abrupt dismissal. I need not specify instances in which it was evident that he was influenced by considerations other than such as should alone influence an impartial editor, but there is one that I can not overlook. As I boldly asserted his misconduct at the time it occurred, several years ago, I am not now displeased to find that my estimate of him and his doings was strictly correct.

When, during the late American struggle, the Times nailed the Confederate colors to its mast, Mr. Sampson was free to throw his influence all on that side, and his department of the paper teemed with all sorts of paragraphs derogatory to the credit of the United States. To him, more than to any other man, was due the steady and fearful depreciation of all United States stocks, which, under his skillful management, fell to figures any loyal American was ashamed to look at.

And yet, no man living knew better than he that they afforded the soundest and safest investments ever offered to English capitalists, and he and the friends he served only laughed at the success of his schemes, as they quietly bought up every dollar of American security they could reach. He was, of course, their tool. They used him and paid him well. Among those who realized immense fortunes from American stocks at this period was one to whom I have often before alluded, but whose name I need not now repeat, though you will readily recall his memory when I remind you that his worthless carcass was sent to the United States with all honor in a British ship of war. This man, this degenerate American, was the main backer of the Jew Sampson. They worked together and shared their ill gotten proceeds. Since then Sampson has often repeated, in a smaller way, his experience on that occasion. Many is the man, many the family he has brought to ruin by inducing them to invest in enterprises praised by him, but which he must have well known were worthless. But at last his audacity was too great and his offense too glaring. His punishment has now fallen, and he stands before the whole community an object of supreme loathing and contempt. I do not envy him his reflections.

—The Bessemer steamer system has been applied by a Mr. Henry Giffard to a hanging railroad car which has been tested with success on the line of the Northern Railroad in France. Seated in this car, which hangs on elastic springs, the traveller experiences the sensation of reposing in a hammock, free from the vibrations and bumpings of the ordinary car. At times the car undulates as does a boat on a calm sea. The movement is described as a very gentle one, and the traveller is enabled to read without fatigue and write with ease. The principle of this car applied to ambulances doubtless would be a great boon to the wounded who may be conveyed in them.

The Coming Fashions.

The London Globe says: "Coming events cast their shadows before, and if fashion has any influence upon Fahrenheit we are likely to have a winter of great severity. The Paris dress designers have already made their arrangements for it, and the last novelties are revealed to an expectant public. For the last few years the milliner's idea has been to dress her customers as like men as possible; to give them stand-up collars and leather belts, to arm them with umbrellas hanging from the waist as if they were swords, to supply them with gentlemen's watch-pockets and gentlemen's watch-chains. Even in fashion the world must advance, and the move for the coming winter is decidedly a move forward.

Fashionable ladies, who have been dressed like men, must now dress like wild animals. All the new tissues are to resemble furs, and as a few years ago young ladies were said to wear Dolly Vardens, so now they will put on their 'camels.' That is the generic name by which the Parisian modistes have called this year's fabrics, though of course there is a variety allowed, and a young lady may appear as a reindeer, as a bear, a northern elk—in fact, as any rough-skinned animal she may select. But it is necessary that the skins should consist of as few pieces as possible. The 'camel,' and a collar which will be known in the fashionable world as a dog's collar, will complete the costume.

But this new invention of the French dressmakers has not so much originality after all. The idea is but a development of the Ulster greatcoat which was borrowed a couple of years ago from the Irish peasantry. This desire for the roughest materials and the rudest make has produced already strange results. In Switzerland Englishmen are dressed so like guides that it is difficult to distinguish them. Even at Brighton the taste for walking-sticks has declared that a perfectly plain bit of ash cut out of the wood and innocent of scraping and varnishing, is the most fashionable cane. A silver ornament is also allowed near the handle as a sort of trademark to show that it belongs to a gentleman. If the winter of 1874 should be as inclement as that of 1870, there may yet be days when the 'camel' would be too warm, and so less heavy garments have to be prepared.

Still the relations with the animal world will be kept up. Ladies, when they can not go out like beasts, will go out like birds. All trimmings are to be made of feathers—cocks' feathers, pheasants' feathers, peacocks' feathers. This plumage is to cover the dresses, but a whole bird will be in the hat. A very fashionable lady may, therefore, assume a parrot's head and a peacock's tail."

The Dictates of Common Sense.

Persons who in most things are prompt to obey the dictates of common sense, too often neglect them when they point to the necessity of promptly revitalizing the depleted body and the wearied mind. And yet how foolish and dangerous it is to neglect such monitions! Disease follows closely on the track of weakness and exhaustion. Arrest his silent but rapid stride by prompt invigoration. The most reliable agent that can be selected for this purpose is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a palatable hygeian elixir which possesses the true requisites for toning, regulating and tranquillizing both body and mind, and which is, besides, the chosen remedy of the American people for relieving weakness or disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, as well as the numerous array of complaints which ultimately follow derangements of these organs.

MORTALITY PREVENTED.

It would be a moderate estimate to place the number of cases in which Consumption is prevented by the timely use of HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR, at ten thousand per annum. No cough, cold, bronchial affection, sore throat, or other ailment of the organs of respiration, can ever degenerate into a mortal disease, if this palatable and absolutely infallible specific be taken in time and long enough persevered in.

Gatherings in the South.

There has been much written lately that is very dubious about political gatherings and conflict of races, yet there is one class of gatherings all over the South about which there is not even the shadow of doubt, namely, gatherings for the purpose of purchasing the remaining tickets for the next and last Gift Concert of the Public Library of Kentucky, to come off November 30. The South has been impoverished, and a reasonable share of that $2,500,000 then to be distributed will be very acceptable.

Ordination in Newca

On Monday the ancient church in Newcastle had a festival day. Mr. Edward H. Stone, a recent graduate of Andover, has been called by them to act as their pastor for one year. A council of neighboring churches was held on Monday, to examine and ordain the candidate. It met in the forenoon and voted the examination to be satisfactory, and in the afternoon the ordination services were held. A good audience was present; and the following programme was gone through: Antacm "How beautiful upon the mountains;" Reading minutes, Scribe; Invocation, Rev. F. D. Chandler, Hampton; Reading of the Scriptures, Rev. T. V. Haines, No. Hampton; Hymn, in which the congregation joined; Sermon, Rev. Carlos Martyn, Portsmouth; Ordaining Prayer, Rev. J. L. Taylor, D. D., Andover Seminary; Hymn; Charge to the Pastor, Rev. J. K. Aldrich, Rye; Right Hand of Fellowship, Rev. G. W. Christie, Kittery, Me.; Anthem, "And it shall come to pass in the last days;" Concluding Prayer, Rev. E. Robie, Greenland; Benediction, by the Pastor.

Laconics.

Mr. Samuel Lamprey, the veteran dancing-master, who has taught the art to so many of the rising generation (and their fathers and mothers) in this city and neighboring towns, is now giving lessons to a class in Kittery, for the first time in ten years or more.

Schooner Willie Seavey, of Newcastle, has made the greatest catch of pollock fish of the season, having taken 200 qtls. in four nights off the Shoals. The crew of nine men will share about $100 each.

The first lecture of the lyceum course was delivered by James T. Fields, Esq., a goodly audience being in attendance. Mr. Fields quoted liberally from the great poet, commending his bravery of sentiment and earnestness of purpose. He took occasion also so recommend his hearers to endeavor to appreciate the men of the present time, to search always for the good and forget shortcomings--showing contitutional aversion to criticism. The audience was favored with the reading of Longfellow's unpublished tribute on Charles Sumner, in closing.

Ship Calcutta, Tanton, when leaving Iloilo, Aug. 10, for Sandy Hook, grounded on the Oton Bank, but floated off the following morning, without assistance, and proceeded.

Portsmouth people visiting in Washington will be very likely to rendezvous at the "Imperial." Mr. James W. Peirce, the new landlord, not content with securing the services of Messrs. Edward S. Morrill and Sanford B. Woodward, has induced Mr. James W. Lord, recently of the "Gardner House," Chicago, and formerly of the "Rockingham" in this city, to transfer his duties to Washington. Under the ministrations of Messrs. Peirce, Woodward, Lord and Morrill, the wayfarer may consider himself "done for" at the start.

Sch. Mary & Eliza, Hurst, of this port, from New York, with a cargo of coal, went ashore on Latimer's reef, Oct. 27, and remained until high water, when she came off leaking, and sunk on Eel Grass Shoals, where she remains.

The Athlete base ball club of Kittery gave their second annual Ball at Trefethen's Hall in that town on Wednesday evening, Turner's Quadrille Band, of this city, making the music,—good music, too. The hall was handsomely dressed with bunting, and the party just numerous enough to have a good time,—room enough, but none to spare. The ball was even more of a success than the base-ball boys had ventured to hope for, and the amusement was kept up in lively style until Aurora (we think it is Aurora does that kind of thing) streaked the Eastern sky, showing how streaked the tired dancers looked, when the latter streaked-it for home, fully satisfied with the first ball of the season.

On motion of William M. Evarts, Frank W. Hackett, Esq., of this city, has been admitted to practice as an attorney and counselor in the United States Supreme Court.

William P. Walker, Esq., while drawing water at his residence on Wednesday, was surprised at the sudden appearance of a lizard over five inches in length, which ejected itself from the faucet, after a long and tedious journey from Fountain Head. Mr. John H. Cheever found the long-tailed "critter" quite an addition to his aquarium.

The Dover (Foster's) Democrat says Michael Hoffman of Portsmouth set fire to the barn of Mr. Joseph Fernald at Dover Point, Wednesday afternoon. Barn and contents destroyed. Loss $800. Hoffman was jailed.

South Seabrook.

A large and enthusiastic meeting of the citizens of South Seabrook was held in the vestry of the Congregational church on the evening of Tuesday, Oct. 27th, to consider the subject of securing better railroad accommodations for the neighborhood, in the shape of a passenger and freight station at some more convenient point than is occupied by the present one. Rev. Wm. A. Rand called the meeting to order; Reese Owen was chosen chairman, and Bryant Eaton secretary. Bryant Eaton and John Christian, grocers, and Reese Owen, farmer, were chosen a committee to wait on the managers of the Eastern Railroad and lay the case before them; a committee of five was appointed to solicit funds to help in the erection of a suitable building, and offers of land were made, if the railroad should need any beside that now owned.

South Seabrook has three grocery stores and a population of about 650 persons; and there are at least 250 who take out work in their own names from the shoe-manufactories of Lynn and vicinity. At the present time all goods have to be carted at least two and a half miles; but if the asked-for station is granted it will be but half a mile from the centre of the neighborhood. The proposed site is at the State-line bridge, about two miles south of the Seabrook station, and two and a half miles from East Salisbury station; and will not only give good railroad accommodation to South Seabrook, but will be the nearest station for the Methodist church neighborhood and Salisbury Plains,—at least a thousand persons will have railroad facilities superior to their present ones,—and less than half a mile from the South Seabrook post-office, just established. The meeting adjourned to Friday evening, the people being very much in earnest and believing they can present their case to the railroad authorities so strongly that their request is reasonably sure of being granted.

It is rumored that a movement is on foot among the people in the northern part of Seabrook to secure the removal of the Seabrook station to the Rocks road, half a mile to the north of its present site, where it was formerly located and where it accommodated them much better than at present. R.

A Cure for Love.

A new and amusing cure for love has lately been found effective in a fashionable Parisian faubourg. The son of a wealthy nobleman became enamoured of his father's concierge, (door porter,) and determined to marry her. The aristocratic papa opposed, but moved at last by the despair of his son, gave his consent with the proviso that the smitten youth should go to sea for twelve months before the marriage. Softly after his departure, the father, who had previously observed a tendency to embonpoint in the young intended, took her under his especial charge, gave her every kind of the most nourishing and succulent food and good wines, forbade her to take exercise as unbecoming in his future daughter, and, in fact, stall-fed her to such an extent that when the enamoured swain returned from this year's voyage, he was horrified to find, instead of the slender, elegant girl he left, an immensely fat woman, as big as two Albonis rolled into one. Of course the ruse was successful, and the unfortunate victim of good cheer has been pensioned off.

MARRIED.

INGALLS—PENNISTER. In Boston, Oct. 24, Mr. Paul Ingalls, of Boston, and Mrs. Pauline Pennister, of New York. No cards.

REPRINTS
OF THE
British Periodicals.

The political ferment among the European nations, the strife between Church and State, the discussion of Science in its relation to Theology, and the constant publication of new works on these and kindred topics, will give unusual interest to the leading foreign Reviews during 1875. Nowhere else can the inquiring reader find in a condensed form the facts and arguments necessary to guide him to a correct conclusion.

The Leonard Scott Publishing Co.,
41 BARCLAY ST., NEW YORK,

Continue the reprint of the four leading Reviews, viz:

STOVES! STOVES!

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Oven Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

TIN AND SHEET IRON WORK.

We are practical Tin and Sheet Iron Workers, and are prepared to do work in our line in the most substantial and workmanlike manner, and at figures as low as anybody.

TIN ROOFING a specialty.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is endorsing and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

A Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

—THE—

Art Journal of America,

ISSUED MONTHLY.

"A magnificent conception, magnificently carried out."

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be more appreciated after it is bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost, and then, there is the charm, besides!

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in no narrow sense. True art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself exclusively to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate only on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign sources.

PREMIUM FOR 1875.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in oil colors, of the same noble dog whose picture in a former issue attracted so much attention.

"Man's Unselfish Friend"

Will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves such a dog, and the portrait is executed so true to the life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage tells us that his own Newfoundland dog (the finest in Brooklyn) barks at it! Although so natural, no one who sees this chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.

THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. To every series of 5000 subscribers, 100 different pieces, valued at over $2,500, are distributed as soon as the series is full, and the awards of each series as made, are to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.

TERMS:

One Subscription, entitling to THE ALDINE one year, the Chromo and the Art Union.

SIX DOLLARS PER ANNUM, IN ADVANCE.

(No charge for postage.)

Specimen copies of THE ALDINE, fifty cents.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON, President.

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent issued, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

He is no novice or humbug to beg, borrow or buy bolsters to uphold him in an art he does not fully understand in every phase of its beauty; but would respectfully point to the best of references, WORKS, and ability to discover, develope and train inherent talent to accomplish splendid results. His pupils are shining in private and public, here and elsewhere. His many Musical Exhibitions—such as others seldom or never present to the public—have been and will still be his solid credentials, aside from fawning favoritism where true merit is too often absent. Terms, $12 for twelve weeks (twenty-four lessons) at his Music Room, or $15 at the pupil's residence, for Piano or Scientific Vocalization, separately or together. Mr. Moses will also Tune Pianos,—a business "familiar as household words" to him,—and solicits orders.

Topsy Tumble.

[Detroit Press.]

She wasn't a bad sort of a girl for one who had been brought up in an alley all her days, living with old Mother Hart ever since she was large enough to gather chips around the shipyard. The boys called her Toysy Tumble, and nobody knew anything about her parents or relatives. Her hair was long and matted, her face tanned to a brown; her nose always bore a stain of dirt, and she had stone-bruises on her feet, and chapped hands and sore heels, just like the ragged boys with whom she played. The "society" of the alley rather cut Topsy Tumble, but she was independent, and she made faces at "society" from the top of coal sheds, and allowed herself to be harnessed up beside Bob White, when the boys wanted a blooded team to draw a cracking cart down around the railroad crossing.

The alley was unsually quiet the other week. Topsey Tumble was sick. Mother Hart said so when Bob White went to see if Topsey wanted to trade her old jackknife for a small dog, which he had picked up on Atwater street. It was a strange thing, her illness. For eleven years she had rolled in dirt, waded through the snow and splashed around in the mud, and nobody had ever heard her conplain of anything more than a stubbed toe. Bob couldn't make it out.

He and Bill Davis and Sam Sharp and Chip Larkins sat in the shade of a truck-wagon going to decay and talked it over. It would be hard on mother Hart to have sickness and bear a doctor's bill, and they wondered if Topsy would get well in time to go with them the next week.

The doctor said it was a bad fever and most of the folks in John Brown alley called in to say that they would s t up nights and do anything they could. Topsey was out of her head, talking strange things, and, after looking at her flushed face and listening to her mutterings, Bob White called the boys together on top of a coal shed, and there was a lump in his throa as he whispered:

"Boys, Topsy's a-goin' to die!"

The boys looked around over the sheds and made no reply, and by and by they slid down one by one and went home. There was no more dog fighting in the alley—no pounding of fire alarms on the old steamboat boiler and then rushing the "masheen" up to the corner. Columbus Jones brought his rooster down and wanted to bet a kite that it could clean out any chicken in John Brown alley, but the boys had no enthusiasm.

Topsy grew worse. The doctor called twice a day, but his medicines didn't touch the case, and he told Mother Hart that Topsy must die. The old woman felt a little weak and her eyes grew misty. It had been a score of years since she had wept for grief, and she could not remember when she had thought of death.

The neighbors came in, and they tip-toed across the room and kept their babies still that the dying girl might hear no harsh sounds. Bob White and his chums hung around the door a while, and finally gathered courage to pull off their hats and enter the house. Mother Hart motioned for them to take seats on the bench at the foot of the bed, and she whispered in a very weak voice:

"Bob, I'm afraid we're going to lose Topsy!"

Bob wiped his eyes and his chin quivered, and some of the boys broke clear down and wept.

Topsy was unconscious. The boys wondered at the pallor of her face and the whiteness of her hands, and they saw that her matted hair had been cut short. The women shed tears. Mother Hart kept wiping her eyes on her apron, and the boys wondered if sitting there wasn't something like going to meeting.

"She was a good girl, Topsy was," whispered one of the women.

"And so willing to help her mother," said another.

"And she stood up for John brown alley!" added Bob White, a sob in his throat.

Darkness settled down and they almost lost sight of the white face. No one moved. Some of the babies fell asleep, and the mothers trotted them softly, and the boys almost dozed as they sat crooked up on the bench. The shadows of night grew deeper, and the rattle of a truck going home sounded painfully loud and harsh. Mother Hart moved softly over and lighted the little old lamp, and as she held it up the woman said "poor dear!" and Bob White leaned on Chip Larkins' shoulder and sobbed aloud.

Topsy Tumble was dead!

The little soul, never washed by mother's tears—never made better by a word about Heaven—never drinking in the knowledge that only the body dies—had crossed the dark valley alone, having only the tears and heartaches of the dwellers in John Brown's alley to plead it's case with the angels.

—"Sir," said the astonished landlady to a traveller who had sent his cup forward for the seventh time, "you must be very fond of coffee." "Yes, madam, I am," he replied, or I should never have drank so much water to get a little."

—Steward—"Breakfast is ready, George." Heavy yachtsman (aged 9)—"My name is George, Mr. Steward. What would you think if I called you Stewy?"

Across The Atlantic.

Liverpool, the city of world-wide commerce, and mighty docks; Chester, Roman founded, ancient cathedral city; Stratford-on-Avon,—Shakspeare's birth-place; Oxford,—Oxford of Hughes' Tom Brown,—the great university city of England, and of the world; London—London of our first geography days,—of St. Paul's, Westminster Abbey, London Bridge, and historic Tower.

Who that in younger days in studying history, or later, in reading Scott, Thackery, or Dickens have met these words, so full of the aroma of ancient days, but have felt themselves thrill at the thought of one day testing their reality in person; of one day—far, far in the distance it may be, of crossing old ocean, and visiting these historic grounds, perchance to sit in the very room where the Bard of Avon penned his immortal lays; or to ramble about the old town in which Raleigh pined, and where he wrote his History of the World; or where Lady Jane Gray fell beneath the headsman's axe, and where Clarence was drowned; or where Anne Boleyn bowed her fair head to the keen blade and where her proud daughter, afterwards England's mighty Queen, passed so many weary days as a prisoner; or where by the order of brutal Henry VIII, the head of the last of the Plantagenets rolled in the dust. Who, I say, but at some time in their life have wished, and longed, and thrilled to visit these scenes of England's greatness and her shame?

To England! To Europe! "Everybody goes to Europe nowadays," said a friend. True, and in these days of fast travelling, of electricity and steam, it is not the undertaking of former years. The hardest part is to make up one's mind to leave friends and home, and from being the centre of a circle of loving ones to go out into the world content for the time to be unknown and uncared for—to be but as a grain of sand upon the ocean beach of humanity.

Well, we are off at last; good-byes have been said, and the last tearful leave-taking is over. We are out,—a mere speck, a nothing as it were upon the broad Atlantic. Choice led me to take a sailing vessel for my passage; health being the first consideration that actuated the trip, the eager desire, so natural, to reach the "other side" was held in check because of the hoped for benefit the lengthened passage might yield. I do not propose any description of our voyage, as the passage across has been recounted by hundreds before me. But I feel constrained to attest the depth of my feelings, as after a few days out, the great broad sweep of the mighty ocean presented itself on every hand. Water, water everywhere. At the wharf, our ship seemed huge, strong, and unyielding, but at sea, even when old Ocean was simply in a playful mood, we were but as a bit of drift-wood upon his mighty bosom. But when a heavy wind drove us before its resistless power, or in a storm, two of which we experienced, no language of mine can paint the beauty, the sublimity and awfulness of the scene. Almighty God was upon the water, and all other feelings were swallowed up in the silent acknowledgment of His power, and man's insignificance.

Land ho! The hill tops of Ireland are before us. The Ireland of Cromwell's cruelties; of Emmett, of O'Connell, of Whetley, Swift, Stella, St. Patrick and Schonberg. Glorious sight, even her rock-bound coast; doubly dear her fields of green to him whose home has been upon heaving billows. We passed five long weary days becalmed in St. George's channel, where we were surfeited with dense fogs and drenching mists, before a passing tug gave us the benefit of steam up into the Irish Sea; on, until the smoke begrimed spires and roofs of Liverpool greeted our vision. Our sea journey is over, and here amidst the attractions of a great city, the recollection of its disconforts and our twenty-six long days upon old Ocean are fast fading away. The Custom-house inspection of American tourists' baggage is very slight, bug-bear though it seem in advance to inexperienced travellers; my own luggage was hardly looked at, but passed upon my word alone that it did not contain tobacco in any form. I fear the limits of a newspaper letter, even if my own doubly occupied time admitted, will not permit extended details in the communications I hope from time to time to be able to send you. I trust however to make each one interesting in some features, and if possible to indicate some of the snags against which travellers are apt to trip their feet, and if I am fortunate in my observation and experience, to tell my readers how to avoid them in their own person, or being unable to do that, to pass them over in comfort and with a contented mind.

Half the ills that beset travellers come from sudden contact with forms of procedure they are unacquainted with, and which are well enough in their way, but being strange and unprepared for, seem at first something more than the little mole hills they really are. Patience, an even temper, and close observation are the three best friends a traveller can have, and if they are relied upon, will, in many cases prove of more value than silver or gold.

My arrival,—even at the risk of seeming egotistical I shall in my letter use the first person singular; I cannot properly do otherwise, for alas, I am alone,—was at a most opportune time. The city was wild with excitement, and brilliantly gay with streamers and innumerable flags; while the streets were crowded with thousands upon thousands of people,—the occasion being the visit of His Royal Highness, Prince Alfred, to the city for the purpose of laying the corner-stone of the Welker Art Gallery, and also to formally open the Seamen's Orphanage. While my stay here—prolonged longer than I expected, has, perhaps, been a good opportunity to see Liverpool in its gayest mood, it has also been an almost unexampled chance to come face to face with its worse features. The wretchedness, misery, squalor and drunkenness abroad upon the street has been beyond anything I ever expected to see. Liquor saloons, ale and wine vaults stand upon hundreds of corners, and line many streets with almost unbroken ranks. Into and out from these, thousands of men, women, and even children have been constantly pouring during these gala days, loading the outside air with the contaminating odor of their breath, and making safe and pleasant locomotion difficult in the extreme. I counted five wretched specimens of humanity in female form, close about St. George's Hall, all covered with filth and clothed with rags, prostrate upon the pavement, sleeping off the effects of their potation, and this before 5 P. M. In the evening the horrors of the scene are intensified, and the very bowels of the earth cast out their human vermin to prey upon each other and the community. God help them! I did not know there was so much gaunt, horrible, wretched misery in any city in Christendom. When I spoke of this to an English gentleman with whom I had become acquainted, he treated it very lightly, saying, "What is the odds? They are happy in their way. What can we expect? Sheffield and Manchester are near at hand, and Ireland only a stone throw off; besides the shipping of Liverpool makes the city the entrepot of all that is bad."

Liverpool is a city of immense wealth and commercial activity, very much of which it owes to its United States trade. King Cotton helped largely to build its great warehouses and make it the first commercial city in Great Britain. Its docks, magnificent and herculean specimens of masonry,—altogether beyond the power of words to describe, are the finest in the world and can but impress visitors with wonder and admiration. At this time of writing their seven miles of length are packed full to overflowing with shipping laying four, five and sometimes ten deep, while the mountain of grain, flour, cotton, lumber, oil, machinery, etc., packed upon the wharves, or being transported to storehouses attests the great activity and enterprise of English merchants.

Architecturally speaking, Liverpool is a failure, the Custom House, Assizes Courts, Exchange, Town Hall, and St. George's Hall being about the only exceptions to the ugliness of its buildings. St. George's Hall is indeed a fine specimen of classical architecture, and is a credit to the great wealth of the city. It contains the great organ of Liverpool, as also some fine specimens of sculpture, among which I noticed the statue of George Stephenson—the inventor of steam cars, and Sir Robert Peel. The Town Hall is a very fine Palladian building surmounted by a dome supporting a statue of Britannia, and contains statues of Roscoe and Channing; also a number of fine portraits. In the square of the exchange is a monument in bronze in honor of Nelson; and at the junction of Pembroke place and London road a magnificent equestrian statue of George III. The Free Museum of Liverpool is worthy an extended notice, but space forbids. It is said to contain the largest and most superb collection of ornithological specimens in the world. I can well believe it, for the vast array of birds from every country and every specie seemed without number, and in the most perfect order, free from dust or imperfection of any kind, as well as being mounted in the most wonderfully artistic manner. There were great ostriches from Africa, and immense condors from South America. Also a most superb collection of pheasants, including the Himmalayan, whose incomparable plumage glistened in a gorgeous combination of glorious tints and colors. Of sea birds an immense collection from the great albatross to the stormy petrel; and of eagles an equally perfect display. I counted over one hundred different varieties of humming birds; but failed entirely in attempting to number the astonishing and brilliant array of parrots, flamingoes, toucam, and birds of paradise.

In connection with the collection of birds are others of great interest. One, that of preserved specimens of natural history, embracing both land and sea, and taking in every country on the globe. Also a fine collection of minerals and corals; and in rooms by themselves, a very large display of Roman, British and Egyptian pottery. In false cases I noticed a series of watches exhibiting the earliest form of the invention onward step by step to the present time. And in others a very interesting display of medals, orders, badges, etc., illustrative of the era of the first French Revolution. Here also were numbers of very ancient books, some of them dating back to the fourteenth century, and all in good order, and wonderfully clear type. Upon the walls of one large room were exhibited, arranged in the date of their production, every known variety of ancient and modern arms and armour; also in the same room some fine specimens of ancient Hungarian Bronze; also Egyptian mummies of from 500 to 1000 years B. C., and in the center of the room a granite Sarcophigeer of a date 2000 years B. C. But the most interesting object here to me was a large model in wood—about twenty feet square, of Ancient Rome. It is intended to represent about one square mile, and exhibits the whole of the Palatine Hill with its labyrinth of imperial palaces. The Circeer Maximeer for popular games. The Mores Capitolineer bearing upon one of its summits the gorgeous Temple of Jupiter, and on the other the far famed Tabularium. The line of Forum, extending along the base of the Capitol to the Great Forum of Trajan; also the stupendous Colosseum erected by the Emperor Vespasian. I was able to spend a few hours only in this magnificent building, where days and weeks are needed to look over its wonders, but left it with the impression that Liverpool has atoning grace for a portion of the misery in her midst, for all this, and a hundred things more that I have enumerated is open free to the poorest and most ragged child on the street. To-morrow morning I take cars for the ancient city of Chester. STEVENS.

The "Prohibitionists."

The Concord correspondent of the Boston Advertiser, referring to the coming election in this State, writes:

Just what the prohibitionists will do is a matter of conjecture. In the last legislature the republican representatives voted solid against a repeal of the prohibitory law, and this would seem to be sufficient to commend them to the favorable consideration of the third party men; but in as much as the prohibitionists are strenuous advocates of the absurd theory that the governor should execute the law, it is apparent that they will continue to strike deadly blows against the cause they pretend to serve by voting a separate ticket; but, unless I am wofully mistaken, many of the rank and the file will refuse to longer follow their unsafe leaders, and will return to the republican party. Their gubernatorial candidate of the last three years' campaigns, Dr. Blackmer of Sandwich, is about to leave the State, and they will have to select a new standard-bearer. Among their prominent lay members, David Heald of Milford is the best known, while if they look for a candidate among the clergy either Rev. C. W. Millen of Suncook, Rev. H. M. Stone of Dover or Rev. Arthur Deering of Pittsfield would seem to fill the bill. These gentlemen are all as bitter as wormwood against the republican party, and as that one virtue has seemed to be the essential of their political creed they are properly in the direct line of promotion.

State News.

While Rev. George Pierce preached about "Thieves" in Milford, on Sunday night, thieves visited the horse sheds in the rear of the church and stole whips from the carriages.

The Sons of Temperance invited in a number of ladies to play "Copenhagen" after the adjournment of the annual meeting, at Concord. The Patriot calls the game "the 'paroxysmal kiss,' or something equally comprehensive, as it seemed to be made up of touching hands, after which, seemingly as a forfeit therefor, followed a communion of lips that seemed to be highly enjoyed by the participants. The osculatory exercise was in progress as we came away." Countrymen!

John Woodward, board sawyer for the Berlin Mills Company, was severely injured, Wednesday, by the breaking of his saw, one tooth of which entered his head over the eye, completely burying itself, and causing great suffering. He is doing well.

Rochester has offered strong inducements to Tenney & Co., burned out by the recent fire at Georgetown, Mass., to remove thither, having offered the firm the use of a large and conveniently situated building.

The failure of the Winnipesaukee cotton mill at Tilton will be likely to cause much suffering among some of the operatives, who had not been paid for more than six weeks before the failure. Some of the operatives have been paid partly in orders on the tradesmen in the place.

The State bank commissioner has examined the Souhegan Bank at Milford and reports that its loss by the recent robbery is $60,000, but probably not more than $20,000 is available to the robbers. Business at the bank goes on as usual.

The grand division of the Sons of Temperance in the State held its annual session in Concord and Rev. A. C. Hardy was elected G. W. P. The order was reported flourishing, though the temperance cause is languishing.

Miss DeMontford, the mesmerist, slipped upon the pavement while going to the hall at Manchester, and injured her hand so as to use it up for the evening. The entertainment however did not suffer by the accident.

Readables.

The Indian war is rapidly collapsing. General Davidson reports through his scouts that Major Schofield, with his column, has captured on Elk Creek sixty-nine Noconee warriors and 2000 ponies. This party is of the worst character, and is accompanied by the families of the warriors.

The yellow fever is reported to be raging fearfully at Mobile, Ala., and West Pascagonia, Miss. The cities are said to be almost entirely deserted, and business suspended.

Mr. Boynton, who was to have leaped overboard from a Liverpool steamer when 300 miles from land, in order to demonstrate that he was not born to be drowned, has thought better of it. The steamer on board of which he was a passenger has arrived at Queenstown with Mr. Boynton alive and dry.

No matter how the elections this fall may go, three liberal republican Senators will bite the dust. Tipton has already been slaughtered in Nebraska; Fenton and Schurz will be sentenced in less than a week; Trumbull passed away long ago. We mention the fact to show that third party leaders usually are the first to disappear.

The Biddeford Times learns that "the sales of opium have largely increased in Saco and Biddeford during the past few weeks," or since the temperance reform movement in those cities was started.

A funny but very efficient way of testing registry lists supposed to be fraudulent, was tried in Baltimore by a republican candidate for a municipal office. He sent out postal cards addressed to each name on the list, and letter carriers were instructed to use every means to deliver them, and note the facts on each card which could not be delivered. The carriers found a very large number of these persons dead, many more had moved and many had never lived in the ward. Nearly a quarter of the entire list was thus shown to be fraudulent.

Fernando Wood has Presidential aspirations for 1876, and his chances are by no means slight with a party whose ablest leader in the chief city of the Union is John Morrissey. Brother Ben, the lottery dealer, is another strong man in the same organization.

Chief Justice Neilson has denied the motion for a bill of the particulars specifying the time and place at which the alleged intimacy took place between Henry Ward Beecher and Mrs. Elizabeth Tilton.

A Remarkable Masonic Incident.

[Phila. Age.]

The first Masonic funeral that ever occurred in California took place in 1849, and was performed over a brother found drowned in the bay of San Francisco. An account of the ceremonies states that on the body of the deceased was found a silver mark of a Mason, upon which were engraved the initials of his name. A little further investigation revealed to the beholder the most singular exhibition of Masonic emblems that was ever drawn by the ingenuity of man upon the human skin. There is nothing in the history of traditions of Freemasonry equal to it. Beautifully dotted on his left arm, in red and blue ink, which time could not efface, appeared all the emblems of the entire apprenticeship. There was the Holy Bible, square and compass, the twenty-fourth inch gauge and common gavel. There were also the Masonic pavement, representing the ground floor of King Solomon's temple, the identical tessel which surrounds it, and the blazing star in the centre. On his right arm, and artistically executed in the same indelible liquid, were the emblems pertaining to the fellow-craft's degree, viz: the square, the level and the plumb. There were also the five columns representing the five orders of architecture—the Tuscan, Doric, Ionic, Corinthian and Composite.

In removing his garments from his body, the trowel presented itself, with all the other tools of operative Masonry. Over his heart was the pot of incense. On other parts of his body was the bee-hive, the book of constitutions, guarded by the tyler's sword, pointing to a naked heart; the All-Seeing eye, the anchor and ark, the hour-glass, the scythe, the forty-seventh problem of Euclid, the sun, moon, stars and comets; the three steps which are emblematical of youth, manhood and age. Admirably executed was the weeping virgin, reclining on a broken column, upon which lay the book of constitutions. In her right hand she held the pot of incense, the Masonic emblem of a pure heart, and in her left hand a sprig of acacia, the emblem of the immortality of the soul.

Immediately beneath her stood winged Time, with his scythe by his side, which cuts the brittle thread of life, and the hour-glass at his feet, which is ever reminding us that our lives are withering away. The withered and attenuated figures of the Destroyer were placed amid the long and flowing ringlets of the disconsolate mourner. Thus were striking emblems of mortality and immortality blended in one pictorial representation. It was a spectacle such as Masons never saw before, and in all probability such as the fraternity will never witness again. The brother's name was never known.

—The sophs at Harvard now impale the freshmen on the horns of this dilemma: "If you will state a proposition which is incontrovertibly true, we will not haze you." Whereupon the freshman asserts this: "You will haze me." If that be incontrovertibly true, then it follows that the logical tormentor will haze the freshman, which the latter having stated a proposition which is incontrovertibly true, the sophomore is bound not to do. Or on the other hand, in order to torment the freshman, the sophomore must take the ground that the proposition stated by him is not true, and if the proposition, "You will haze me," be untrue, how is the sophomore to do it?

The Dictates of Common Sense.

Persons who in most things are prompt to obey the dictates of common sense, too often neglect them when they point to the necessity of promptly revitalizing the depleted body and the wearied mind. And yet how foolish and dangerous it is to neglect such monitions! Disease follows closely on the track of weakness and exhaustion. Arrest his silent but rapid stride by prompt invigoration. The most reliable agent that can be selected for this purpose is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a palatable hygeian elixir which possesses the true requisites for toning, regulating and tranquilizing both body and mind, and which is, besides, the chosen remedy of the American people for relieving weakness or disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, as well as the numerous array of complaints which ultimately follow derangements of these organs.

MORTALITY PREVENTED.

It would be a moderate estimate to place the number of cases in which Consumption is prevented by the timely use of HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR, at ten thousand per annum. No cough, cold, bronchial affection, sore throat, or other ailment of the organs of respiration, can ever degenerate into a mortal disease, if this palatable and absolutely infallible specific be taken in time and long enough persevered in.

Gatherings in the South.

There has been much written lately that is very dubious about political gatherings and conflict of races, yet there is one class of gatherings all over the South about which there is not even the shadow of doubt, namely, gatherings for the purpose of purchasing the remaining tickets for the next and last Gift Concert of the Public Library of Kentucky, to come off November 30. The South has been impoverished, and a reasonable share of that $2,500,000 then to be distributed will be very acceptable.

Circuit Court.

On the opening of the court, Friday morning at 9 o'clock, the jury in the case State vs. David L. Ramsbottom came in and reported that they were unable to agree. Having been out since about 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon, they were relieved from further consideration of the case.

The case of Paymaster James N. Carpenter, U. S. N., against Hon. John H. Bailey, of this city, for libel, came up. Hatch for prosecution; Frink, Small and Marston for defence. The following jury was chosen;

Joseph Kimball, Plaistow, foreman; John F. Brown, Nathaniel C. Garland, Raymond; George W. Furnald, Exeter; Francis B. Kelly, John Chase, Salem; Hezekiah H. Cheney, Plaistow; Ebenezer Hoyt, 2d, Sandown; Charles C. Downing, Newmarket; Hiram Cutler, Londonderry; Nathaniel H. Brown, Derry; Jefferson C. Rowe, Portsmouth.

The complaint sets forth that Bailey (with others) sent to the navy department a memorial requesting Carpenter's removal from the office of purchasing paymaster at this station, on the grounds that he was a rebel sympathizer and in opposition to the administration, and inattentive to the duties of his office, that in consequence of this memorial Carpenter was transferred to other duty, to the serious damage of his property, reputation and prospects; and that the statements of the memorial were false and malicious, Carpenter never at any time having been a rebel sympathizer, and having always faithfully attended to his duties as purchasing paymaster,—in consideration of all which reparation to the amount of $5000 was asked.

James N. Carpenter testified that he was born in Kentucky, and entered the service as paymaster in 1860, served two years in the African squadron and on board a cruiser after the Alabama, and from March, '63, to the close of the war, was paymaster of the Potomac flotilla. Was sent to this place as purchasing paymaster in 1867, and hired house for five years, and furnished same. Was allowed and hired two clerks and a messenger. Office hours were from 9 to 3. Clerks were usually at office, and myself much of the time. Often did business out of office hours. Have been in service more than 21 years; understood Mr. Bailey was candidate for State Senator. Talked with him about his prospects. Did not vote for Mr. Bailey; this I have reason to believe he expected me to do. Delivered my vote to a Mr. Hackett,—Mr. William H. Hackett,—and noticed he opened it and looked at it. Supposed I was an American citizen, a free man, and had a right to vote for whom I pleased. Took no part in politics, and never attempted to influence any man's political action at any time. Attended public meetings of both political parties. Vice President Wilson when here, took tea at my home.

Several written offers to furnish supplies of hose-pipes, tallow, English coal (at $30 per ton) &c., from John H. Bailey, were read to the court. Carpenter stated that he told Bailey he did not wish to buy coal at that price—did not consider it for the interest of the government, as the price was $18 to $20 in Boston, and Bailey was not a regular dealer. This was in July, 1868. Bailey then desired to withdraw his bid for coal, and make another down on hard pan, but I objected.

April 7th, 1869, copies of a call for bids for hardware goods were sent to three parties, John H. Bailey and John P. Lyman of Portsmouth, and McLaughlin & Co., of Boston,—from which ensued a business difficulty with Mr. Bailey, who hurriedly furnished the articles called for on the unauthorized order of my clerk, Mr. John H. Cheever, and demanded payment, which I refused. The matter was referred to the department, who sustained me; ordered a new bid, which was successfully competed for by Mr. Bailey, at a lower price, and his bill paid, and I said it should be the last money I would pay him.

Purchased goods of J. H. Bailey, E. A. Stevens, Trickey & Jewett, and other parties—some of whose political proclivities I did not know, and about none of whom did I ever inquire respecting such matters. Received and acted upon printed orders, with printed signatures, as is the custom in both army and navy.

[Objection being made to admission of printed orders, as evidence, (by which Mr. Hatch stated he desired to prove that Carpenter had the right to expect to remain here three years.) the objection was sustained by Judge Rand.]

My pay here was $2800 per year, which was reduced by my removal and being placed on waiting orders, to $2130. Was ordered to sea in the Ajax and sailed in spring of 1870. This affair has kept me off duty ever since, except three years' sea service. Sold my furniture at a great sacrifice—probable loss $1500.

[Afternoon, resuming.] On receiving unexpected orders from Navy Department, removing me from this station, I went to Washington in a few days, and found Admiral Porter at the Department. Went again in four or five months, and found Porter not so busy. I found the original of a petition of which a copy I was permitted to make and is herewith presented, on the files of the department, not in Mr. Bailey's handwriting, but I think in that of the clerk who usually made the bills and communications from his store. On application to and writing to the Department several times since, I am told the original petition cannot be found.

[Counsel for defence insisted that proof should be given that there is or was such a document, before any copy or the accuracy of the professed copy could be shown. Much time was spent in the discussion of this point by the eminent counsel in the case, and the court although doubting the sufficiency of its authenticity, received the copy on evidence, subject to the exceptions and objections of the counsel, and to further subsequent authorization by complainant if ordered by the court.] The petition on which the action is based, is as follows, if this copy be correct:

To the Honorable Senators and Members of the House of Representatives in Congress from New Hampshire:

The undersigned, after much patience has been exhausted, beg to remonstrate against the further continuance at this station, of Paymaster J. W. Carpenter as Purchasing Agent. In all of our struggles, Paymaster Carpenter has always voted against us, carrying the straight democratic ticket, throwing his patronage adversely to the interest of the friends of General Grant, and always filling the requirements of a tool sent here by Secretary Welles to carry out the interests of Andrew Johnson. May we hope for relief from such a burden? Let the rebel sympathizer be exchanged for a man who will have office hours of a convenient kind, and be found there at least once a day, to attend to those having business there, and officers and civilians will alike be grateful.

Portsmouth, N. H. April 20, 1869.

E. G. Peirce Jr.	E. A. Stevens
Chas. Robinson	Wm. H. Hackett
Aaron Young	John H. Bailey
Daniel J. Vaughan	Paine Durkee

Paymaster Carpenter presented the following order, which was objected to by defence, as being an unauthorized document, Admiral Porter not being Secretary of the Navy nor legally authorized by Congress to act for him in matters of appointments and removal. But the judge allowed the case to proceed, under the numerous exceptions. Mr. Carpenter received the following order, in response, as he says, to the petition:

NAVY DEPARTMENT, Bureau of Navigation and Office of Detail, Washington, 23d April, 1869.

Sir: On the reporting of your relief, Paymaster Edwin Putnam, on the 1st of May next, you will transfer to him the public property, accounts and money in your charge, and regard yourself detached from duty at Portsmouth, N. H., and settle your accounts.

By direction of the Secretary:
Respectfully, JAMES ALDEN,
Chief of Bureau.

Paymaster Carpenter at once wrote to the Department, asking the reason for his abrupt removal, and received the following reply, with a copy of the petition which was the cause of "all his woe, with loss of"—Portsmouth:

NAVY DEPARTMENT, 1 May, 1868.

Sir: Your letter of 20th inst. has been received, and the Department transmits herewith copy of a communication addressed to the Senators and Members of the House of Representatives from New Hampshire, in reference to your official acts as Purchasing Paymaster at Portsmouth, N. H., signed by citizens of the latter place.

Respectfully,
DAVID D. PORTER,
For Secretary Navy.

We shall publish the cross-examination and the evidence of other witnesses, Monday. Court adjourned until Monday at 9.45 A. M.

City Councils.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, leave was granted William D. Fernald to encumber Market street, and to William C. Newton to encumber Dennett street, for building purposes.

A petition of the school committee for the sum of $75 to defray the expenses of a contemplated course of lectures was referred to the committee on finance.

A petition of Stephen B. Pearson and others for a new highway from the northern terminus of Mont Vernon street was referred to the committee on laying out streets.

Relay of sidewalk was granted Alfred W. Haven on Congress street.

Communication of Rev. Mr. Aldrich and Horace W. Waldron in regard to injuries sustained was referred to City Solicitor Hodgdon to ascertain whether the city is liable.

Bills for the removal of all constables appointed prior to Oct. 1st, and to establish the compensation of the Collector of taxes at 2-3 of one per cent, were referred.

John F. Marden was elected tax Collector.

John A. Lewis was appointed special police.

Petition of Ex- Mayor Marvin and others for gas-light on State street was referred.

Petition of John A. Durgin for leave to occupy a portion of the "Gun House" for a stable was referred.

In joint convention with the Common Council, John F. Marden was elected City Treasurer, Isaac F. Furber Sealer of Weights and Measures, and Marcellus H. Marston Pound Keeper.

Laconics.

Honors come to modest men, sometimes, thick and fast. Our good friend Jeff. C. Rowe won a hero's fame at the Revere accident; was successful in his suit for damages, getting the sympathy of the public and $12,000 cash; and now appears in the role of juror in the Circuit Court.

Aaron Leighton, the brakeman who was injured upon the Eastern railroad a short time since by being struck in the head by a bridge, died in Great Falls.

The new steam sloop No. 1 was towed to Boston, to receive her boilers and machinery, on Friday evening, by the tug Clara Bateman and U. S. S. Speedwell.

The friends of Mr. John W. Pickering rallied at his residence, 24 Gates Street, Thursday evening, and gave him a genuine surprise party. At nine o'clock, an easy chair presented by a son of Mr. Pickering and a friend, was brought in, Mr. Oliver M. Jellison making the presentation speech. The company sang "Auld Lang Syne." Mr. Pickering responded briefly, there was a bounteous supper, more singing and lots of fun until midnight.

Naval Constructor Thomas E. Webb, who was ordered to South America on special duty, arrived home Thursday.

The jurors of the Circuit Court may consider the following example: Ahaz Foxon is a thrifty soul. He lives near Buffalo, and is rich. Lately he was drawn on a jury in that city, and this is how he turned the event, usually considered a misfortune, to actual profit. The pay was a dollar and a half a day for four weeks, aggregating thirty-six dollars. He found lodgings at fifteen cents a night with a poor and dirty family, the total bill being four dollars and twenty cents. He bought a tin-pail for twenty cents more, and there his expenditure ended. How did he eat? Every morning he went to a free soup-house, established for the feeding of news-boys and bootblacks, and had his tin pail filled. Clear profit for the month, thirty-one dollars and sixty cents.

The navy yard ferry-boat Emerald has been hauled up for repairs. Her place will be supplied by one of the yard steam cutters.

Hon. Timothy Farrar died Oct. 27th, at Dorchester. Judge Farrar was born in Ipswich, March 17, 1788. He was a graduate of Dartmouth College of the class of 1802. Subsequently he studied law with Daniel Webster, and was appointed judge of New Hampshire courts. He was treasurer of Dartmouth College at the time of the famous decision in which Webster appeared as counsel for the college. He resided for many years in Portsmouth, and afterwards removed to Exeter, where he was elected cashier of the old Exeter Bank, of which Jeremiah Smith was president. He removed to Boston in 1844, and has resided there ever since. In 1850 he was elected to the legislature. About the close of the war he wrote a manual of the Constitution. This work was undertaken after he was seventy years of age, and is regarded by jurists and lawyers as the most exhaustive work on the principles and intent of the Constitution.

The third lecture in the evening course at the Universalist church will be given on Sunday, commencing at 7 1-2 o'clock. Subject: "Starting in Life."

James H. Diman of Boston, formerly of Stratham, has purchased the Stratham nurseries and botanic gardens, and contemplates some extensive improvements there.

Passed Assistant Paymaster Geo. H. Griffin has been appointed a paymaster in the Navy from October 3, 1874, vice Paymaster W. F. A. Torbet, deceased.

Maggie Mitchell will probably not appear here until May. She is now on her way to New York and thence goes westward on a tour which will last until Jan. 18, when she begins an engagement at the Boston Theatre.

The Journal has a good one on Hon. Person C. Cheney. It says: "We are glad he lives in Rye, as there seems to be a feeling in both political parties, that it would be a good thing for once to vote at an election when the candidates for Governor did not reside in Manchester."

Mr. Robert C. Sides, Jr., of this city, has been appointed machinist in the Navy, and been assigned to duty on the U. S. S. Speedwell.

— It was a couple from Danbury, Conn., who borrowed a two-years-old child when starting on a bridal tour, in order to deceive the inquisitive crowd as to the nature of the trip.

STOVES! STOVES!

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Open Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

TIN AND SHEET IRON WORK.

We are practical Tin and Sheet Iron Workers, and are prepared to do work in our line in the most substantial and workmanlike manner, and at figures as low as anybody.

TIN ROOFING a specialty.

THIS Bank pays five per cent. per annum, free of all tax. A greater rate is prohibited by law.

Two dividends are made in the year,—in June and December; and an extra dividend of the surplus earnings every two years. The first extra will be in June, 1874.

Deposits go on interest on the FIRST day of every MONTH, and deposits made during the FIRST THREE days of each MONTH will draw interest from the FIRST day of that MONTH.

Dividends not withdrawn will be added to the principal, and draw interest from the time when declared.

Money is received on deposit, payable on checks at sight.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or Inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

A Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

—THE—

Art Journal of America,

ISSUED MONTHLY.

"A magnificent conception, magnificently carried out."

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number for ten times its cost; and then, there is the chromo, besides!

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in no narrow sense. True art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. The mission of the artist is a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate only on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign sources.

PREMIUM FOR 1875.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in oil colors, of the same noble dog whose picture in a former issue attracted so much attention.

"Man's Unselfish Friend"

Will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves such a dog, and the portrait is executed so true to the life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage tells us that his own Newfoundland dog (the finest in Brooklyn) barks at it! Although so natural, no one who sees this chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.

THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. To every series of 1000 subscribers, 100 different pieces, valued at over $2,500, are distributed as soon as the series is full, and the awards of each series as made, are to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.

TERMS.

One Subscription, entitling to THE ALDINE one year, the Chromo and the Art Union,

SIX DOLLARS PER ANNUM, IN ADVANCE.

(No charge for postage.)

Specimen copies of THE ALDINE, fifty cents.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON, President.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Piano and Singing.

THOS. P. MOSES, thorough and tasteful Teacher of Music, from A in its alphabet to composition and arrangement, has concluded not to accept a recent call to go South again, but will retain his permanent location in the grand "Old Town by the Sea" where he was born,—and renews the offer of his services as above, with unabated zeal and love for this branch of human refinement. He is no novice or humbug to beg, borrow or buy bolsters to uphold him in an art he does not fully understand in every phase of its beauty; but would respectfully point to the best of references, WORKS, and ability to discover, develope and train inherent talent to accomplish splendid results. His pupils are shining in private and public, here and elsewhere. His many Musical Exhibitions—such as others seldom or never present to the public—have been and will still be his solid credentials, aside from fawning favoritism where true merit is too often absent. Terms, $12 for twelve weeks (twenty-four lessons) at his Music Room, or $15 at the pupil's residence, for Piano or Scientific Vocalization, separately or together. Mr. Moses will also Tune Pianos,—a business "familiar as household words" to him,—and solicits orders.

REPRINTS

OF THE

British Periodicals.

The political ferment among the European nations, the strife between Church and State, the discussion of Science in its relation to Theology, and the constant publication of new works on these and kindred topics, will give unusual interest to the leading foreign Reviews during 1875. Nowhere else can the inquiring reader find in a condensed form the facts and arguments necessary to guide him to a correct conclusion.

Patent Fifth Act.

St. Louis Globe.]

"Now, our idea of a red-hot fifth act for a red-hot society play—and Mr. Daly can use it without paying us a cent for it—is about as follows: The heroine has a misunderstanding with the hero; they part in anger; he goes to Baden and she goes to the bad. [This gives an opportunity for plenty of prurient pathos, and will make the ladies weep buckets of tears.] In the first scene of the last act the heroine goes out riding, and is thrown from her horse and breaks her leg. [Realistic runaway scene, the horse knocking down stuffed apple-women and practicable lamp-posts, and the comic policeman turning on the fire-alarm.] She refuses to have it amputated, and gangrene sets in.

Last scene: The stage set as a medical college operating room, students throwing peanuts at the porter and giving catcalls. The heroine is chloroformed and laid on the operating table. [This brings in the leg business, which can be made a good deal of.] The eminent surgeon (it would add to the realistic effect to have the leading surgeons of the city appear in turn,) trifles with his knife, and at last makes an incision in the plump member, followed by a spurt of blood and a scream. A handsome young student in a mask leaps upon the stage scatters them right and left, "Butchers, beware! that is the wrong leg!" Confusion. The student, like one inspired, presents his theory how, by stimulating the osmic nerves with saturated biprotaxide of hydrocephalus, amputation will not be necessary. The eminent surgeon says "Young man, Astley Cooper was an ass to you. Gentlemen, Galen has come to earth; he is our superior." The unamputated woman awakes. "That—voice! Who—spoke! I—thought—I heard—" "Aye, Fantinette; 'tis I, Armand!" shouts the student, tearing off his mask. "Spring to my bosom and grow there." "Fantinette!" "Armand!" "The hidgis past is forgotten, and we twain stand in the sunrise, my life, my wife."

If this play wouldn't run till the night before the day of judgment we are very much mistaken.

Sadly Mistaken.

[Medical Record.]

Velpeau, the French surgeon, had successfully performed, on a little child five years old, a most perilous operation. The mother came to him and said:

"Monsieur, my son is saved, and I really know not how to express my gratitude. Allow me, however, to present you with this pocket book, embroidered by my own hands."

"Oh, madame," replied Velpeau, sharply, "my art is not merely a question of feeling. My life has its requirements like yours. Dress, even, which is a luxury to you, is necessary for me. Allow me, therefore, to refuse your charming little present in exchange for a more substantial remuneration."

"But, monsieur, what remuneration do you desire? Fix the fee yourself."

"Five thousand francs, madame."

The lady very quietly opened the pocket book, which contained ten thousand francs in notes, counted out five, and after politely handing them to Velpeau, retired. Imagine his feelings!

—This is what an Indianapolis woman did one day, while temporarily insane: First she entered a neighbor's house and began breaking the furniture and crockery. Then she returned to her own house and attracted a crowd by appearing at her second-story front windows and leaping from one to another on the outside. Tiring of this sport she climbed upon the roof of the house, by going out on a "lean-up" or shed and making her way upward. Arriving on the roof, her next step was to ascend the chimney, a feat that was successfully performed. Then pushing back her hair, she cracked her heels together, and giving an unearthly yell, swung out on the lightning-rod, with the evident intention of reaching a still higher elevation. The frail rod gave way, however, and precipitated the climber to the roof, down which she rolled until within three feet of the eaves, when she recovered her feet, and after a few gyrations, just to show that she was there, the woman made her way to the farm. Without delay she th[illegible] upon the street, down [illegible] on came out terrific pace, [illegible] which she ran at [illegible] several [illegible] daily bringing up in a house [illegible] squares distant, where she again began to smash the furniture and decrease the supply of cat[illegible]. Here, however, she was secured [illegible] by a policeman and her husband, and after a few hours' confinement resumed the even tenor of her way.

—A citizen who was up very late one night last week is trying to make the public believe that he saw a meteor "as large as the moon" burst into a thousand pieces with a tremendous report. Some of our readers will recognize the sensation at once. It is peculiar to what may be styled "side-walk on the brain."

—The skilled workman—says the New York Commercial—has never any reason to fear that he will fail to find remunerative employment, unless he insists upon carrying on his shoulders all the lazy and thriftless of his craft, and insisting that they shall have equal wages with him.

The Impending Conflict.

The democratic leaders are working at cross purposes. Judge Roberts is entitled to their nomination as a candidate for Governor next year, but the railroad influences are against him. There seems to be a sort of crystalization of corporation influence toward Senator Daniell of Franklin, who is deemed the person best fitted to switch the Judge off the track. The People and Foster's Democrat were for the Judge last year, and the People still has the same convictions; but Joshua seems to have undergone a radical change of heart—and now that the Press adopts him as its candidate, the Democrat flies the track with an article headed "Judge Roberts for Governor—Guess Not!" The Judge is likely to be in the same condition next year that his Portsmouth victim was in the present—with his political throat cut from ear to ear, and as effectually shelved as if he had never been born.

The National Thanksgiving.

The President has issued the following proclamation:

By the President of the United States of America.

A PROCLAMATION:

We are reminded by the changing seasons that it is time to pause in our daily vocations and offer thanks to Almighty God for the mercies and abundance of the year which is drawing to a close. The blessings of a free government have continued to be vouchsafed to us. The earth has responded to the labor of the husbandman, the land has been free from pestilence, internal order is being maintained, and peace with other powers has prevailed. It is fitting that at stated periods we should cease from our accustomed pursuits and from the turmoil of our daily lives, and unite in thankfulness for the blessings of the past, and in the cultivation of kindly feelings toward each other.

Now, therefore, recognizing these considerations, I, Ulysses S. Grant, President of the United States, do recommend to all citizens to assemble in their respective places of worship on Thursday, the 26th day of November next, and express their thanks for the mercy and favor of Almighty God, and laying aside all political contention and all secular occupations to observe such day as a day of praise.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and cause the seal of the United States to be affixed. Done at the city of Washington this, the 27th day of October in the year 1874, and of the Independence of the United States the ninety-ninth.

U. S. Grant.

Hamilton Fish, Secretary of State.

Letter from Dartmouth.

HANOVER, OCTOBER 29th.

The Association of College officers of the States of New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut, which has been holding its session here the last two days, adjourned this morning. Ten Colleges compose this Association, viz: Amherst, Boston University, Brown, Dartmouth, Harvard, Trinity, Tufts, Wesleyan, Williams and Yale. The object of this Association is to discuss in a friendly manner matters of interest to faculties, and other things such as pertain to the welfare of the Colleges; its meetings are private. Each College is represented by its President and one member from the faculty. Of the twenty members seventeen were present viz.:

Amherst	Pres. Stearns	Prof. Snell
Boston U.	" Warren
Brown	" Robinson	" Bancroft
Dartmouth	" Smith	" Sanborn
Harvard	" Eliot	" Cooke
Trinity		" Hart
Tufts		" Dolbear
Wesleyan	" Cummings	" Van Vleck
Williams	" Chadbourne	" Dodd
Yale	" Porter	" Northrop

Pres. Miner of Tufts was detained by a public engagement. Trinity at the present time has no President. Among other subjects discussed the matter of College regattas was freely commented upon, and it was finally decided to try them a while longer, and notice more closely the effects resulting from them. There was quite an interesting discussion by Pres. Porter of Yale and Pres. Eliot of Harvard regarding the system of optional studies in our Colleges, Yale still clinging to the fixed curriculum; the representative of Dartmouth agreeing with the remarks of Pres. Porter. The comparative values of the classics and scientific studies were also discussed; though many views were advanced it was finally agreed that it would be better if there were no classical studies in the College course after the 2nd year.

It seems that in my letter of the 14th inst. the word alone was misinterpreted. The idea I meant to convey was that the referee hearing disinterested parties outside of the boat crews decided the race for the Seniors. As the remaining statements that are denied by "77" are known here to be true, as I stated them, it would be useless to reply to his article.

The catalogues have made their appearance, showing the largest number of students in Dartmouth since its foundation; there are in all departments 457.

The Aegis, a junior publication, will be for sale next week; in addition to its other features it will have the pictures of the Faculty of the Academical department and the President. "BUG."

A Queer Story.

A most extraordinary story is told, in her defence, by Mrs. Merrigan, who is accused of the murder of Maggie Hammill, in Brooklyn. The prisoner said a gypsy fortune-teller had been in the habit of telling her fortune by measuring her neck, head, toes and other parts of her body with a line. When Maggie called, on September 22, she requested Mrs. Merrigan to explain the manner in which the gypsy had forecast events, which she did. She measured Miss Hammill's head and neck, and was about measuring her feet when they heard some one coming upstairs. She had used a clothes line for this purpose, and Maggie stood on a chair near the bed-room door. She had placed pins in the clothes line used to indicate the place of measurement, but the pin to hold the rope in place around the neck was not sufficient, so Maggie used a noose, and to relieve herself of the end of the line which she was not using, threw it over the door. Mrs. Merrigan left the room to prevent visitors from entering and discovering her friend in this absurd position. She was absent from the room fifteen minutes. When she re-entered the apartment, Maggie Hammill was suspended by the neck, and the chair was on one side, as if she had upset it and had fallen off. All the prisoner remembered was the glaring eyes of the dead girl staring at her and the artificial teeth. She thought her friend must have tipped off the chair against the door, closing the latter and thereby fastening the rope in the moulding. After that she had no recollection of what occurred.

Readables.

There is just one point which perplexes the World arithmetic man, and nearly drives him frantic every time he attempts to cipher it out. There is no getting around the figures which show that it cost $10,000,000 more to run the State of New York under democratic than under republican rule, and the World man bathes his fevered brow in ice-water, and locks himself in his room alone; but it is all in vain, he cannot account for it.

The trial of Kullman, the would-be assassin of Prince Bismarck, closed Friday. He was found guilty and sentenced to imprisonment and suspension of his civil rights for fourteen years.

Gov. Hendricks looks and speaks seriously of the democratic victory in Indiana as though he felt that it involved a degree of responsibility to which the party was unequal. They had no idea of going into the show business, but the result has given them a collection of "elephants" that already gives them considerable trouble. Their groundless attacks on the beneficial legislation of the republican party, their extravagant pledges to bring about at once a political millennium, are already filling their anxious minds with the fear that perhaps they cannot do so well, certainly not any better.

Two ladies in London recently hired a cab, and were subsequently taken ill with the small-pox, from which one of them died. The survivor has since sued the cab-owner for damages, alleging that the disease was contracted by riding in an infected cab. The defendant has put in the plea that the ladies hired nothing but the cab from him, and that neither did they demand nor did he intend that small-pox should accompany the cab. Had the ladies come to him and hired a cab which he represented to be infected with small-pox, they could probably have maintained a suit against him in case they had been dissatisfied with the quantity or quality of the disease.

The assistant receiving-teller of the National Bank of Redemption, at Boston, Mr. George H. Kingsbury, was arrested Friday morning for the embezzlement of $7500, and was bound over in $5000 for trial in the superior court.

Forest fires are raging in the vicinity of Oxford, Union City, Greenville, Dodson, Logan, Crestline, Bellefontaine and Delaware, Ohio, and Rushville, Indiana, and Russell, Kentucky. There is great scarcity of water at all points. Fires are reported also in Pennsylvania.

Hon. Joseph Medill has purchased a controlling interest in the Chicago Tribune. The paper will be republican, hereafter.

The Newburyport Herald says; A West Newbury farmer before beginning to pick his apples went to Georgetown and bought two hundred and fifty barrels, thinking that two hundred would contain his apples and fifty his crop of onions. He went at his trees and filled all his barrels with apples, bought another hundred in this city and filled them, and on Thursday he was in town to buy a hundred barrels more. He told a friend here that where he expected three barrels on a tree he picked nearly seven. The crop of Baldwins hereabouts is astonishing.

Two men in Nashua have raised fifteen tons of Concord grapes this season.

The editor of the Mirror went home from a cooning excursion one day last week, carrying fourteen specimens.

In blasting a rock for the Ogdensburg Railroad in the White Mountain Notch, a few miles beyond the Willey House, a careless workman used an iron bar for tamping a charge of powder, occasioning a premature explosion, which injured three men very seriously. One of them: Aaron McDonald of Cape Breton, assistant foreman, who was less injured than the others, was taken to the City Hospital in Portland.

A little daughter of Fred Parker, of Westmoreland, recently sat down in a bucket of hot water and was severely burned.

The four banks in Manchester, to guard against such robberies as occurred at Milford, some time since made arrangements so that three or more clerks are required to unlock all of the doors leading to the vaults and safe.

A Lake Village man says that the street lamps in that place are lighted in the afternoon, so as to see to do it, and that after dark the person who has charge of them goes round with a lantern to see if they are burning.

Dana T. Symonds, a son of S. T. Symonds of West Harrisville, met with a severe and almost fatal accident by the accidental discharge of his gun. As he was out gunning he had occasion to stop at the cider mill of Mr. Chas. N. Nye, and sitting down near an aperture in the floor, with the butt of his gun resting near it, he reached out to catch an apple which was tossed him, causing the gun to slip through the hole and striking the hammer which discharged the contents of one barrel upward, cutting the side of his neck and head and completely severing one ear. The wound though painful, is not considered dangerous.

Two brothers, Daniel B. and H. G. Bennett, who are hunting up the Little Magallowy, near Parmachene Lake, had quite an amusing adventure with a beaver a few days since. They caught him in a trap but Mr. Beaver not considering the situation a desirable one applied his teeth to the tree to which the trap was fastened, and so freed himself, and left with the trap and a large piece of wood attached, seeking protection in a hole in the mud, where he was found and unearthed by the hunters. The first attempt to pull him out by the trap resulted in getting only a foot. Next day a shovel was brought into requisition, and in a short time their prize was secured.

The manufacture of buck gloves is an important industry in the little town of Plymouth, and the business, opened thirty years ago, employs a dozen establishments in the town itself and many more within a radius of a few miles, the total product in the vicinity being 10,000 dozen a year.

Bret Harte on Confucius.

Chinese Cosmogony.—In the beginning of the world, the world was Ktse Kiang, who died. His blood became rivers, his bones granite, his hair, trees, etc.; and finally, the insects which infested his body became people.

Confucius—His Habits.—In walking, the Master usually put one foot before the other; when he rested it was generally on both legs.

If in walking he came upon a stone, he would kick it out of the way; if it were too heavy he would step over or around it.

Happening once to kick a large stone, he changed countenance.

The Superior Person wore his clothes in the ordinary manner, never putting his shoes upon his head, nor his cap upon his feet.

He always kept the skirts of his robe, before and behind, evenly adjusted. He permitted not the unseemly exposure of his undergarment at any time.

When he met his visitors he rushed towards them with his arms open like wings.

His Poetry.—The following was written in his sixty-fifth year, on leaving Loo:

"Oh, I fain would still look toward Loo,
But this Kwel hill cuts off my view—
With an axe I will hew
This thicket all through
That obscures the clear prospect of Loo."

In later years the following was composed by his disciple Shun:

"There was once a sage called Confu-
Cius, whose remarks were not few;
He said, 'I will hew
This blasted hill through.'"

While his friends remarked quietly, 'Do.'"

His Ethics.—The Master said, "One virtue goes a great way. In a jar of chow-chow, properly flavored with ginger, even a dead mouse is palatable.

On Wan asking him if it were proper to put dead mice in chow-chow, he replied, "It is the custom."

When he heard that Chang had beheaded an entire province, he remarked, "This is carrying things to an excess."

On being asked his opinion on impalement, he replied that "the end did not justify the means."

Hop Kee asked him how to tell the superior man. The Master replied, "How, indeed?"

The Duke Shang asked him one day, "What constitutes the State?" Confucius replied, "The question is asinine."

His Jokes.—One day, being handed a two-foot rule, Confucius opened it the wrong way, whereupon it broke. The Master said, quietly, that, "it was a poor rule that wouldn't work both ways."

Observing that Wan Sing was much addicted to opium, the Master said: "Filial regard is always beautiful." "Why?" asked his disciple. "He loves his poppy," replied the Master, changing countenance.

"Is that nankeen?" asked the great Mencius, as he carelessly examined the robe that enfolded the bosom of the fair Yau Sing, "No," replied the Master calmly, "that's Pekin."

The Dictates of Common Sense.

Persons who in most things are prompt to obey the dictates of common sense, too often neglect them when they point to the necessity of promptly revitalizing the depleted body and the wearied mind. And yet how foolish and dangerous it is to neglect such monitions! Disease follows closely on the track of weakness and exhaustion. Arrest his silent but rapid stride by prompt invigoration. The most reliable agent that can be selected for this purpose is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a palatable hygeian elixir which possesses the true requisites for toning, regulating and tranquilizing both body and mind, and which is, besides, the chosen remedy of the American people for relieving weakness or disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, as well as the numerous array of complaints which ultimately follow derangements of these organs.

MORTALITY PREVENTED.

It would be a moderate estimate to place the number of cases in which Consumption is prevented by the timely use of HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR, at ten thousand per annum. No cough, cold, bronchial affection, sore throat, or other ailment of the organs of respiration, can ever degenerate into a mortal disease, if this palatable and absolutely infallible specific be taken in time and long enough persevered in.

Gatherings in the South.

There has been much written lately that is very dubious about political gatherings and conflict of races, yet there is one class of gatherings all over the South about which there is not even the shadow of doubt, namely, gatherings for the purpose of purchasing the remaining tickets for the next and last Gift Concert of the Public Library of Kentucky, to come off November 30. The South has been impoverished, and a reasonable share of that $2,500,000 then to be distributed will be very acceptable.

Circuit Court.

[We continue the testimony of Paymaster Carpenter and others taken Friday. Court meets this morning at 9.45.]

On cross examination, Mr. Carpenter testified that he was born in Kentucky; live in Washington in hired house; when first appointed was sent to the coast of Africa—recited where he had been until 1867, when he came here. Paymaster Gilman was his successor. Sea pay was $300 more than on shore. From the time I left Portsmouth a year or two I received $2100, then I went in the Colorado and received $4400. My furniture when I was relieved from here was under attachment, perhaps, and was sold by agreement to pay my debts. The agreement was with my creditors.

Efficient officers were relieved during the war from sea duty and placed on shore duty. The official promulgation that officers after three years' sea duty should have shore duty was made in March, 1869, I think. This order in some degree was retroactive, I think. The general orders are issued by Secretary of Navy, revokable at his pleasure. I paid my two clerks and messenger from government funds; messenger resided in my family. My clerk, Mr. Cheever, was, I understand, a republican. I dismissed him. I also understood Jones to be an abolitionist. The messenger may have done work in my family. His wife did. I furnished the messenger board; objected to saying how much he was allowed for office rent, and witness was sustained by the Court. Gen. Marston explained why he regarded it right and proper that the question should be answered in relation to office rent; witness instructed to answer—was allowed $250 per year.

Commutation or quarters included all expenses for fuel, etc. I did not pay for my groceries and household expenses out of government funds. I did not keep my own funds and those of the government in one account at the bank; that may have been your case, General. I don't think while I was connected with Potomac Flotilla there were any rebel batteries on the shore. I have heard of reports of fights while I was there, but don't know of my own knowledge that there was any. The law required me to award the contract to the lowest bidder, and also sometimes to advertise for bids, sometimes to send out an invitation to three bidders to furnish articles within three days.

I still say that a Fast day and a Sunday occurred in the three days which were allowed for the bid of Mr. Bailey on the 7th of April. This was the only bid. My clerk accepted the bid. This was the only bid he ever accepted,—and the articles delivered at the yard. I neither know nor care whether he could have got them back or not, after they were delivered.

There was only one bid for brushes from Mr. Bailey. I am very certain I did not pay for only one lot. I don't remember that Mr. Bailey ever furnished any cannel coal.

[Gen. Marston here introduced an order to Mr. Bailey from Paymaster Carpenter, with his name printed on it, for ten tons cannel coal, and also orders for other miscellaneous articles, which orders Mr. Carpenter said he knew nothing about.]

Mr. Bailey made many bids while I was here. Some were rejected because they were not the lowest. Several others in town also bid. My business was not confined to this town. I generally kept two dogs. I don't think I had four a great while. Kept two guns. Was very fond of gunning. Never heard of any complaint about being away from my office. Was generally there every day. There was not many days that I was not there an hour. Left my clerks there when I was away. They could pay small bills out of the safe, say $50 to $100, but could not draw checks.

I never voted but once while I was here; never went to the selectmen to get Spencer's name off the check list. I knew that Spencer had not been here six months and Jones came the same day, and I went to the selectmen to see if they would put Jones' name on. I did not hide Spencer away election day. I vote a straight democratic ticket and take my whiskey straight. [Marston, with his significant finger gesture: "H'm! Ah! Take it straight to-day?" "No."] I advertised my bid in CHRONICLE and Boston Post. No other paper here, I think. I cannot remember about the Times and States and Union. I was not allowed to advertise in only two papers. Perhaps I did advertise in the States and Union; guess I did. Think I had an order from the Navy Department to do so. Know I did. It opposed the administration. As a rebel paper I think Pomeroy's Democrat was a little ahead of it. It was a pretty spicy paper. Gideon Wells was Secretary of the Navy who issued the order, I think. I was my own man, an original Grant man but, did not vote for ten years and then voted democratic ticket in New Hampshire. Named my horse after Gen. Grant. [Marston — "Cared about him, I suppose, as you would a horse."] I really can't tell what my politics were, nor whether I was a Johnson man; attended both kinds of political meetings when I had a chance. Don't think I was a vice president of a democratic meeting. I think Mr. Bailey called to see Henry Wilson while he was at my home. Mr. Wilson came partly to see my wife. Have known Mr. Wilson for a long time.

[Direct examination.] The witness described how his office was arranged in his house. My office was within one square of the Post office in State street or nearly so. My pay is now $2600 on account of an increase of five years' service while I was on the Potomac flotilla. The rebels were supposed to have possession of Virginia.

[Cross-examination.] I don't know that what was called the "Northern Neck" was in possession of our troops. Think there were rebels there; don't know that it was perfectly safe while I was there.

[Marston—"Did you ever hear a shot fired while in the service?" Yes. I heard shots fired at Fredericksburg. Marston—"How came you, a naval Paymaster, at Fredericksburg? and where were you?" I was on the banks of the river on leave of absence.] Officers are not always, when relieved, ordered to Washington to settle their accounts. It is not usual. They are ordered to settle somewhere.

Don't remember that I ever declined to pay for government goods because I had no money. At one time I declined to pay because I had no money under a certain appropriation; it was for travelling expenses. Don't recollect any other case. Kept separate accounts for separate appropriations. There were many separate appropriations for separate traders here. I did not trouble the Bank but kept my money there under one head.

Thomas H. Eastman, commander in Navy; born in New York; rendezvous in this city; have known Paymaster Carpenter since 1864; from then till the war ended, he served under my orders daily, I being Fleet Captain of the Potomac Flotilla which operated on all the rivers on Chesapeake Bay except the James. There were 46 vessels engaged in enforcing the blockade. From Acquia Creek down, the shores were occupied almost entirely by rebels. Paymaster Carpenter was required to pass from one vessel to the other nearly every day and night. Paymaster Carpenter performed his duty faithfully and satisfactorily.

[Small; "no question here as to how he performed his duties elsewhere except here."]

I have been personally acquainted with him as officers usually are who are associated together.

Cross Examination. Commodore Parker commanded the Flotilla. I commanded the Don. Nearly all the time, Hooker was in our command; [Marston—"And a Dutch captain?" Yes.] About half the vessels were formerly mercantile vessels. I took the place of the Fleet Captain who was relieved.

George H. Spencer (colored.) Am waiter in the Ebbett House, Washington. First knew Mr. Carpenter in 1863. He was Paymaster on the Potomac. He came to Portsmouth and I came with him as messenger. I stayed with him till he left here. Lived in Cheever House on State street; witness described office in house. I lived in his house with my wife. He had two clerks, Cheever and Jones. Think Jones is in England. Office hours were from 9 to 3. The clerks, one of them was there then and Mr. Carpenter was there most of the time. If not there was generally around. I know when Mr. Wilson was there. Know Mr. Bailey; don't know whether Mr. Bailey was there then or not. I voted the republican ticket in this court house. Mr. Carpenter never tried to influence my vote.

Cross Examination. I got $25 a month; my wife got $10 more. Sometimes Mr. Carpenter went gunning, out of business hours.

A Happy Anniversary.

On Saturday last, Mr. F. W. de Rochemont, the well known insurance agent, completed his "threescore years and ten," and about sixty of his friends and relatives decided on short notice to celebrate the occasion by a genuine surprise party, the family at Newington being let into the secret. Saturday was a busy day with the veteran of insurance blanks and he returned home bent on a night's writing to complete the labor of the week. But here a snag was found, for rare old "Uncle Ben" Shillaber, God bless him, had dropped down from Chelsea, and armed with an invitation from a neighbor insisted that "Father William" spend the evening "out" at whist. A caravan in which a four-horse team was chiefest, went from this city Newingtonward about seven o'clock. Fearful of premature discovery the passengers stealthily debarked and took possession of the deRochemont mansion. A messenger dispatched for the whist players soon brought our old insurance friend and the jolly "Mrs. Partington" in hot haste back to the house—and then the "trouble" commenced. Paling at sight of so unusual a number of callers, the "guest" of the evening could hardly recover his equanimity ere a round of hand-shaking ensued that must have made his heart leap for joy. Silence then being enjoined, Hon. Albert R. Hatch addressed Mr. deRochemont, referring to his record of seventy years, the respect and affection in which he is held, the honor and esteem growing out of such continuous intimacy, and the pleasure it gave all present to greet him as he entered "the sere and yellow leaf" of his earthly existence, and to testify more fully their appreciation by the presentation of a silver tea-set, which had until then been hid from view by the manly forms of the stalwart Kent, the irrepressible Miller, the jolly Hilton, the beaming Jones, the benevolent Marcy, the rubicund Capt. Moses, the cheerful Leavitt et id omne genus. But Mr. deRochemont was not to be caught napping, and in a few words that were none the less eloquent because unstudied, replied to the felicitous speech of Mr. Hatch with feeling and earnestness, the applause at the close testifying the relief of the party at his release from what would have been to many an unpleasant predicament.

Then came Hon. Frank Jones to the charge, asking in a brief and well worded speech the acceptance of a gold-headed ebony cane, to which, being by this time "acclimated" to the new order of things, Mr. deRochemont again made reply. Scarcely had congratulations ceased when B. P. Shillaber, Esq., asked the indulgence of all for "three-quarters of an hour" while he should review the life and services of "our friend." To do justice to the quaint delivery and the droll conceits which in and out of rhyme convulsed the assembled company is a task beyond our ability. Justice to our esteemed literateur, who was introduced as "Mrs. Partington, sister-in-law to Mr. deRochemont," forbids a description of the production or the publication of remembered extracts. We have as yet been unable to borrow, beg or steal the document, but as there were frequent calls for a re-reading by those who had heard it and others who arrived too late, it is hoped that the genial "sister-in-law" will let it see the light of day. It was read with unction and caused laughter that none present could control, and the tears rolled down the cheeks of the auditors while they held their aching sides. Every sentence had a happy hit and was responded to with shouts of merriment.

The ladies of the family had made preparations for the coming host, and the ladies and gentlemen of the party were soon putting themselves outside of one of the bounteous suppers which have made the deRochemont homestead widely famed in days gone by. At its conclusion, the entire party engaged in singing, the deRochemont brothers and sister obliging those present by some of their favorite selections. About ten o'clock, "Old Hundred" closed the festivities and good byes were said. The ride home—well it isn't worth describing, to absentees. Every song and hymn in the remembrance of the gay party which had ever been evolved from discord and brought into harmony since the year One, was brought out with an emphasis that must have startled the inhabitants of Gosling road. And the chief remembrance of the whole occasion is the pleasure conferred upon the patriarchal policy dealer, the rare enjoyment born of the brain of B. P. Shillaber, and the feast that was partaken of so heartily.

Rye and Newcastle Road.

The new highway and bridge between Rye and Newcastle through the Davis farm, ordered built by the County Commissioners, is in progress of construction. The bridge is nearly completed by the contractors, Messrs J. R. Holmes and A. B. Trefethen, and would have been finished some time since, but for the necessity of adding about another hundred feet to the first contract, on account of a mistake in the measurement returned to and accepted by the Commissioners. The small portion of the road within the limits of Portsmouth at the junction with Sagamore road has been built by the day, and well made, under direction of Street Commissioner Holmes, and Newcastle is soon to build the limited section within her territory.

On Saturday afternoon, the Selectmen of Rye sold by auction on the premises the construction of the 243 rods of the road which lays within the limits of that town. The bids were started at $5000, and went slowly, slowly, and more slowly down to the minimum sum of $1640, at which the job was knocked down to Mr. Emery Woodman of Rye. The terms of the contract require that the road shall be made passable by Dec. 1st, and finished by April 1st, next.

Laconics.

The Dover Democrat doubts if there is evidence enough to convict Michael Hoffman of the crime of arson. He is charged with burning the barn of Mr. Joseph Fernald at Dover Point.

Will the Journal be so kind as to inform us where South Summer street is?

We are desired to state that the girl who was assaulted at Newmarket Junction, and for which a Durham woman was fined, was not taken from the Brentwood County Farm, but from that of Merrimac County.

Hon. Wm. H. Y. Hackett has been appointed by the Court of Commissioners of Alabama claims, a Commissioner to take testimony in support of claims before that court.

The extension of the wires of the Franklin Telegraph Company, from Straw's Point, in Rye, to Boston, was completed on Saturday. Mr. A. D. Brown, the constructor, erected 1300 poles in fourteen working days, and stretched 56 miles of compound (equal to No. 6 iron) wire in five working days.

The Times, after copying without credit our court report with slight alterations, says "the cross-examination did not differ from the material facts set forth in the direct testimony," but neglects to give the testimony of Capt. Eastman and Mr. Spencer. Our readers who peruse the report which we publish to-day, and which the Times did not deem worthy of publication, because it did not have it to publish, will find it quite juicy.

The Richings-Bernard Opera Company of eighteen which gave such a delightful concert in this city a year or two ago, will appear at the Temple on the 13th inst.

STOVES! STOVES!

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Oven Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

TIN AND SHEET IRON WORK.

We are practical Tin and Sheet Iron Workers, and are prepared to do work in our line in the most substantial and workmanlike manner, and at figures as low as anybody.

TIN ROOFING a specialty.

A Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

—THE—

Art Journal of America,

ISSUED MONTHLY.

"A magnificent conception, magnificently carried out."

The necessity of a popular medium for the representation of the productions of our great native artists, has always been recognized, and many attempts have been made to meet the want. The successive failures which so invariably followed each attempt to establish an art journal, did not prove an indifference of the people of America to the claims of high art. So soon as a proper appreciation of the want and an ability to meet it were shown, the public at once rallied with enthusiasm to its support, and the result was a great artistic and commercial triumph—THE ALDINE.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful lifeature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there is the chrome, besides!

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in no narrow sense. True art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate only on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign sources.

The article illustration of American scenery, original with THE ALDINE, is an important feature, and its magnificent plates are of a size more appropriate to the satisfactory treatment of details than can be afforded by any inferior page. The judicious interspersion of landscape, marine, figure, and animal subjects, sustain an unabated interest, impossible where the scope of the work confines the artist too closely to a single style of subject. The literature of THE ALDINE is a light and graceful accompaniment, worthy of the artistic features, with only such technical disquisitions as do not interfere with the popular interest of the work.

PREMIUM FOR 1875.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in oil colors, of the same noble dog whose picture in a former issue attracted so much attention.

"Man's Unselfish Friend"

Will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves such a dog, and the portrait is executed so true to the life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage tells us that his own Newfoundland dog (the finest in Brooklyn) barks at it! Although so natural, no one who sees this chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.

THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. To every series of 5000 subscribers, 100 different pieces, valued at over $2,500, are distributed as soon as the series is full, and the awards of each series as made, are to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.

TERMS.

One Subscription, entitling to THE ALDINE one year, the Chromo and the Art Union,

SIX DOLLARS PER ANNUM, IN ADVANCE.

(No charge for postage.)

Specimen copies of THE ALDINE, fifty cents.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON, President.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of three years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

He is no novice or humbug to beg, borrow or buy boisters to uphold him in an art he does not fully understand in every phase of its beauty; but would respectfully point to the best of references, WORKS, and ability to discover, develope and train inherent talent to accomplish splendid results. His pupils are shining in private and public, here and elsewhere. His many Musical Exhibitions—such as others seldom or never present to the public—have been and will still be his solid credentials, aside from fawning favoritism where true merit is too often absent. Terms, $12 for twelve weeks (twenty-four lessons) at his Music Room, or $15 at the pupil's residence, for Piano or Scientific Vocalization, separately or together. Mr. Moses will also Tune Pianos,—a business "familiar as household words" to him,—and solicits orders.

REPRINTS

OF THE

British Periodicals.

The political ferment among the European nations, the strife between Church and State, the discussion of Science in its relation to Theology, and the constant publication of new works on these and kindred topics, will give unusual interest to the leading foreign Reviews during 1875. Nowhere else can the inquiring reader find in a condensed form the facts and arguments necessary to guide him to a correct conclusion.

The Leonard Scott Publishing Co.,

41 BARCLAY ST., NEW YORK.

Continue the reprint of the four leading Reviews, viz:

PETERSON'S MAGAZINE,

THE CHEAPEST AND BEST IN THE WORLD.

Postage Prepaid on all Subscriptions.

This popular monthly magazine gives more for the money than any in the world. For 1875, it will be greatly improved. It will contain one thousand pages, fourteen splendid steel plates, twelve colored Berlin patterns, twelve mammoth colored fashions, nine hundred wood cuts, twenty-four pages of music. All this will be given for only two dollars a year, postage prepaid by the publisher,—or a dollar a year less than other magazines of the class of "Peterson." Its

Thrilling Tales and Novelettes

Are the best published anywhere. All the most popular writers are employed to write originally for "Peterson." In 1875, in addition to the usual quantity of short stories, FIVE ORIGINAL COPYRIGHT NOVELETTES will be given, by Mrs. Ann S. Stephens, Frank Lee Benedict, Jane G. Austin, Marietta Holley, and Daisy Ventnor.

Mammoth Colored Fashion Plates

Ahead of all others. These plates are engraved on steel, are of twice the usual size, and unequalled for beauty. They will be superbly colored. Also, household and other receipts; in short, everything interesting to ladies.

Superb Premium Engraving.

To every person getting up either of the following clubs for 1875 will be sent, gratis, a copy of our new and splendid mezzotint for framing, (size 21 inches by 26,) "Washington's First Interview With His Wife." This is a fine dollar engraving, and the most desirable premium ever offered. For large clubs, as will be seen below, an extra copy of the magazine will be sent in addition.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with Section 1.

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

STOVES! STOVES!

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, sold by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Elephant, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Sun, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Open Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1874.

Readables.

Elections take place in twenty-three States and three Territories to-day. Louisiana chose six Congressmen on Monday and there are to be 206 more elected to-day. We have made arrangements for the latest news by telegraph and hope to give the result in to-morrow morning's issue.

The Louisiana election took place on Monday. Returns indicate that the republicans elect five of the six Congressmen and perhaps all.

Has it taken the Nashua Telegraph all this time to ascertain what an arrant political humbug Henry L. Dawes is?

The war department, in accordance with the law, is reducing the personnel of the army to 25,000, there now being about 27,000 in the service. The reductions will leave one officer, commissioned and non-commissioned, to every eleven men, the law having made no provision for a reduction of the officers.

The official majorities for Congressmen at the recent election in Maine were as follows: Burleigh 1460, Frye 1382, Blaine 2783, Hersey 2915, Hale 2155. Total 10,695.

The Ohio forest fires are abating.

The verdict of the coroner's jury on the explosion of the City of Brooklyn, on Lake Erie, declares Stoddard, the first engineer of the steamer, responsible for the disaster.

The Charlestown Advertiser says of Congressman Dawes: "We never did see such a cow to kick over its own milk."

The Mobile yellow fever yarn is a canard.

The Bostons brought their season to a triumphant close on Saturday afternoon, being as in former years the only club which completed all its series, having played in all seventy championship games, including ten with the Baltimores, who disbanded before the season closed. Of the sixty games which are to be counted, the Bostons won forty-three and lost seventeen. The Mutuals come next, with fifty-six games played, with thirty-four won, twenty-four lost, and two games unplayed. No club won a complete series from any other, though the Bostons got nine games with the Hartfords and eight each with the Athletics and Philadelphias, while the Mutuals took nine from Chicago and the Athletics nine from the Philadelphias. The Bostons won amajority of the ten games with every club with a single exception—that of the Mutuals, with whom the series was equally divided.

Mayor Warren of Biddeford is an apothecary and it is said sells intoxicating liquor. Hearing that a Sheriff's posse would search his store on Saturday he barricaded the door and threatened to shoot. This didn't go down, however, and he let the officers in, giving them a salute with a vessel of ammonia which nearly choked them. What a beautiful example of law and order this democratic Mayor affords! And what a howl there would be if the officers should attack him with his own weapons. A democrat's principles will crop out wherever he is.

A fire at Selim's Grove, Penn., Friday evening, burned the stable of George Schnure. A heavy wind prevailed, and over two squares in the central part of the town were burned, including the Keystone and National hotels, the Central schoolhouse, Methodist church and the Times printing office. About sixty buildings were burned in all. Loss, $120,000.

Says the Chicago Tribune: Among the men who are memorable for their lost opportunities, Mr. Henry L. Dawes of Massachusetts is rapidly becoming conspicuous. He is a man of ability, but sadly deficient in perseverance. By fits and starts he takes the highest stand in statesmanship, and then fleeing from his own enlarged shadow, seeks safety by running into the nearest hole.

Mrs. Sarah Thornton, wife of Joshua Thornton of Day's Hollow, N. Y., was murdered by her brother-in-law, Levi Thornton, with a pocket knife, because she refused to elope with him.

State News.

The dead-lock in the Manchester board of aldermen on the election of ward officers was broken on Saturday evening, when the mayor and the four democratic members of the board appointed the officers in question at a special meeting.

Martin Gordon of Suncook was drowned on Friday night by falling through the first bridge, Suncook side, at Hooksett Falls. He had been to assist a man across the bridge to the Hooksett side, and was on his way back, when it is supposed he had a fit, to which he was subject, and fell through the bridge. He was about forty years of age, and leaves a wife and two children.

A Henniker man will send ten barrels of apples to a daughter who lives in Nevada. The freight will be about $30.

James Stevens, a real estate broker in Concord, was arraigned in the police court on Saturday, and held in $1800 on a charge of defrauding Onius D. Smith in the sale of certain property, having represented it free from incumbrance, when it was mortgaged.

The Milford Five Cents Savings Bank has suspended; the trustees have presented a petition to the Supreme Court for an injuction against the bank's paying out deposits till it can be put into the hands of the Commissioner. Excitement runs high, though the bank will pay dollar for dollar, it is thought.

Twenty-one Halls attended a party at Croydon Flat a short time since, and they weren't h'all there either.

Hereafter no Dartmouth student will be allowed to teach more than one term during a college year.

Mr. Smith Roberts, employed as section hand on the Boston, Concord and Montreal Railroad, was run over between Northfield and Tilton by the late express for Boston, Friday evening. He was discovered by the engineer, but not in time to stop the train before Mr. Roberts was thrown from the track. He is not expected to live.

Peter Cemo was arrested at Suncook, Friday evening, while attempting to break into the passenger station.

Part of the evidence against Pike, the notorious robber who was arrested at Henniker, recently is in his own handwriting, the officers having found a diary of his in which there were records of his robberies.

As Mr. Sullivan Brown, of Croydon, was at work in his field recently, a bird of singular appearance alighted near by. To Mr. Brown's surprise, it allowed him to approach it, take it up and carry it to his house, without exhibiting the least sign of fear. It was about the size of a pigeon and web-footed. After the family had examined the novelty a while, it was carried to the open air to ascertain whether it had lost the use of its wings, or was in any way hurt. Upon its receiving a light toss, its aerial propensities returned, and it soared away to parts unknown.

Mrs. C. G. Burley of Lancaster fell from a pair of stairs and broke her left leg just below the knee.

About two weeks ago a man named Jim Perkins died in Lebanon, Me., as was supposed of Bright's disease of the kidneys. While the body was being prepared for burial, a wound was discovered in the small of the back, apparently made by a buckshot. How the wound came there is not for certainty known. Rumor has it that just before his death he called in a physician and stated to him that while in the act of entering the premises of a gentleman in Rochester, a charge of buckshot was lodged in his back, from the effects of which he received his final quietus. Perkins had a bad reputation. He served one term in the Rhode Island State Prison for horse stealing, and was considered a dangerous character.

Sad Accident to a Boy.

A singular accident happened at Lawrence, to an eleven-year-old son of Alonzo Wickley, which resulted in the loss of his right leg. The father had purchased a pocket-knife for the boy during the day, and while the lad was cutting a piece of thin wood, which was resting upon the thigh of his right leg, the wood split and the blade of the knife was driven into the flesh through the femoral artery. Physicians stopped the flow of the blood with a tourniquet, and after etherizing the patient dissected down to the femoral artery, which was elevated and a ligature applied just above the incision. All compression was then removed and the leg moved in position, when venous blood came pouring out, showing that the femoral vein was, like the artery, badly cut. More physicians were called, and it was decided that the only means of saving the patient's life was the amputation of the leg, and it was taken off, about one-third of the distance from the knee to the body. The patient is doing well, and his recovery is anticipated. The injury was similar to that received by the notorious burglar Carroll Sanborn, who was shot through the thigh by an officer. The surgeon in charge of the house of correction at the time called to his assistance eminent surgical talent from Boston, and an attempt was made to ligature the artery, which proved fatal to the prisoner.

Looking for Charlie Ross.

[St. Paul Pioneer.]

One of our merchants stepped out of his place of business the other day in Brainerd into the warehouse to get a customer a piece of pork. When he dodged back into the store with his meat he discovered the customer occupying an unusually awkward relation to his money drawer, and yelled out, "I say, what are you doing around there?" The cuss kind of dug out from behind that counter, and as he assumed the proper location for a customer to occupy in another man's store—on the south side of the counter—he stammered out, "Oh, I was just—ahem!—I went around there to—ahem!—was just—I thought—I was just looking around there—ahem!—I thought maybe little Charlie Ross was in under the counter, like!"

—A Paris cab driver, who was sent to take a wedding party from church to the breakfast, recognized in the bridegroom a man who had once had him put in prison for debt. Once fairly on the way, he whipped up and drove away from the other cabs, and landed the bride and bridegroom, badly damaged, after an hour's hard drive in a desolate rural district on the wrong road. They got home at midnight.

—It must indeed be dry in Kansas, if it be true, as a local paper says, that "the suffering catfish lies stranded on the blistering bottom of his late happy home, waving his tail in the crisp breezes as a signal of distress."

—Now make molasses candy and set it out on the porch to cool where the Thomas cat can lave his hide in its saccharine flood.

The Dictates of Common Sense.

Persons who in most things are prompt to obey the dictates of common sense, too often neglect them when they point to the necessity of promptly revitalizing the depleted body and the wearied mind. And yet how foolish and dangerous it is to neglect such monitions! Disease follows closely on the track of weakness and exhaustion. Arrest his silent but rapid stride by prompt invigoration. The most reliable agent that can be selected for this purpose is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a palatable hygeian elixir which possesses the true requisites for toning, regulating and tranquilizing both body and mind, and which is, besides, the chosen remedy of the American people for relieving weakness or disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, as well as the numerous array of complaints which ultimately follow derangements of these organs.

MORTALITY PREVENTED.

It would be a moderate estimate to place the number of cases in which Consumption is prevented by the timely use of HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR, at ten thousand per annum. No cough, cold, bronchial affection, sore throat, or other ailment of the organs of respiration, can ever degenerate into a mortal disease, if this palatable and absolutely infallible specific be taken in time and long enough persevered in.

What is the matter?—Your hair looks dry and dead, it breaks off, and is falling out. You dress it with an alcohol and oil mixture or some well advertised Hair Restorer. The hair is poisoned, it is killed. If you would restore it, cast away these things, go buy a bottle of Bearine which can be had of any Druggist, and we will guarantee a change for the better as sure as you live.

Gatherings in the South.

There has been much written lately that is very dubious about political gatherings and conflict of races, yet there is one class of gatherings all over the South about which there is not even the shadow of doubt, namely, gatherings for the purpose of purchasing the remaining tickets for the next and last Gift Concert of the Public Library of Kentucky, to come off November 30. The South has been impoverished, and a reasonable share of that $2,500,000 then to be distributed will be very acceptable.

Circuit Court.

On Monday, the case of Carpenter vs. Bailey was resumed.

John Stimson, Carpenter in Navy. Served on U. S. S. Saratoga 1860 to '63, with Paymaster Carpenter; on the coast of Africa two years. Vessel left Africa by order of the Secretary of the Navy, I suppose, and came home.

Paymaster Carpenter recalled. Furniture was attached sometime previous to my being detached, and during my dispute with Mr. Bailey,—and was released on my giving satisfactory security. Discharged John H. Cheever 1st of May, the day I was ordered to turn over his papers, etc., here. When on Asiatic station, very large amounts of money passed through my hands. My pay of $4400 there, was very little better than my pay here. When on service as fleet paymaster in the Potomac flotilla, one of the gunboats on which I did duty was blown up, and only three men were saved. While on duty in Washington, the rebels invested the city on north and east sides, and Admiral Goldsborough raised all the volunteers he could to man a fort, and I served among the rest. Left Portsmouth in July. Was on duty here till the last day of June. Received orders to report for duty on the Colorado, Feb. 15th. She is a first-class vessel, but not so large, I think, as the Franklin and Niagara. She may carry more guns than any other ship in the Navy. I think there are several stations equally good with the Asiatic,—the Pacific and the Rio. I speak for myself, and from experience. Did not make purchases on the Asiatic station on my own account. Was allowed $250 for office rent, and $2100 for commutation. On board ship had a landsman detailed to attend to me and the fleet surgeon. There were about thirty officers in our mess, including some line officers. Was at the expense of crockery, fitting up staterooms, new uniforms, and entertaining visitors on board, etc. I have refreshed my memory, and think I had one small puppy besides those I alluded to.

[Here the witness left the stand and was recalled by Gen. Marston. Judge Rand then said to the witness that the time of the Court was precious and he wished him to answer the questions of the counsel in a direct manner without making voluntary statements; that otherwise he would not probably have been called back.]

Remember when Vice President Wilson was here in '60. Invited him to my house. Did not solicit a member of the republican committee to have a parade in front of my house. Spencer's wife was a member of my family as nurse, from March, 1868.

Spencer, (colored). Don't know whether Mr. Carpenter went to republican committee and said I had no right to vote. Don't remember whether I said when invited to vote, that Carpenter wouldn't let me. Don't remember that I said I was shut up and couldn't vote.

Plaintiff here rested his case, and Mr. Frink, for defence, claimed that plaintiff must, in order to win his suit, show that there was malice in fact in the petition to our Congressmen for Mr. Carpenter's removal. Gen. Marston also argued that there was no direct or actual libel in the remonstrance or petition, and that no special damage resulted from it. Gen. Marston in opening urged that plaintiff had no case, but the Court decided to go on.

Capt. Eastman, recalled. Reply to Mr. Hatch. The Potomac flotilla was in almost daily danger, from torpedoes, etc. One vessel was blown up and all on board killed but six or seven. [To Mr. Marston.] Did not know where Mr. Carpenter was located, except by report.

Eben F. Brackett, of Portsmouth, painter, employed most of time thirteen years at navy yard; leader of gang. Know Mr. Bailey. Not acquainted with Mr. Carpenter. Had occasion to call on Mr. Carpenter on business. [Ruled out, as of date later than petition.] Was selectman of Ward Two. Recollect Mr. Carpenter came before Board and examined check-list, and objected to Mr. Spencer's voting, as he had not been here long enough. This was for March election. Board did not take any action on Carpenter's request. Always understood Carpenter was a rebel sympathizer, and opposed to the party in power. Carpenter was never to be found at his office. I was there four times in office hours, and never saw him there and his clerk but once. This was the month of May, 1869, I believe. [To Mr. Hatch.] Did not know Mr. Cheever was clerk for Carpenter. Know he was clerk for Mr. Tullock, and at the Yard. Heard people say Carpenter was never at his office—and know that I could not find him. Do not know that there was any sign over his office door. Do not consider State street one of the most public streets the of city. Should think the present Paymaster's office is nearer the Post Office than Mr. Carpenter's. Have heard several people say Carpenter was a rebel sympathizer, and said so myself, because he voted—what I called it then—the Copperhead ticket. (Laughter.) Made the same remark about Clement March because he did not vote; and made the same remark that the whole democratic party were rebel sympathizers. Did not mean to single out Mr. Carpenter particularly in this matter. Mr. Oxford, Bailey and others were present when Carpenter said Spencer had not been here long enough to vote. Did not understand Spencer had not been here six months. Did not pay any attention to Carpenter nor act on what he said. Had seen Carpenter, with gun in hand, pants in boots, and two dogs at his heels, going up State street, at half-past six in the morning. Never spoke to Mr. Carpenter.

[To Mr. Frink.] Do not call State street a business street. Congress street, where the present Paymaster's office is, is a business street.

Elbridge G. Peirce, Jr., Postmaster of Portsmouth for six years. [To Mr. Frink.] Know both Bailey and Carpenter. Had occasion to go to Mr. Carpenter's office, and did not find him there. Went perhaps at quarter to two o'clock. I was in clerk's office at navy yard. Had to get Mr. Carpenter's signature to bills for Mr. Bailey as to price, before we could use the goods. Seemed to be some general complaint that Carpenter was not to be found at his office. Never heard much about Carpenter's rebel sympathy, except on the morning of election, '68, when it was common talk about. Have no knowledge whether or not he was active in politics.

To Mr. Hatch. Think the talk about Mr. Carpenter's politics was about election time. Do not remember talk about it at any other time. Think he was here about two and a half years. Heard complaint only on the one occasion of State election. It was in '67 I was at Carpenter's office to inquire. Everybody called him neglectful of his business—it was notorious. Have no particular recollection of signing this paper, (petition,) but presume I did. Do not know who dictated, wrote or presented it, nor whose name was on it, nor any conversation about it. Believe Cheever had been clerk for Paymaster Gilman.

Lewis G. Davis, formerly selectman of Ward Two, Portsmouth. Selectman six years previous to '72. It was some time ago. My recollection of the matter is, that Mr. Carpenter came in and stated that Spencer lacked two or three days of a legal voting residence here; but that we did not take his name off, and afterward learned his wife had been here long enough to gain him a residence. Do not recollect who called with Carpenter.

J. Horace Kent. I only know by hearsay of Carpenter's neglect of business, previous to being ordered away from here. Heard general complaint that he was not at his office regularly, and that it was hard to find him. It was understood, I think, that he was a democrat, and antagonistic to the administration. Had no occasion to transact business at his office. I do not recollect so that I can swear positively that he advertised in any particular paper. Frequently saw him going into the States and Union office, opposite my home, on Daniel street.

[To Mr. Hatch.] There were other hardware dealers in Portsmouth besides Bailey, one democrat and one republican. Cannot recall any person who said Carpenter was absent from his office. It was generally understood that he was opposed to Grant's administration, and that his appointment was made by Southern influence as Paymaster.

W. H. Y. Hackett. Have known Mr. Carpenter since he was officially stationed here, perhaps ten years. Heard reports that he was not to be found at his office, but have no personal knowledge. Have only a general impression as to political matters—and heard that he removed Mr. Cheever because he voted for Grant and against Johnson.

[To Mr. Hatch.] Think the complaints were about the same time of Carpenter's removal. Cannot state particulars of any of these matters. Have met Carpenter at my office, at his house, and I think at the reading room. Did not know of Vice President Wilson's being here; nor anything of Carpenter's politics except by reputation.

Frank W. Miller. Have resided here over 30 years; was formerly connected with the CHRONICLE; know Carpenter slightly. When Paymaster he first advertised in my paper, the CHRONICLE, and the Journal, and afterward in the States and Union and Boston Post. Post was democratic paper, CHRONICLE and Journal republican and States and Union copperhead. I think I signed the petition for the retirement of Mr. Carpenter. I used to see Mr. Carpenter often go by my farm with dogs and gun. He was generally in sportsman garb with fine dogs and I had not the least objection to it. I used to hear that it was difficult to find him at his office, and judged so myself from seeing him away so much. I have heard complaints from the ward committees that he was in sympathy with the rebels.

Cross Examined. I cannot recollect any particular person whom I heard make these remarks. It was usually I think early part of the day when I saw him go by my house. Cannot tell what season of the year it was; saw him a great many times.

J. P. Morse. Have known Carpenter since he first came here; testified to having had business at his office and being unble to find him sometimes. It was his impression that he sympathized with Andy Johnson. There was considerable talk about the check-list matter relative to his servant; that he wanted to keep his name off the check-list. I attached his household furniture. He gave a receipter and I released the furniture. The house where the Paymaster lived and had his office has always been a dwelling house. The part of State street where his office was, consisted generally of residences. Where Mr. Wendell's office was when he was Navy Agent was nearer Pleasant street and where there are stores.

William H. Hackett. It is my impression that I drafted that petition in question, or made the skeleton and Hon. Ezra A. Stevens brought it to me for my signature, I think. I used to have business at Carpenter's office. I did not find him in as often as I found him out. He was in the habit of going gunning a great deal. The general story was that persons could not get at him to get pay for their bills. Compared with Paymasters who preceded him and followed him, as my own observation was, he was not in his office so much as they.

Cross Examined. I don't recollect whether or not I was summoned at Exeter in April, 1873, in this case. I might have been. I have no specific recollection of drawing this particular paper, but have no doubt I did, as I recollect about the complaints being made about Mr. Carpenter, and Mr. Stevens' coming to me to have a paper drawn. I cannot testify positively without seeing the original. I have not seen it since it was signed; never had any correspondence with any body at Washington relative to this paper. I don't know of any body applying for it at the department. The present Paymaster (Mr. Eldredge) conducts his business on an entirely different manner from what Paymaster Carpenter did. I have no trouble now. When Mr. Wendell was in office I always found him attending to his business. This was before the war. I never went to Carpenter's office without finding a clerk. Hatch—"Isn't the present Paymaster away a great deal and isn't he away now?" Don't know that he has been away much; his business is so arranged that his clerks can attend to it. I understand he has been away a week in attendance on a sick friend, but I have collected more money from his clerks in that week than I did from Mr. Carpenter while he was here.

D. J. Vaughan. I had occasion to do business at Mr. Carpenter's office and never found him there. I went there a dozen times; always before dinner and after 9 o'clock. It was generally reported that he did not attend to his business as much as he ought to. It was the general understanding that his sympathy was with the South. I remember seeing his advertisement in the CHRONICLE first and afterwards in the States & Union.

Cross Examined. Cannot name any particular person whom I heard say he was in sympathy with the South. It was generally understood by my associates that his sympathy was with the South rather than the North during the rebellion. At one time I was on the Navy Yard and had business at Mr. Carpenter's office. On one occasion I took some bills there to be certified to; could not find Carpenter and took them back. Capt. Thornton and Capt. Badger sent me with them; it was in 1867.

Rufus K. Oxford. Keep a grocery store, 78 State street, opposite Post Office; formerly kept store next to Mr. Wendell's. Where Mr. Carpenter lived was not much of a business place. I was present at the meeting of the Selectmen referred to here to-day. Mr. Carpenter came in alone and requested that the name of the man be stricken from the list. He left the hall and did not like it. The man was Spencer, a colored gentleman. Spencer voted the republican ticket. I called down to Mr. Carpenter to call Mr. Spencer to come and vote on election day. Spencer said Mr. Carpenter was at home and he could not come. He did not come and I went to the house again in about an hour. Spencer came to the door, and said he did not know as he should be seen and if I would go up he would immediately come; said he should have to go out of the gate on Washington street so he should not be seen. I watched him; he came out of the gate on Washington street, went up Court and Pleasant streets to the Court House to vote; a circuitous route and a third or quarter further. Have had occasions to do business at Mr. Carpenter's office; could not find him at all. It was in business hours. People said that he was inattentive and it ought not to be; he ought to be down South where he belonged; good respectable citizens who came about my store.

Hatch. "Do any such persons go to your store?" I think so. I think Mr. Hatch has been there. Hatch. "You do think so, sir; has Mr. Hatch been there?" I think so, sir, would be willing to take my oath that you have, and Mr. Wendell and others.

Court adjourned to nine o'clock, this morning.

Temperance Meetings.

The union temperance meetings held in the Temple, so far as numbers and interest are concerned are a decided success, the gallery and parquet being filled Sunday evening, many being unable to obtain seats. The following clergymen were present and took part in the meeting: Messrs. Goss, Alden, Hardy, Martyn, Hebard and Harmon. We wish the movement may be sustained. The aim of the meetings is for reformation, and partakes largely of the religious element. A wonderful work is being done in this direction in Biddeford and Saco; we hope it may produce the same good results here. To continue the meetings, the friends of temperance will need to unite to meet the expense of the Temple. Either of the clergymen in the city is authorized to receive contributions for this object.

Laconics.

News was received on Monday of the death in New York of Mr. Charles P. Eldredge, who for nearly two years has been on duty at this station as clerk to Paymaster Rufus Parks. Mr. Eldredge while here made many friends, being of a genial nature and cheerful disposition, a favorite in society and an accomplished gentleman. He attended to the duties of the office, although suffering acutely, until about ten days ago, when he was forced to give up and was taken home.

One hundred and twenty-five Portsmouth mechanics and laborers were discharged from the navy yard, Saturday.

Rev. H. Lummis is to give the second lecture in the Methodist Episcopal Church on Thursday evening next. Subject, "The Stars." Mr. Lummis is an original thinker, delivering his lecture extempore, making it thereby fresh and interesting to his hearers. As the lecture will be full of instruction as well as interest, the lecture committee will admit members of the public schools at fifteen cents each. Tickets to be procured at the door.

Discharged navy yard workmen and all others who desire the staff of life cheap will consult the advertisement of J. Rider & Son.

Capt. Glenn of schooner Iris of Eliot, reports falling in with the wreck of an unknown schooner on Sunday, off Boon Island, of about 100 tons, laden with lumber partly burned, the masts being alongside. The stern of the vessel was burned to the water's edge. Two jibs, the chains and the unburnt part of her rigging were carried into York. The Iris sailed again on Monday to pick up the wreck.—Since the above was in type we hear that schooner Susan Jane, from Bangor for Kittery with lumber for Luther Call, ran ashore Saturday night on York ledge and was set on fire by the bursting of a lamp, and afterward floated off.

If Mayor Goodrich will have the name of the street on which he resides correctly spelled on the lantern at the corner of Congress street, he will obliterate an eye-sore that has tempted more than one good citizen to put a stone through it.

In our report of the examination of Paymaster Carpenter it was stated that he was born in Kentucky. Our reporter evidently misunderstood the word as Mr. Carpenter was born in Virginia, but was appointed from Kentucky. In all other regards the report was correct, several members of the bar vouching for its correctness. The italics were our own.

We wish to express our obligations to Albert R. Hatch for advertising our report of the libel suit on trial before the Circuit Court, although he stated that it was "prejudicial and inaccurate;" and would recommend him in the future to confine himself strictly to the truth in his remarks about the CHRONICLE.

Enough is now known of the character of the annual estimates to show that they will be more than ten millions less than last year. The estimates are very much reduced. The cost of the navy remains about the same, while the army in some of its supplies was cut below its real necessities at the last session. The treasury estimates have been framed exactly upon what the house gave in its last appropriation. The cost of the Indian service will not be diminished. The deficiency in the Post Office department will be increased, owing to its rapid extension and added facilities. As a total result, however, the reductions are, as stated, something over ten millions. Gen. Humphries asks for $35,000 for the earthworks on Gerrish's island and $35,000 at Jaffrey's Point.

The Pilot Commissioners have revoked the commissions of pilots Rufus A. Preble, Jr., and John Amazeen, 2d, of Newcastle, and John Brackett, of Newmarket.

The lyceum lecture this evening by Jas. Steele Mackaye, on "Dramatic Expression," will be instructive and amusing. Tickets twenty-five cents.

George Moore, a fisherman belonging to the schooner Celia, walked overboard from Rollins' wharf early Sunday evening. His cries for help brought Daniel Palmer, John Lynch and one of the crew of the schooner Lizzie D. Saunders to his assistance, who rescued him.

The Catholics of Portsmouth are respectfully requested to meet at the Ward Room on State street this (Tuesday) evening, Nov. 3, at 7:30 o'clock. Business of importance is to be transacted. It is necessary that every Catholic should be present.

A Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

—THE—

Art Journal of America,

ISSUED MONTHEY.

"A magnificent conception, magnificently carried out."

The necessity of a popular medium for the representation of the productions of our great native artists, has always been recognized, and many attempts have been made to meet the want. The successive editors which so invariably followed each attempt to establish an art journal, did not prove the indifference of the people of America to the claims of high art. So soon as a proper appreciation of the want and an ability to meet it were shown, the public at once rallied with enthusiasm to its support, and the result was a great artistic and commercial triumph—THE ALDINE.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—a delicate and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quality of last year or any succeeding one in any other shape or number of volumes for less than its cost; and then, there is the chromo, besides!

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in no narrow sense. True art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate nicely on grounds of intrinsic merit. The while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign sources.

PREMIUM FOR 1875.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in oil colors, of the same noble dog whose picture is a former issue attracted so much attention.

"Man's Unselfish Friend"

Will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves such a dog, and the portrait is executed so true to the life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage tells us that his own Newfoundland dog (the finest in Brooklyn) barks at it! Although so natural, no one who sees this chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.

THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among its members. To every series of 5000 subscribers, 100 different pieces, valued at over $2,500, are distributed as soon as the series is full, and the awards of each series as made, are to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.

TERMS.

One Subscription, entitling to THE ALDINE one year, the Chromo and the Art Union,

SIX DOLLARS PER ANNUM, IN ADVANCE.

(No charge for postage.)

Specimen copies of THE ALDINE, fifty cents.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where a certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON, President.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

—USE

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGARE."

THOS. P. MOSES, thorough and tasteful Teacher of Music, from A in its alphabet to composition and arrangement, has concluded not to accept a recent call to go South again, but will retain his permanent location in the grand "Old Town by the Sea" where he was born,—and renews the offer of his services as above, with unabated zeal and love for this branch of human refinement. He is no novice or humbug to beg, borrow or buy bolsters to uphold him in an art he does not fully understand in every phase of its beauty; but would respectfully point to the best of references, WORKS, and ability to discover, develope and train inherent talent to accomplish splendid results. His pupils are shining in private and public, here and elsewhere. His many Musical Exhibitions—such as others seldom or never present to the public—have been and will still be his solid credentials, aside from fawning favoritism where true merit is too often absent. Terms, $12 for twelve weeks (twenty-four lessons) at his Music Room, or $15 at the pupil's residence, for Piano or Scientific Vocalization, separately or together. Mr. Moses will also Tune Pianos,—a business "familiar as household words" to him,—and solicits orders.

REPRINTS

OF THE

British Periodicals.

The political ferment among the European nations, the strife between Church and State, the discussion of Science in its relation to Theology, and the constant publication of new works on these and kindred topics, will give unusual interest to the leading foreign Reviews during 1875. Nowhere else can the inquiring reader find in a condensed form the facts and arguments necessary to guide him to a correct conclusion.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 8 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with Section 1.

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

STOVES! STOVES!

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones' Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES.

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Elderado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Oven Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

Where Are We Now?

AN ECLIPSE AS IS AN ECLIPSE!

Massachusetts Democratic!

DID IT!

Butler Beaten.

BANKS ELECTED.

LEGISLATURE MIXED.

HOW ARE YOU, DAWES?

SOUTH CAROLINA 50,000 T'OTHER WAY.

NIGGER, NIGGER, NIGGER!

Tammany Victorious!

NEXT HOUSE DEMOCRATIC.

JUST OUR LUCK!

There's Nothing Sure in This World, Except Death And Four Aces.

Massachusetts.

Gaston, democrat, is elected governor by from 5000 to 6000 majority.

Returns from 203 towns give Talbot 53,778, Gaston 55,118.

Salisbury—Talbot 342, Gaston 208; Butler 208, Thompson 235.

Newburyport—Talbot 795, Gaston 822; Butler 873, Thompson 696. Three republican representatives elected to the legislature.

Haverhill—Talbot 936, Gaston 771; Butler 659, Thompson 912.

Bullivan, Harris, Peirce and Frost, republicans, and Banks, Tarbox, Thompson and Chapin, democrats, are elected to Congress. Williams', Hoar's and Stevens' districts in doubt.

Banks' majority, 5283; Butler's minority, 1000.

The prohibitionists may have the Senate by one majority; the House is republican, but not prohibition.

Chelsea voted for annexation to Boston.

The democrats in Boston were jubilant about something; Faneuil Hall was packed up to a late hour, and speeches were made by Gaston, Banks, Tarbox and others.

New York.

New York elects Tildea, democrat, governor, by 20,000 to 30,000 majority.

New Jersey.

New Jersey elects Bedle, democrat, governor.

Wisconsin.

A Milwaukee dispatch says there is but little doubt the republicans have a majority in the State, and will probably have a majority on joint ballot in the legislature, thus securing a republican U. S. Senator to succeed Carpenter. Returns indicate that the republicans have elected Williams in the 1st Congressional district, Caswell in 2d, Magoon in 3d, Rusk in 7th, and McDill in 8th. The democrats elect Lynde in the 4th and Burchard in the 5th. Sixth district doubtful.

Tennessee.

Tennessee gives 25,000 to 30,000 democratic majority.

South Carolina.

South Carolina gives a democratic majority of 50,000.

Readables.

We give all the election news received in this city up to 1:30 A. M. to-day. The republicans lose four Congressmen in Massachusetts, but save the legislature. Gaston, democrat, is elected governor.

Returns from Massachusetts and other States indicate the probable renomination of Congrssman Small in this district with great unanimity.

The Boston Herald, with its immense circulation, its pithy paragraphs and pungent editorials, has done more to capsize the old Bay State than all the democrats combined.

There is one thing to regret in the Massachusetts election—that Henry L. Dawes wasn't the republican candidate in the eleventh district, that he might have been buried out of sight by the democratic avalanche.

The cable of the Direct United States Company, which parted and was lost while being laid by the Faraday, has been picked up by that vessel in latitude 50:30, longitude 24:19, at a depth of 1871 fathoms. The cable is in perfect condition. It was spliced to the portion remaining on the Faraday at 11 o'clock Monday morning, and the work of paying out again begun.

George Dunham of Norwood, Mass., insane from fever, cut his wife's throat and then his own, on Monday. She was found dead; he will recover.

Alexander Geddes, agent of the Allan line of steamers in Chicago, made $70,000 last week by a "corner" in barley, which he engineered, and the victims thank him because he did not use his undoubted power to force the price so high as to ruin them. These gentlemen do not know the first rule of intelligent gamblers, which is not to pluck their pigeons entirely bare. When we have by and by to announce the failure of Mr. Geddes, we shall do so without much compunction.

Col. Bruzele, a Louisiana White Leaguer, fled from the deputy U. S. Marshal who desired to arrest him, last week, and took refuge in a negro cabin, which was surrounded at midnight, and searched. An old negro man came up and said, "Nobody here but my sick wife, whose gwine to hab a chile." Lieut. Hallace went to the bed and found the gallant Colonel disguised as a sick woman.

Mrs. G. S. Hobart of Kingston, Ontario, died very suddenly, while under the influence of chloroform in a dentist's office.

The Madrid government has proposed to Don Carlos the release of the prisoners of war taken on both sides, and that they be sent to Cuba to quell the insurrection.

The records of the Maine State prison for ten years past show that only eight per cent. of the convicts have been returned to the prison, and eight per cent. to other prisons—making only sixteen per cent. of the convicts permanent criminals, and leaving eighty-four per cent. as temporary violators of law in consequence of circumstances, and therefore as successful objects of reformatory measures.

We cannot help expressing the conviction after perusing the Haverhill Gazette for the past month, that its editor is actually crazy on the Butler question!

The dwelling-house of John F. Ingerson on High street, Lancaster, with most of its contents, was destroyed by fire Monday. Cause, a defective chimney. Loss, $1000; no insurance.

William Eaton's house and barn and Simeon Drake's barn adjoining, at New Hampton, were destroyed by fire about 2 o'clock Monday morning. Eaton's loss is $2500; insured for 900. Drake's loss $1500; insured for $800.

High-handed Democratic Usurpation.

[Manchester Mirror.]

The last Legislature, democratic and desperate, hating Manchester and its republican majorities, took the voting power out of the hands of its citizens. It said to all the officers elected for twelve months (except the moderator, clerk and three selectmen in each ward,) you can hold your place until next March, three months longer than the usual time. The excepted officers it gave the board of Mayor and Aldermen power to appoint prior to the first day of this month. If the Legislature has power to keep so much of the city government as it likes in office three months beyond the time for which the people elected them, it has the power to keep them in three years; and if three years, thirty years. That is to say, it has the right to take away all voting powers of the citizens of Manchester.

If it can elect such elective officers as moderators, clerks and selectmen through the action of a board of nine men, why cannot it elect a Member of Congress by a board as much larger as the district is larger than the city?

For several weeks the democrats who constitute one-half of the Board of Aldermen have been trying to catch the republican Aldermen in some concessions so as to apparently legalize the rascally act of the Legislature. The republicans made a fair offer, namely, to have a majority of the said officers to be appointed republicans in republican Wards—namely, Wards One, Two, and Seven—and in the wards where democrats claim the majority—Wards Three, Four, Five and Six—to appoint a majority of democratic officers. The democratic Aldermen would not accede to the proposition and the republican Aldermen have since then found it convenient to prevent a quorum being present before the legal time had expired.

We understand that Mayor Weston, who is also Governor of the State, has again and again decided that four Aldermen do not make a quorum. Does it require less to make a quorum for political than for pecuniary business? The Governor must have laughed when he heard the four Aldermen go through the forms and ceremonies properly belonging to five men.

The act of the Legislature was an insult to the legal voters of this place, and the acts of the four Aldermen the last hours of the last day of October come very near boys' play.

At a special meeting Saturday evening, the Mayor and four democratic Aldermen being present, a resolution was adopted appointing election officers.

Of the officers appointed in Ward 1, the clerk and two of the selectmen are classed as republicans. In Ward 2 there are two republican selectmen and a liberal republican moderator. All the other appointees are democratic, with the exception of one republican selectman to each of Wards 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7.

Alderman Hayes offered an amendment to strike out the name of William F. Hubbard as one of the Selectmen of Ward Two, and insert that of Roland C. Rowell. The yeas and nays being called resulted in 2 to 2 and the Mayor gave the casting vote in the negative.

—John Henry's father-in-law, ætat. 85, took it into his head to get his life insured. "But, sir," said the agent, "you are too old for us to take the risk." "Why so?" queried the old man. "Because speedy death is too sure a thing." "Well, I've been looking at your tables," said father-in-law, "and I find that there ain't one man dies at my years to a hundred that dies younger." The insurance agent couldn't see it, but John Henry says it's good logic, and he'll back the old man for fifty years yet, dod rot him.

The Dictates of Common Sense.

Persons who in most things are prompt to obey the dictates of common sense, too often neglect them when they point to the necessity of promptly revitalizing the depleted body and the wearied mind. And yet how foolish and dangerous it is to neglect such monitions! Disease follows closely on the track of weakness and exhaustion. Arrest his silent but rapid stride by prompt invigoration. The most reliable agent that can be selected for this purpose is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a palatable hygeian elixir which possesses the true requisites for toning, regulating and tranquilizing both body and mind, and which is, besides, the chosen remedy of the American people for relieving weakness or disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, as well as the numerous array of complaints which ultimately follow derangements of these organs.

Substitutes in the Dental Ranks

Are not desirable; therefore keep the natural teeth sound and pure with that wholesome vegetable elixir SOZODONT. Do this, and they will last as long as the breath lasts, and the breath itself will never be tainted.

MORTALITY PREVENTED.

It would be a moderate estimate to place the number of cases in which Consumption is prevented by the timely use of HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR, at ten thousand per annum. No cough, cold, bronchial affection, sore throat, or other ailment of the organs of respiration, can ever degenerate into a mortal disease, if this palatable and absolutely infallible specific be taken in time and long enough persevered in.

Gatherings in the South.

There has been much written lately that is very dubious about political gatherings and conflict of races, yet there is one class of gatherings all over the South about which there is not even the shadow of doubt, namely, gatherings for the purpose of purchasing the remaining tickets for the next and last Gift Concert of the Public Library of Kentucky, to come off November 30. The South has been impoverished, and a reasonable share of that $2,500,000 then to be distributed will be very acceptable.

Circuit Court.

On Tuesday, Carpenter vs. Bailey, resumed.

Lewis W. Brewster, publisher Portsmouth Journal. [To Mr. Frink.] Knew Mr. Carpenter by sight only. He advertised at first in the Journal, the last time being April, 1867; afterward in the States and Union,—in May, 1868, for instance. [To Mr. Hatch.] Think it was only one advertisement a year we had from Carpenter,—perhaps to amount of $5 or $10. (A map of Portsmouth was shown by Mr. Hatch, to prove the favorable location of Carpenter's office, which was in the old Cheever house on State street, next below Methodist church; and Mr. Brewster stated the map was printed at his office.)

John H. Cheever, of Portsmouth. [To Mr. Frink.] Am clerk for Paymaster Eldredge. Was clerk for Mr. Carpenter. Have been connected with Paymaster's office since 1862, I think. Was discharged by Mr. Carpenter in May, 1865, and out of employ till employed by Mr. Putnam. Carpenter's office was in a house on State street. Door was generally unlocked—but frequently locked. Do not call State street a business street. The vicinity of the office was occupied by private residences. Was with Paymaster Gilman, Carpenter's predecessor, but do not know his politics. Did not know Mr. Jones, Carpenter's clerk, till he came here. He was democratic in politics. Carpenter's hours were 9 to 3, but he was not there all the time—I do not think half the time. Often heard complaints of his not being there. I had no authority to sign checks for Carpenter. Think I kept the account of balances in the bank. Think Mr. Carpenter may have drawn checks. Mr. Bailey often was at the office.

[To Mr. Hatch.] Know nothing about Mr. Carpenter's cash-book. Left it at the office when I left, May 3d. No old account books are left at the office—they are the private property of the paymasters. Do not know where Carpenter's cash book is. The payments were probably made from First National Bank. Began service in Paymaster's office, I think, in 1862 or '63, with Mr. Tullock; had office on Market street, perhaps a little nearer post office than Carpenter's,—but it was about an even thing. Both offices were about equally near the navy yard. Paymaster Emery came next, and took same office as Mr. Tullock. Paymaster Gilman came next, and had office at the yard. Mr. Stokell had bills for provisions furnished at the yard, perhaps $2000 per year. Trickey & Jewett and others furnished lumber, etc., for the yard; and other parties various other articles, both by contract and by open purchase, as it is called. Purchases to the amount of $100 or more were usually advertised for, but smaller purchases were usually bought in open market. Printed blanks were usually sent out to various parties inviting bids for hardware, etc. There were three or four hardware dealers,—Wendell, democrat, I suppose; Bailey, Treadwell and Lyman, republicans. There was a sign over the door of Navy Pay office. Don't think Carpenter's duties required him to go to Boston or New York. He lived in the house where the office was. Do not know whether he had a private office or not. Do not think he was at the office half of the business hours; and he was I think absent entirely from the office two or three days every week. Don't know his dinner hour,—think it was 2 or 3, but might have been 3 to 4. I was at office from 9 to 12, and 1 to 3. Do not know who called there in my absence, when Mr. Jones was on duty. My duty was to send out offers for bids, etc., and Mr. Jones assisted me in a clerk's duties. There was work to keep a clerk writing all day. Do not know whether Mr. Jones did all the work in the office after I left. Have seen the paper here exhibited (table No. 7) heard some discussion about it between Bailey and Carpenter. Heard Mr. W. H. Hackett among others complain of not finding Carpenter in. Don't know whether Mr. Stokell or Mr. Rider ever made similar complaints or not. The Bureaus at Washington advertised for supplies, and paid part here, part in Boston, New York or Washington, as contractors requested. Jewett & Trickey did considerable business with the office, but don't know whether they complained or not. Don't think I told Carpenter that callers complained of him, but I did tell him that parties had called. Never saw this paper (the petition) before, nor told Mr. Jones anything about it. Think it was in Mr. Parker's handwriting, Mr. Bailey's partner now. This paper (that asking for bids, upon which ensued the dispute between Bailey and Carpenter) is in the usual form—nothing uncommon about it at all. Recollect the dispute between Carpenter and Bailey about cannel coal. The price in Boston was $20 per ton, I believe; don't know the cost of freight. I am clerk for Paymaster Eldredge now; so is Mr. George W. Marston, who is also editor of the CHRONICLE. He is in the office all the time he is required to be.

[To Mr. Hatch.] This acceptance of Bailey's bid for coal at $30 (the order in dispute) was authorized by Mr. Carpenter, and I sent it out by his order. Think Carpenter had a controversy with Bailey before this bid. Carpenter told me to make out an acceptance of Bailey's bid.

[To Mr. Frink.] I remained in Carpenter's office till May, 1869, and Bailey continued to do business with Carpenter, and they were on the best of terms, so far as I knew.

[To Mr. Hatch.] It may have been customary to purchase small articles without calls for bids—such as stationery, hardware, etc.

James L. Parker, of Portsmouth. [To Mr. Frink.] Am partner with Mr. Bailey; have been with him as clerk and partner twelve years; never drafted or saw any paper like this petition.

John H. Bailey, defendant. [To Gen. Marston.] Was born in Portsmouth; resided in Boston from 1855 to '38, always other than this, here. Been in hardware business 32 or 33 years; was out in 1869. Was Collector four or five years. Am a republican, was president of Portsmouth Grant club. Have been in the habit of bidding for contracts furnished at Washington; also for bids for open purchase by Purchasing Paymasters here. Made Carpenter's acquaintance when he first came here. Think I secured a large majority of the bids in my line. Was at Carpenter's office three or four times a week. The front door of entrance was sometimes locked, and an outer storm-house door occasionally, and visitors had to ring a bell to gain entrance. Comparatively speaking, Carpenter wasn't there at all—was absent nine-tenths of the time. When I asked for him, Jones or Cheever would ring, and a negro or Irishman would hunt him up if he was to be found. Often saw him walking out gunning. An advertisement appeared for tallow, hose-pipe and English cannel coal. I bid, and was lowest on tallow and coal. Was present when bids were open; my offer for coal was higher than the estimate, and Carpenter thought it too high. I said there was none in Portsmouth, and the cost from Boston would be high; but if I could furnish it less I would do so after getting the bills. I furnished it, and I think made about four per cent profit, or $9. There was not the least ill feeling or disagreement about this coal transaction. An invitation April 7, '69, called for McLaughlin's best brushes, and my bid was $69 for the assortment, and was successful. Requisition 82, the same No. and from same Bureau as the other, did not call for McLaughlin's best brushes, and we furnished a large order of brushes for $59. Mr. Carpenter paid both bills. Had no talk with Mr. Carpenter about the brushes. Think Mr. Cheever came to me Monday after my bid Saturday, and asked me to recall my bid, as Carpenter had received another bid from Boston for $68 or something. Said I could not recall the brushes, as they had gone to the Yard and were public property. Had no dispute with Carpenter about the matter. Did not hear that Carpenter had any correspondence with Washington about my brushes, nor any others. Carpenter never told me, nor did I ever hear, that he declined to receive any more bids from me; and I made them till he left. Do not know whether Senator Wilson visited Carpenter. Carpenter came to me, after I for the committ[illegible]ee had engaged rooms for Wil[illegible]on at the Rockingham, and asked me if I was candidate for State Senator; told him I was, etc., etc., and he invited Wilson to visit him; but I was unwell, and not out, and so did not see him. As to the petition for removal, I was asked if I would sign a petition for Carpenter's removal, on account of inattention to business. Sometime in '69 a paper was brought in to me, and I enquired who got it up, and think was told that it was an expert. I declined, but said I would after some other names were got upon it. Afterward, when other names were upon it, I think headed by Mr. Frank W. Miller—I signed it. Do not know who wrote it or drew it up, but understood W. H. Hackett. Do not know where it is. Signed the petition because I knew Carpenter was inattentive to business, and was told he was a democrat; and I had to subscribe for the Times so as to get his advertisements. Never had any dispute or ill-feeling toward Carpenter, nor designed to libel him. Did not expect Carpenter to vote for me, and never knew how he voted till he stated that he carried the straight democratic ticket, as I had before understood he did. There was a great deal of fault found with me because I allowed Senator Wilson to go to Mr. Carpenter's house.

[To Mr. Hatch.] Do not recollect any dispute with Mr. Carpenter. Do not remember hearing any other political talk with Carpenter except his with me. Never heard of Carpenter's voting except in 1869. My majority for Senator was 106 in a vote of four thousand or more. Heard talk in committee rooms of Carpenter's politics. Think that in city election of 1868 Carpenter voted. Don't know why he spoke to me of my being a candidate for State senator. Am positive I do not know Mr. Wilson stayed in town two or three days. Never knew Carpenter to take any part in politics, or to vote, except in 1869. Do not know of myself that Mr. Jones voted. Did not know whether Cheever voted. He was not very active at that time—was not on any committee, etc. Bill of $59 for brushes was paid by Carpenter; that of $69 by his successor, Aug. 3d, 1869. Received no more orders from Carpenter after the brush order, but received one order from the office, from parties acting for him. Don't know why the bill of $69 was delayed in payment until August. Can't give any explanation, none whatever. Had no talk about the brushes with Carpenter, but all talk was with his clerk. Clerk said Carpenter had received another bid a trifle lower than mine, after the others were open. Don't know, don't recollect, and never knew any reason why the $69 was delayed. Never presented that bill nor any other to Mr. Carpenter for payment. I deny most emphatically that there was any controversy whatever on this matter. Can't say that I recollect any other business with Carpenter after April 19th. I received a good many invitations for bids. I furnished the best quality of brushes in both cases, but not McLaughlin's in both cases. Knew pretty near the price of coal. Cargoes go by the long ton of 2240 lbs., small quantities by the short ton of 2000 lbs. Did not have any dispute with Carpenter. Don't know why the dates were changed in the offer of coal. Changed my price of coal because I found I could afford it for $25 and still make 5 per ct. commission. Carpenter stated just before he left, to my family physician, the late Dr. Boardman, that I was cheating the Government by charging exorbitant prices for goods, and I wrote, asking him what he meant. Couldn't tell you now what the contents of the paper I signed for Carpenter's removal were. Think I told Hon. E. A. Stevens I would sign the petition. Was called upon twice to sign it, but don't know who presented it. Think it bore the name of Frank W., or F. W. Miller. Signed a good many papers in those days, and if they bore the names of responsible republicans, I did not stop to inquire much. Did not sign the paper first, and did not send any paper to Senator Patterson. Perhaps the Vice President of the Grant Club, Hon. E. A. Stevens, did. Never sent or procured to be sent, a single line or inquiry to Washington about the petition. Frank W. Miller's name was on the petition I signed, but I believe is not on the professed copy.

Afternoon. Mr. Bailey, recalled by Gen. Marston, explained how it was necessary for signatures to be made by parties making bids. Nearly all the orders received from Mr. Carpenter's office had his signature printed thereon; there were very few exceptions.

To Mr. Hatch. Witness here read a letter dated May 17, 1869, from Paymaster Carpenter, relative to the purchase of the cannel coal, which was considered unimportant by counsel for defence.

Mr. Spencer (colored) recalled by Mr. Hatch. He denied the testimony as given by Mr. Oxford relating to Mr. Oxford's going to Mr. Carpenter's house on election day.

The testimony here closed and the argument for the defence was commenced by Mr. Small, who spoken an hour and fifty minutes, enunciating the law as he understood it and reviewing the testimony in an able manner, making his points well. Mr. Hatch commenced his argument at 5 o'clock. Judge Rand gave an able and impartial charge to the jury, and gave them the case at about quarter past 7 o'clock.

A Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

—THE—

Art Journal of America,

ISSUED MONTHLY.

"A magnificent conception, magnificently carried out."

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or ephemeral interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there is the chromo, besides!

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in no narrow sense. True art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate only on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign sources.

PREMIUM FOR 1875.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in oil colors, of the same noble dog whose picture in a former issue attracted so much attention.

"Man's Unselfish Friend"

Will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves a good dog, and the portrait is executed so true to life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage tells us that his own Newfoundland dog (the finest in Brooklyn) barks at it! Although so natural, no one who sees the chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.

THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. To every series of 5000 subscribers, 100 different pieces, valued at over $2,500, are distributed as soon as the series is full, and the awards of each series as made, are to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.

TERMS.

One Subscription, entitling to THE ALDINE one year, the Chromo and the Art Union,

SIX DOLLARS PER ANNUM, IN ADVANCE.

(No charge for postage.)

Specimen copies of THE ALDINE, fifty cents.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON, President.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs!

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. Piano and Singing.
THOS. P. MOSES, thorough and tasteful Teacher of Music, from A in its alphabet to composition and arrangement, has concluded not to accept a recent call to go South again, but will retain his permanent location in the grand "Old Town by the Sea" where he was born,—and renews the offer of his services as above, with unabated zeal and love for this branch of human refinement. He is no novice or humbug to beg, borrow or buy bolsters to uphold him in an art he does not fully understand in every phase of its beauty; but would respectfully point to the best of references, WORKS, and ability to discover, develope and train inherent talent to accomplish splendid results. His pupils are shining in private and public, here and elsewhere. His many Musical Exhibitions—such as others seldom or never present to the public—have been and will still be his solid credentials, aside from fawning favoritism where true merit is too often absent. Terms, $12 for twelve weeks (twenty-four lessons) at his Music Room, or $15 at the pupil's residence, for Piano or Scientific Vocalization, separately or together. Mr. Moses will also Tune Pianos,—a business "familiar as household words" to him,—and solicits orders.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.
YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1873, which is as follows:—
"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."
Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with Section 1.
For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

STOVES! STOVES!
NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!
Great Bargains!
HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of
COOKING and PARLOR STOVES
To be found in any establishment in the state, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.
We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.
Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.
For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.
Parlor Stoves
Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gem, Giant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.
SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Open Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.
We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the second, which we are bound to close out at any price.

The Elections.

South Carolina.

Chamberlain, republican, is elected Governor by 20,000. All five of the Congressmen elected are republican.

Vermont.

Dennison, independent republican, is elected to Congress by 3000 majority over Poland.

Massachusetts.

Gen. Banks' majority is 6171.

Rhode Island.

Eames and Ballou, republicans, have been elected to Congress nearly unanimously.

New York.

New York city complete gain Governor Dix, 45,187; Tilden, 37,248. For mayor, Wickham, democrat, 57,729; Wales, republican, 37,339; Ottendorfer, 24,772. Register, Hayes, 61,036; Jones, anti-Tammany, 71,425.

Tilden, democrat, has about 40,000 majority. Seventeen republicans and sixteen democrats are elected to Congress. The lagislature is republican, securing a republican U. S. Senator.

Pennsylvania.

Pennsylvania gives the republican State ticket 10,000 majority.

Fifteen republicans and twelve democrats are chosen to Congress, a democratic gain of seven.

Missouri.

The republicans claim seven Congressmen and concede six to the democrats.

Michigan.

Woman suffrage is defeated.

The republican majority in the State is 5000. Six republicans and two democrats are elected to Congress.

Illinois.

Chicago elects the democratic ticket by 600 to 700 majority.

The republicans carry the State.

Nevada.

A republican legislature is elected, securing a republican U. S. Senator, probably William Sharon.

Alabama.

Alabama is democratic by 6000 to 10,000 majority. Five and perhaps seven democratic Congressmen are elected; the legislature is democratic.

New Jersey.

Judge Bedle, democrat, has 9000 majority for Governor. The legislature has eleven democratic majority and will re-elect a democratic U. S. Senator. Four republicans and four democrats are elected to Congress—a democratic gain of three.

State News.

A large number of cattle are annually sent north for pasturage from Dunbarton. Prices are high. The average paid is $2.50 for yearlings, $3.50 for two years old, and upward in proportion. The largest gain of which we have heard, was made by a pair of five years old steers owned by Justus Lord, and pastured by Israel Straw in Henniker. They were weighed when turned out, and when taken up had gained 600 pounds.

Alfred Page and E. R. Webster of Wentworth caught a bear weighing 143 pounds, Oct. 22d, the third they have caught this fall.

The Merrimack Journal says arrangements are nearly if not quite perfected for the starting of the cotton mills in Tilton into full work again. The stockholders propose to pay the entire indebtedness in New Hampshire as follows: All dues arising on the pay-roll in cash, and borrowed money; other demands half cash and the rest in paper running a reasonable time. New parties propose on those conditions to take the concern, arrange with the Boston creditors, and put the mill to running on drillings.

—Dan Davis, of Virginia City, paid a visit to Promontory, on the Central Pacific Railroad, and was charmed with the manners and customs—almost patriarchal in their frank simplicity—of the people. He stopped at the principal hotel of the town. It was a nice place, and the landlord was a very agreeable and friendly sort of a man. Says Dan: "When dinner was ready the landlord came out into the street in front of his hotel with a double-barrelled shot-gun. Raising the gun above his head he fired off one barrel. I said to him: 'What did you do that for?' Said he, 'To call my boarders to dinner.' I said, 'Why don't you fire off both barrels?' 'Oh,' said he, 'I keep the other to collect with.'"

—There is probably nothing else on earth that will roll like a hat. A gust of wind gets under your tile, and before you realize the extent of the catastrophe you see it strike a bee line for the nearest puddle of water, into which it settles with an indifference that is highly exasperating. No man yet ever caught his hat until it got ready to stop, which is when it brings up under a wagon wheel, or when he drives it into the mud with his foot.

—The New York World having propounded the conundrum, "Is New York liable to a great fire?" the Cincinnati Times replies: Sodom and Gomorrah were liable, and we don't know any reason for excepting New York.

—Now that Massachusetts has gone democratic, Sunday morning prayers at Harvard have been abolished.

Speaking Out.

The Washington Republican gives Garfield and Dawes their due in an article on the elections and asks:

"What did either of them do at the last session of Congress to strengthen the party before the country? They had command of the House; they had the control of legislation. They had the destinies of the party in their hands, but they threw them away. They gave us a paltry policy. They, to use a vulgar expression, "nosed around" the departments to see where a penny can be here and there saved. They yielded the floor to every democrat who held a resolution in his hand to investigate a department of the Government, and were first to lead the party to its own and their own defeat. What ringing speech in defence of the party came from either of them? Where was the old leadership of Thad Stevens, at the head of the Appropriation Committee? Where were his words that burned, his fierceness in debate, when the Becks and the Hoffmans had the floor? Where was his intense loyalty to republicans when republicans were assailed! Where was his broad statesmanship when a national question was before the country? Why, the opposition led the House the last session as it led it the preceding one, and with such leaders as we have we cannot complain if it leads it a year from next December. We charge upon Mr. Dawes and Mr. Garfield the responsibility for the peril in which the party is placed to-day, and in doing so we know that we represent the feeling of every thoughtful republican in the land, of every thorough republican in Congress. Cutting a hundred dollars from the appropriation of this bureau, and ten from that is not statesmanship. Complaining and whining, as Mr. Dawes did a year ago, is not leadership. We pointed out to the party, at the time, that this course was a blunder—a blunder worse than a crime. Throwing down the barriers to inquiry into the management of the party, we indicated was simply putting in the hands of the opposition the knife to cut the party's throat. The Daweses, and Garfields, and Fosters have brought the party to the pass it is in."

Temperance Convention.

The annual convention, under the auspices of the "N. H. Temperance Union," will be held at Eagle Hall, Concord, on Thursday, Nov. 12, at 10 o'clock A. M. All churches, Sabbath-schools, and temperance organizations in the State are invited to send not less than three, nor more than seven delegates, each, to this convention. In the afternoon, the officers will be elected, and the question considered of altering Article V. of the Constitution, abolishing the moneyed condition of membership. Railroad tickets, at two cents per mile each way, will be found at Portsmouth, Newmarket Junction, Manchester, Salem, Nashua, and Goffstown, on the Concord Road and branches. Conductors on the several trains on the Northern and Concord & Claremont roads and branches, will sell tickets to and from the convention at reduced rates. Return tickets over the B., C. & Montreal road will be furnished at the convention. Several popular speakers from abroad will address the convention. A mass meeting will be held on the evening of the 11th of November at the same hall.

Mr. J. Horace Kent of this city is President of the "N. H. State Temperance Union." The several churches and temperance organizations in this city and vicinity are especially invited to send delegates.

Spoken Like a Man.

The Cincinnati Gazette publishes the following:

In 1872, when it was found that Grant would be renominated, the report was circulated that in view of the many groundless reports as to his seeking the nomination he would decline to be a candidate. So positive were the reports upon this point that in May, 1872, we wrote him a private letter on the subject, to which a reply was received which we are now permitted to print. This has nothing directly to do with the third term, but it shows how Grant felt with reference to the first and second terms, will serve to disabuse the minds of those, if any there be, who honestly believe that the President is capable of scheming for a nomination in 1876.

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
WASHINGTON, D. C., May 4, 1872.

Dear Sir: Your favor of the 10th inst., saying that the managers of the Gazette had decided to come out squarely for my nomination at Philadelphia on June, 5th proximo, when they were met by the report that I would either decline being a candidate before the convention or would decline after the nomination, was received last night. After leaving my office for the day I caused a despatch to be sent to you to the effect that the report was without any authority whatever. I am not in the habit of writing letters on political subjects, and especially have I never written a letter calculated to influence a convention as to who should be candidates before it or selected by it.

But your letter is of such a nature as to properly demand an answer, more particularly as you say you will treat my response as strictly confidential. Now, I will say that I never proclaimed myself a candidate either before the convention, which meets in Philadelphia this year, nor the convention which was held in Chicago four years ago. I have never written a line, done an act, nor, I believe I can say with truth, entertained a thought calculated to produce action by the republican party in favor of my promotion over that of any other man in it who might be their choice. I do now, as I did four years ago, sincerely believe that the interests of the whole country demand the success of the republican party. If deemed advisable, I am willing to make any sacrifice to accomplish the success. I feel that I did make a sacrifice in giving up a high position, so highly prized by me, one created by an appreciative public, for which act I can never thank them sufficiently. Now, if I can be of service to the party that chose me, then I shall render that service conscientiously and to the best of my ability. The personal sacrifice made four years ago cannot be made now.

With great respect your obedient servant,
U. S. GRANT.

Precautions Against Fire.

Mr. John L. Lurkee, fire marshal of San Francisco, in closing his tenth annual report to the Board of Fire Underwriters of that city, presents the following suggestions to the public as the result of his observation and experiences:

1. Be well acquainted with the best means of escape from your house, both at the top and the bottom.

2. Do not get confused; admit no one to your house except firemen, policemen or neighbors.

3. If a lady's or a child's dress takes fire, endeavor to roll the person up in a rug, carpet, or any piece of woolen stuff.

4. Keep all doors and windows closed until the firemen arrive.

5. Always keep in your bedroom a piece of rope sufficiently long to reach the sidewalk in case you cannot make your exit by stairway.

6. If you cannot make your way from a building by the stairway, endeavor to get in a front room, and be careful to keep all doors shut behind you, for smoke will follow a draft, and flames the smoke. If smoke enters the room and it is difficult to stand erect, get your mouth as close to the floor as possible, and breathe easy, as there is always a fresh current of air near the floor. A wet cloth over your mouth will greatly aid breathing.

7. In getting smoke from a room, always open the upper portion of a window.

8. In case of a fire in a theatre, or any place where numbers of persons are, keep perfectly cool, and do all you can to prevent a panic, as there is generally plenty of time to escape if there is no panic.

9. Do not go into a building where there is a thick smoke if you can help it, without a saturated sponge in your mouth, or a wet cloth or handkerchief over mouth and nose.

10. In ascending or descending a ladder, do so with an irregular step, to prevent vibration.

11. Have metals or earthern vessels for matches, and keep them out of the reach of children. Wax matches are not safe.

12. Never leave small children in a room alone where there are matches or an open fire.

13. Do not deposit ashes in a wooden vessel or upon a wooden floor.

14. Never use a light in examining a gas meter.

15. Never take a light into a closet.

16. Never smoke or read in bed by candle or lamp-light.

17. Never put kindling wood on top of a stove to dry.

18. Never leave clothes near a grate or fire-place to dry.

19. Be careful in making the fires with shavings, and never put any kind of oil to kindle a fire.

20. Keep all lights as far from curtains as possible.

21. Never pour out liquor near an open light.

22. Always fill and trim your lamps by daylight, and never near a fire.

23. Never blow out a fluid lamp.

24. Never allow fluids used for lamps to be kept in a room where a light or a fire is used.

25. Always try your coal oil by pouring a little of it in a saucer or cup, and if you can make it burn with a match or piece of paper, do not use it.

26. Put wirework over your gas-lights in show windows, and keep your goods from them.

27. Benzine, naphtha, gasoline, camphene, varnish, turpentine, ethereal oil, etc., should never be drawn by candle or lamp light, or in a room where there is a fire.

28. Sand in place of sawdust should be used on the floors of oil stores, drug stores, etc.

29. Always use a closed lantern, and never allow smoking in hay barns, stables, ware-houses, or in stores where goods are closely packed.

30. Always keep shavings and fire kindling wood away from steam boliers and furnaces.

31. Keep lofts, cupboards, corners, boxes, etc., free from greasy rags.

32. Before leaving your place of business see that all the lights and fires are out.

33. Before going to bed see that all your lights and fires are out, and that no ashes have been placed in any wooden vessel.

34. See that your stovepipes enter well in the chimney

Winter Fashions.

[Boston Globe.]

After all that has been said regarding furs, seal-skin holds the first place. Messrs. Tufts & Leonard, 212 Washington street, Boston, at their elegant new store,—a boudoir in itself—are now exhibiting one of the choicest selections of furs ever opened in this city, including Russia, Hudson Bay and American sables, black marten and coon, lynx, gray astrachan, Siberian squirrel, coney, etc., but their assortment is especially rich in Shetland and Alaska seal-skins, which they make a speciality of manufacturing into sacks, muffs, and other articles of female adornment, or for vests, caps and gloves for gentlemen. In the heavier furs for robes and outside garments, this young house challenges competition. While making furs a seasonable department, Messrs. Tufts & Leonard never lose sight of the fact that they are the "Young Men's Hatters" of Boston, and they now offer a much finer selection of English, New York and Philadelphia hats, as well as those of their own make, than ever before. All goods delivered by them will be the best workmanship and material, and offered at the very lowest prices. An inspection of their wares is earnestly desired.

Hard to Convince.

[Max Adeler.]

The clergyman at our church last Sunday while indulging in some figurative expressions in his sermons, used the phrase "Like the roe which leaps on the mountain"—referring of course to the scriptural animal of that name. As I was coming out of church a horney handed and sun-burned fellow-pilgrim stepped up to me and said:

"See yer, stranger! what d'you think of that feller in the pulpit?"

"I think he is pretty fair sort of a man; near-sighted, may be, and poor; but taking him altogether, good."

"Well, see yer, stranger! D'd 'bserve what he said about the roe jumpin' on a mountain? D'd you hear him say that?"

"Yes. What about it?"

"Well, look a yer, cap, of course he was a jokin', wa'n't he?"

"Certainly he was not."

"See yer, now, you don't mean to say he was tryin' to gag that down us as a fact? He don't resly believe that no roe ever jumped on a mountain, now does he?"

"He does, of course, and so do I. I know it."

"Well, look a yer, mister; I'm a mere child 'bout most things, I can swaller a' most any ordinary lie. You kin stuff me full of owdacious falsehoods when I'm a sufferin' from ingorance. But you must excuse me on this. Yes, sir, I sour on yer when you ask me to gorge myself with that kinder lie. I've bin a ketchin' shad an' herrin' most all of my life, an' gettin' roes out ov 'em; but I never seen no roe that could get up an' git when you onc't laid it down. I wanter be religious; I wanter to do right and b'leeve in preachers, but when you ask me to b'leave that ary shad roe ever bounced up a hill and frolicked around over the grass my stummick goes agin it. It's too much, stranger, much too much."

Then I unfolded the matter to him and he went away comforted.

An Experiment.

Wilkins Micawber Jones is of a statistical turn of mind. He can tell you precisely how many Smiths there are in the directory, how many Browns, Robinsons or Joneses. If you tell him the number of Smiths in a place of a given population he will tell you how many Browns ought to —Some genius perpetrates the following joke on old maids and bachelors: Tell us not in idle gingle "marriage is an empty dream," for the girl is dead that 's single, and things are not what they seem. Life is real; life is earnest; single blessedness is a fib! "Man thou art, to man returnest," has been spoken of the rib. Not enjoyment, and not sorrow, is our destined end or way; but to act that each to-morrow finds us nearer marriage day. Life is long and youth is fleeting, and our hearts though light and gay, still in pleasant dreams are beating wedding marches all the way. In the world's broad field of battle, in the bivouac of life, be not like dumb driven cattle! be a heroine—a wife! Trust no future howe'er pleasant; let the dead Past bury the dead; act!—act in the living present, heart within and hope ahead. Lives of married folks remind us we can live our lives as well, and, departing, leave behind us such examples as shall "tell"—such examples that another, wasting time in idle sport, a foreloorn, unmarried brother, seeing, shall take heart and court. Let us, then, be up and doing, with a heart on triumph set; still contriving, still pursuing, and each one a husband get.

Arnold's Boy and Chandler's Boy.

[Danbury News.]

Arnold's boy and the Chandler boy were sitting in the kitchen in the dark, telling stories of Captain Kidd and other Free Traders, when Arnold senior sang out for the eleventh time within the last half hour:

"Benjamin Franklin, go down stairs and get that kindling immediately!"

Chandler's boy had just got to the part of the story telling how the free and easy sailor before mentioned used to mix his grog in a coffin and slice small boys for flavoring.

Now Ben never fancied going into a cellar at night, and his fears were increased ten-fold after hearing the weird romance of the "Bloody Pirate." So when he heard the suggestive tramp of the governor's boots in the hall, he quietly slipped into the closet, leaving Chandler's boy sitting by the fire.

Arnold senior came in, and seeing Ben as he supposed, not even stirring for the cellar, he walked up to him, and lifted him by the ear.

"Easy! Easy!" shouted Chandler's boy in surprise.

"Easy?" shouted the old man, completely dumbfounded by Ben's supposed audacity: "easy," and he recovered his presence of mind sufficient to kick Chandler's boy into the coal-hod and out of the door before he discovered his mistake.

Chandler's boy says he is going to knock the stuffing out of Ben as soon as the swelling goes down and his north ear gets the crook out of it.

"Anna Laid Up for Repairs."

[El Paso Journal.]

Anna E. Dickinson has been confined to her bed for the last six months, with symptoms of paralysis. You see Anna has talked so much, and so fast, that her diaphragm has wore off the end of her epiglottis, and now she must go to Europe and let up a little. We always did think Anna was pounding away too fast. What a noble wife she would make. A man wouldn't have a chance to "jaw back" once in six months.

—The greatest piece of enterprise on record, is that of the New York Herald, which photographed the eclipse forty-eight hours ahead of time.

—A college for the medical education of women has been opened in London.

—At the Paris morgue there was exposed last month the body of a young woman, aged about twenty, so wondrously beautiful that the authorities caused a cast of her form to be made. She was seen to throw herself into the river.

Taking Exceptions.

[By a Greenhorn.]

Dear Chronicle: I see it stated in the papers that our new Board of Aldermen, which contains two eminent legal gentlemen, "empowered the committee on police" to fill a vacancy in the police force—that is, I suppose, authorized the committee to appoint a policeman, not to do the duty themselves. Now I believe by the law the Board of Mayor and Aldermen are authorized to appoint all police; but how they can "empower" any committee or anybody else to do this duty for them, or what the commission of any officer so appointed would be good for, is what this fellah can't find out.

Also, at the same meeting, your report says, all regularly employed private watchmen were "appointed special police without pay, and empowered to act after registering their names with the city clerk." The meaning of this is not exactly clear, but it probably was intended to appoint several officers in a lump, without naming them, and that they complete their own appointment by registering their names! What would the commission of any officer so appointed be worth, if put to test? And will our new city clerk give a certificate of appointment in any such case? Have we a city solicitor? How long has voting by proxy been legal in the Board of Aldermen?

Perhaps they act on the legal rule, that what a man does by an agent he does himself. But there are some powers that cannot be delegated; unless, perhaps, in a special emergency, like that of the young man who being very busy when he was married, got his uncle to go on his wedding trip for him.

"Dramatic Expression"

Was the title of James Steele Mackaye's lecture before the lyceum audience, Tuesday evening. Mr. Mackaye was not in good health, but did not disappoint his audience. The lecture was divided into two parts, the first treating of emotion; the second of esthetic gymnastics. He drew the dividing lines between feeling, thought and affection, illustrating familiarly each definition. Form is represented by convex, concave and straight lines, and Mr. Mackaye drew upon the blackboard representations of faces of each phase, neither of which he deemed perfect, while all must be drawn from to constitute the profile he chose to sketch as a model. He warmed up with his subject, which grew more interesting as he proceeded, the audience sitting in rapt attention throughout. He talked familiarly of eccentrics, accentrics and concentrics, illustrated the graceful and awkward ways of calling attention to objects, went through a process which he called withdrawing the will from the hand, the shoulder, and the arm, praised the serpentine movement which might be too much of a good thing were it to cause one to live a thousand years, showed the flexibility that only study and practice can bring, ran the gamut of facial expression illustrating faithfully the various passing moods and sensations, and closed by the recital of Hamlet's soliloquy, a gem from George Elliott representing parental love, and Harry Hotspur's indignant outbreak at the treatment of his offer of ransom for Mortimer. These selections were finely rendered and showed that Mr. Mackaye was master of his subject.

Rockingham County Conveyances.

List of conveyances in Portsmouth for the week ending Oct. 31st, 1874, as per Rockingham Records.

Frank Jones et al to Wm. L. Stackpole, land on Middle St. for $1000.

Caleb Wiggin to John Coffery, land and building for $3500.

Circuit Court.

Wednesday morning, the jury in the case of Carpenter vs. Bailey returned a verdict of $600 for Carpenter. An appeal was taken.

William Crawford, of Chester, was put on trial for forgery in writing on a note over the endorser's name the words "liable without demand or notice." During the afternoon the County Solicitor nolle pros'd a case, and the defendant was discharged.

Laconics.

A correspondent of the Journal does not believe the coin dug up in the Franklin House yard can be so old as was claimed for it (1223) by a few hundred years. Neither do I—and although a magnifying glass brought out the indistinct second figure clearly as a 2 to some visions, to my less credulous naked eyes, it was an EIGHT.

Courting Disease.

The individual may be said to court disease who exposes himself to the miasmatic influences which give rise to chills and fever and other malarious epidemics and endemics, without previously fortifying his system against their insidious attacks by the use of a protective medicinal agent. The bar last constitution is by no means proof against such maladies, much less one naturally weak or bilious, or the antagonistic power of which is lessened by an irregular habit of body. The inhabitants of the bottom lands of the South, of the new clearings of the West, of suburban districts where sunken lots exist, of every locality of the American continent, in fact, where malaria is epidemic or sporadic, declare that the only true antidote to the miasmatic virus that they have ever used is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. There seems to be something peculiarly resistant in this standard, preventive and remedy to all hurtful atmospheric influences.

THE GREAT MEDICAL SUCCESS OF THE AGE. Leading druggists who have been in the business for half a lifetime, state that they have never known a medicine to enlist the entire and universal confidence of the public, as rapidly as HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR. Although it has only been a few years in use, it has already taken precedence of all other medicines advertised as remedies for Coughs, Colds, and incipient Consumption, and its annual sales are without a parallel in the history of this class of preparations.

PIKE'S TOOTH-ACHE DROPS—Cure in one minute.

Well Indorsed.

The Gift Concerts in aid of the Kentucky Library are not at all speculative. The institution is chartered by the State of Kentucky. The first prize in the next drawing, which takes place November 30, is $250,000. It is a reliable institution, and some one will get that money. And that there may be no doubt as to the honesty of its management we cite the fact that the best banks in Louisville indorse it and that Governor Thomas E. Bramlette, of Louisville, is the general manager. An institution so fathered is certainly deserving of confidence.

COMBINED PAPERS—FORTY-FIFTH YEAR.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN.

POSTAGE FREE FOR 1875.

The Country Gentleman is published WEEKLY on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the club.

The Country Gentleman possesses an unequalled corps of correspondents, regular and occasional, among the BEST FARMERS of all parts of the country, and constantly reflects the practical condition and progress of the husbandry of every section of the United States and civilized world.

The Country Gentleman gives in its HORTICULTURAL DEPARTMENT a continuous variety of information and suggestions, equal or superior in the aggregate to what is obtained in the monthly numbers of most magazines devoted to Horticulture.

The Country Gentleman has probably done as much as all other Journals combined, to introduce and disseminate IMPROVED STOCK of every kind through the country; and commands to a greater degree than any contemporary, the confidence and support of breeders and purchasers.

The Country Gentleman contains unusually full and trustworthy MARKET REPORTS, and devotes special attention to them and to the prospects of the crops, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and When to Sell.

The Country Gentleman embraces numerous minor departments of a practical character, such as the Dairy, the Poultry-Yard, the Apiary, the Vineyard, and so on, and weekly presents a column or two for the housewife and an interesting variety of Fireside Reading. It contains a well edited Review of Current Events, and its advertising pages furnish a directory of all the principal agricultural and horticultural establishments of the country.

A Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

—THE—

Art Journal of America,

ISSUED MONTHLY.

"A magnificent conception, magnificently carried out."

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful life study, and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with the rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of the paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there is the chromo, besides!

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in no narrow sense. True art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate only on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a holiness characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign sources.

PREMIUM FOR 1875.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in oil colors, of the same noble dog whose picture in a former issue attracted so much attention.

"Man's Unselfish Friend"

Will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves such a dog, and the portrait is executed so true to life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage tells us that his own Newfoundland dog (the finest in Brooklyn) barks at it! Although so natural, no one who sees this chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.

THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. To every series of 5000 subscribers, 100 different pieces, valued at over $2,500, are distributed as soon as the series is full, and the awards of each series as made, are to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.

TERMS.

One Subscription, entitling to THE ALDINE one year, the Chromo and the Art Union,

SIX DOLLARS PER ANNUM, IN ADVANCE.

(No charge for postage.)

Specimen copies of THE ALDINE, fifty cents.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-similie signature of JAMES SUTTON, President.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Piano and Singing. THOS. P. MOSES, thorough and tasteful Teacher of Music, from A in its alphabet to composition and arrangement, has concluded not to accept a recent call to go South again, but retain his permanent location in the grand "Old Town by the Sea" where he was born,—and renews the offer of his services as above, with unabated zeal and love for this branch of human refinement. He is no novice or humbug to beg, borrow or buy bolsters to uphold him in an art he does not fully understand in every phase of its beauty; but would respectfully point to the best of references, WORKS, and ability to discover, develope and train inherent talent to accomplish splendid results. His pupils are shining in private and public, here and elsewhere. His many Musical Exhibitions—such as others seldom or never present to the public—have been and will still be his solid credentials, aside from fawning favoritism where true merit is too often absent. Terms, $12 for twelve weeks (twenty-four lessons) at his Music Room, or $15 at the pupil's residence, for Piano or Scientific Vocalization, separately or together. Mr. Moses will also Tune Pianos,—a business "familiar as household words" to him,—and solicits orders. No. 15 EXCHANGE BUILDING.

LAWS OF THE UNITED STATES PASSED AT THE FIRST SESSION OF THE FORTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 75.]

AN ACT to amend the customs-revenue laws and to repeal moieties.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the thirty-ninth section of the act entitled "An act further to prevent smuggling, and for other purposes," approved July eighteenth, eighteen hundred and sixty-six; and the second section of the act entitled "An act to regulate the disposition of the proceeds of fines, penalties, and forfeitures incurred under the laws relating to the customs, and for other purposes," approved March second, eighteen hundred and sixty-seven, be, and the same are hereby, repealed.

SEC. 2. That all provisions of law under which moieties of any fines, penalties, or forfeitures, under the customs-revenue laws, or any share therein, or commission thereon, are paid to informers, or officers of customs, or other officers of the United States, are hereby repealed; and from and after the date of the passage of this act the proceeds of all such fines, penalties, and forfeitures shall be paid into the Treasury of the United States.

SEC. 3. That it shall hereafter be the duty of the Secretary of the Treasury out of any money specifically appropriated by Congress, to make suitable compensation in certain cases under the customs-revenue laws, as hereinafter provided, and not otherwise; and for the purpose of making such compensation for the next fiscal year, the sum of one hundred thousand dollars is hereby appropriated out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated; and he shall annually report to Congress, in detail, all payments by him for such purpose.

SEC. 4. That whenever any officer of the customs or other person shall detect and seize goods, wares, or merchandise, in the act of being smuggled, or which have been smuggled, he shall be entitled to such compensation therefor as the Secretary of the Treasury shall award, not exceeding in amount one-half of the net proceeds, if any, resulting from such seizure, after deducting all duties, costs, and charges connected therewith: Provided, That for the purposes of this act, smuggling shall be construed to mean the act, with intent to defraud, of bringing into the United States, or with like intent, attempting to bring into the United States, dutiable articles without passing the same, or the package containing the same, through the custom-house, or submitting them to the officers of the revenue for examination. And whenever any person not an officer of the United States shall furnish to a district attorney, or to any chief officer of the customs, original information concerning any fraud upon the customs-revenue, perpetrated or contemplated, which shall lead to the recovery of any duties withheld, or of any fine, penalty, or forfeiture incurred, whether by importers or their agents, or by any officer or person employed in the customs-service, such compensation may, on such recovery, be paid to such person so furnishing information as shall be just and reasonable, not exceeding in any case the sum of five thousand dollars; which compensation shall be paid, under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury, out of any money appropriated for that purpose.

SEC. 5. That in all suits and proceedings other than criminal arising under any of the revenue-laws of the United States, the attorney representing the Government, whenever, in his belief, any business-book, invoice, or paper, belonging to or under the control of the defendant or claimant, will tend to prove any allegation made by the United States, may make a written motion, particularly describing such book, invoice, or paper, and setting forth the allegation which he expects to prove; and thereupon the court in which suit or proceeding is pending may, at its discretion, issue a notice to the defendant or claimant to produce such book, invoice, or paper in court, at a day and hour to be specified in said notice, which, together with a copy of said motion, shall be served formally on the defendant or claimant by the United States marshal by delivering to him a certified copy thereof, or otherwise serving the same as original notices of suit in the same court are served; and if the defendant or claimant shall fail or refuse to produce such book, invoice, or paper in obedience to such notice, the allegations stated in the said motion shall be taken as confessed unless his failure or refusal to produce the same shall be explained to the satisfaction of the court. And if produced, the said attorney shall be permitted, under the direction of the court, to make examination, in which examination the defendant or claimant, or his agent, may be present) of such entries in said book, invoice, or paper as relate to or tend to prove the allegation aforesaid, and may offer the same in evidence on behalf of the United States. But the owner of said books and papers, his agent or attorney, shall have, subject to the order of the court, the custody of them, except pending their examination in court as aforesaid.

SEC. 6. That no payment shall be made to any person furnishing information in any case wherein judicial proceedings shall have been instituted, unless his claim to compensation shall have been established to the satisfaction of the court or judge having cognizance of such proceedings, and the value of his services duly certified by said court or judge for the information of the Secretary of the Treasury; but no certificate of the value of such services shall be conclusive of the amount thereof. And when any fine, penalty, or forfeiture shall be collected without judicial proceedings, the Secretary of the Treasury shall, before directing payment to any person claiming such compensation, require satisfactory proof that such person is justly entitled thereto.

SEC. 7. That except in cases of smuggling as aforesaid, it shall not be lawful for any officer of the United States, under any pretense whatever, directly or indirectly, to receive, accept, or contract for any portion of the money which may, under any of the provisions of this or any other act, accrue to any such person furnishing information; and any such officer who shall so receive, accept, or contract for any portion of the money that may accrue as aforesaid shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or imprisonment for not more than one year, or both, in the discretion of the court, and shall not be thereafter eligible to any office of honor, trust, or emolument. And any such person so furnishing information as aforesaid, who shall pay to any such officer of the United States, or to any person for his use, directly or indirectly, any portion of said money, or any other valuable thing, on account of or because of such money, shall have a right of action against such officer or other person, and his legal representatives, to recover back the same, or the value thereof.

SEC. 8. That no officer, or other person entitled to or claiming compensation under any provision of this act, shall be thereby disqualified from becoming a witness in any action, suit, or proceeding for the recovery, mitigation, or remission thereof, but shall be subject to examination and cross-examination in like manner with other witnesses, without being thereby deprived of any right, title, share, or interest in any fine, penalty, or forfeiture to which such examination may relate; and in every such case the defendant or defendants may appear and testify and be examined and cross-examined in like manner.

SEC. 9. That except in the case of personal effects accompanying the passenger, no importation exceeding one hundred dollars in dutiable value shall be admitted to entry without the production of a duly-certified invoice thereof as required by law, or of an affidavit made by the owner, importer, or consignee, before any officer authorized to administer oaths, showing why it is impracticable to produce such invoice.

SEC. 10. That no entry shall be made in the absence of a certified invoice, upon affidavit as aforesaid, unless such affidavit be accompanied by a statement, in the form of an invoice or otherwise, showing either the actual cost of the merchandise included in such importation, or, to the best of the knowledge, information, and belief of the deponent, the foreign market-value thereof; which statement shall be verified by the owner, importer, consignee, or agent desiring to make entry of the merchandise, and which oath shall be administered by the collector or his deputy.

SEC. 11. That before such oath is taken, it shall be lawful for the collector or deputy administering the same to question the deponent touching the sources of his knowledge, information, or belief in the premises, and to require him to make oath to the same, and to produce any letter or paper in his possession, or under his control, which may assist the officers of the customs in ascertaining the dutiable value of the importation, or any part thereof; and in default of such production, when so requested, such owner, importer, consignee, and agent shall be thereafter debarred from producing any such letter or paper for the purpose of avoiding any penalty or forfeiture incurred under this act, unless he shall show to the satisfaction of the court that it was not in his power to produce the same when so demanded.

SEC. 12. That any owner, importer, consignee, agent, or other person who shall, with intent to defraud the revenue, make, or attempt to make, any entry of imported merchandise, by means of any fraudulent or false invoice, affidavit, letter, or paper, or by means of any false statement, written or verbal, or who shall be guilty of any willful act or omission by means whereof the United States shall be deprived of the lawful duties, or any portion thereof, accruing upon the merchandise, or any portion thereof, embraced or referred to in such invoice, affidavit, letter, paper or statement, or affected by such act or omission, shall, for each offense, be fined in any sum not exceeding five thousand dollars nor less than fifty dollars, or be imprisoned for any time not exceeding two years, or both; and, in addition to such fine, such merchandise shall be forfeited; which forfeiture shall only apply to the whole of the merchandise in the case or package containing the particular article or articles of merchandise to which such fraud or alleged fraud relates; and anything contained in any act which provides for the forfeiture or confiscation of an entire invoice in consequence of any item or items contained in the same being undervalued, be, and the same is hereby, repealed.

SEC. 13. That any merchandise entered by any person or persons violating any of the provisions of the preceding section, but not subject to forfeiture under the same section, may, while owned by him or them, or while in his or their possession, to double the amount claimed, be taken by the collector and held as security for the payment of any fine or fines incurred as aforesaid, or may be levied upon and sold on execution to satisfy any judgment recovered for such fine or fines. But nothing herein contained shall prevent any owner or claimant from obtaining a release of such merchandise on giving a bond, with sureties satisfactory to the collector, or, in case of judicial proceedings, satisfactory to the court, or to the judge thereof, for the payment of any fine or fines so incurred; Provided, however, That such merchandise shall in no case be released until all accrued duties thereon shall have been paid or secured

SEC. 14. That wherever any statute requires that, to the cost or market-value of any goods, wares, and merchandise imported into the United States, there shall be added to the invoice thereof, or, upon the entry of such goods, wares, and merchandise, charges for inland-transportation, commissions, port duties, expenses of shipping, export duties, cost of packages, boxes, or other articles containing such goods, wares, and merchandise, or any other incidental expenses attending the packing, shipping, or exportation thereof from the country or place where purchased or manufactured, the omission, without intent thereby to defraud the revenue, to add and state the same on such invoice or entry shall not be cause of a forfeiture of such goods, wares, and merchandise, or of the value thereof; but in all cases where the same, or any part thereof, are omitted, it shall be the duty of the collector or appraiser to add the same, for the purposes of duty, to such invoice or entry, either in items or in gross, at such price or amount as he shall deem just and reasonable, (which price or amount shall, in the absence of protest, be conclusive,) and to impose and add thereto the further sum of one hundred per centum of the price or amount so added; which addition shall constitute a part of the dutiable value of such goods, wares, and merchandise, and shall be collectible as provided by law in respect to duties on imports.

SEC. 15. That it shall be the duty of any officer or person employed in the customs-revenue service of the United States, upon detection of any violation of the customs-laws, forthwith to make complaint thereof to the collector of the district, whose duty it shall be promptly to report the same to the district attorney of the district in which such frauds shall be committed. Immediately upon the receipt of such complaint, if, in his judgment, it can be sustained, it shall be the duty of such district attorney to cause investigation into the facts to be made before a United States commissioner having jurisdiction thereof, and to initiate proper proceedings to recover the fines and penalties in the premises, and to prosecute the same with the utmost diligence to final judgment.

SEC. 16. That in all actions, suits, and proceedings in any court of the United States now pending or hereafter commenced or prosecuted to enforce or declare the forfeiture of any goods, wares, or merchandise, or to recover the value thereof, or any other sum alleged to be forfeited by reason of any violation of the provisions of the customs-revenue laws, or any of such provisions, in which action, suit, or proceeding an issue or issues of fact shall have been joined, it shall be the duty of the court, on the trial thereof, to submit to the jury, as a distinct and separate proposition, whether the alleged acts were done with an actual intention to defraud the United States, and to require upon such proposition a special finding by such jury; or, if such issues be tried by the court without a jury, it shall be the duty of the court to pass upon and decide such proposition as a distinct and separate finding of fact, and in such cases, unless intent to defraud shall be so found, no fine, penalty, or forfeiture shall be imposed.

SEC. 17. That whenever, for an alleged violation of the customs-revenue laws, any person who shall be charged with having incurred any fine, penalty, forfeiture, or disability other than imprisonment, or shall be interested in any vessel or merchandise seized or subject to seizure, when the appraised value of such vessel or merchandise is not less than one thousand dollars, shall present his petition to the judge of the district in which the alleged violation occurred, or in which the property is situated, setting forth, truly and particularly, the facts and circumstances of the case, and praying for relief, such judge shall, if the case, in his judgment requires, proceed to inquire, in a summary manner into the circumstances of the case, at such reasonable time as may be fixed by him for that purpose, of which the district attorney and the collector shall be notified by the petitioner, in order that they may attend and show cause why the petition should be relieved.

SEC. 18. That the summary investigation hereby provided for may be held before the judge to whom the petition is presented, or, if he shall so direct, before any United States commissioner for such district, and the facts appearing thereon shall be stated and annexed to the petition, and, together with a certified copy of the evidence, transmitted to the Secretary of the Treasury, who shall thereupon have power to mitigate or remit such fine, penalty, or forfeiture, or remove such disability, or any part thereof, if, in his opinion, the same shall have been incurred without willful negligence or any intention of fraud in the person or persons incurring the same, and to direct the prosecution, if any shall have been instituted for the recovery thereof, to cease and be discontinued upon such terms or conditions as he may deem reasonable and just.

SEC. 19. That it shall not be lawful for any officer or officers of the United States to compromise or abate any claim of the United States arising under the customs laws, for any fine, penalty, or forfeiture incurred by a violation thereof; and any officer or person who shall so compromise or abate any such claim, or attempt to make such compromise or abatement or in any manner or attempt to relieve from such fine, penalty, or forfeiture, shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and, on conviction thereof, shall suffer imprisonment not exceeding ten years, and be fined not exceeding ten thousand dollars: Provided, however, That the Secretary of the Treasury shall have power to remit any fines, penalties, or forfeitures, or to compromise the same, in accordance with existing law.

SEC. 20. That whenever any application shall be made to the Secretary of the Treasury for the mitigation or remission of any fine, penalty, or forfeiture, or the refund of any duties, in case the amount involved is not less than one thousand dollars, the applicant shall notify the district attorney and the collector of customs of the district in which the duties, fine, penalty, or forfeiture accrued; and it shall be the duty of such collector and district attorney to furnish to the Secretary of the Treasury all practicable information necessary to enable him to protect the interests of the United States.

SEC. 21. That whenever any goods, wares, and merchandise shall have been entered and passed free of duty, and whenever duties upon any imported goods, wares, and merchandise shall have been liquidated and paid, and such goods, wares, and merchandise shall have been delivered to the owner, importer, agent, or consignee, such entry and passage free of duty and such settlement of duties shall, after the expiration of one year from the time of entry, in the absence of fraud and in the absence of protest by the owner, importer, agent, or consignee, be final and conclusive upon all parties.

SEC. 22. That no suit or action to recover any pecuniary penalty or forfeiture of property accruing under the customs revenue laws of the United States shall be instituted unless such suit or action shall be commenced within three years after the time when such penalty or forfeiture shall have accrued: Provided, That the time of the absence from the United States of the person subject to such penalty or forfeiture, or of any concealment or absence of the property, shall not be reckoned within this period of limitation.

SEC. 23. That in lieu of the salaries, moieties, and perquisites of whatever name or nature, and commissions on disbursements, now paid to and received by the collectors, naval officers, and surveyors connected with the customs service in the several collection districts of the United States hereinafter named, there shall be paid, from and after the first day of July, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, an annual salary, as follows:

To the collector of the district of New York, twelve thousand dollars.

To the collectors of the districts of Boston and Charlestown, Massachusetts; and Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, each, eight thousand dollars.

To the collectors of the districts of San Francisco, California; Baltimore, Maryland; and New Orleans, Louisiana, each, seven thousand dollars.

To the collector of the district of Portland and Falmouth, Maine, six thousand dollars.

To the naval officer for the district of New York, eight thousand dollars.

To the naval officers of the districts of Boston and Charlestown, Massachusetts; and San Francisco, California; and Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, each, five thousand dollars.

To the surveyor of the port of New York, eight thousand dollars.

To the surveyors of the ports of Boston, Massachusetts; and San Francisco, California; and Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, each, five thousand dollars.

SEC. 24. That the Secretary of the Treasury shall, from time to time, make such regulations as he may deem necessary for the conduct and management of the bonded warehouses, general order stores, and other depositories of the imported merchandise throughout the United States; all regulations or orders issued by collectors of customs in regard thereto shall be subject to revision, alteration, or revocation by him; and no warehouse shall be bonded and no general-order store established without his authority and approval. And it shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Treasury, in granting permits to establish general-order warehouses, to require such warehouse or warehouses to be located contiguous, or as near as may be, to the landing places of steamers and vessels from foreign ports; and that no officer of the customs shall have any personal ownership of, or interest in, any bonded warehouse or general-order store.

SEC. 25. That public cartage of merchandise in the custody of the Government shall be let after not less than thirty days' notice of such letting to the lowest responsible bidder giving sufficient security, and shall be subject to regulations approved by the Secretary of the Treasury.

SEC. 26. That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed; that nothing herein contained shall affect existing rights of the United States; and in all cases in which prosecutions have been actually commenced for forfeitures incurred, the Secretary of the Treasury shall have power to make compensation, as provided in the fourth section of this act, to the persons who would, under former laws, have been entitled to share in the distribution of such forfeitures.

A Return To First Principles.

If the recent elections teach anything, they teach aspirants for office that if they are not the first choice of the people, they must "step down and out." The republicans of New Hampshire have a herculean task before them, but a triumph next March can be assured by proper nominations. Warned by Massachusetts, New Hampshire should profit. The appeals of the republican press to candidates to cease canvassing for office should be heeded. In this intelligent age, nominations forced upon the people are not always equivalent to elections. The republicans of New Hampshire owe it to their own self-respect to steer clear of all alliances that may hamper their action. Republicanism embraces a principle around which a nation fought successfully. Degeneracy of principle leads directly to demoralization and disintegration. To-day, as for the past nineteen years, a majority of voters in this State oppose the principles that the democracy advocated during the fiercely contested political battles in which republicanism has triumphed with two notable exceptions. Disgust with leaders, contempt for interested managers may cause a falling off in republican support, but the hearts of the people are right. Republican success in the next election can come only from untrammelled leadership. This is no time for a candidate for office to press his claims as of paramount importance to the necessities of party. If the republican party has principles deserving of success, those principles will commend themselves to every reflecting voter; if principles are not at stake, personal candidacy will never be successful in the long run—for the latter contingency only presents encouragement for the democrat, who knows best how to manipulate elections in which the less principle at stake the greater is his opportunity of success.

The Boston Advertiser says the Massachusetts legislature is overwhelmingly anti-prohibition.

A gentleman was standing in a provision store in Portland smoking a cigar a few days since, when suddenly his cigar was knocked out of his mouth by a bullet, which entered the wall behind him. It is a mystery where the ball came from.

A little son of Henry Farrer was killed at Lisbon, Me., by pulling a bale of cotton over upon him.

The Springfield Republican thinks Governor Bullock is going to have Charles Sumner's seat in the U. S. Senate. Hope so.

—An exchange gets off the following on delinquent subscribers: "Looking over an old ledger, we see a long array of names of former subscribers who are indebted to us. Some of them have moved away and are lost to sight although to memory dear. Others are carrying contribution boxes in our most respectable churches, and others again have died and are angels in heaven, but they owe us just the same."

The Brookfield Murder.

We condense from the Boston Journal the following account of the fiendish murder at Brookfield, which occurred on Monday evening the 2d. The family consisted of Mrs. Mary Hanson, a widow, aged about 75 years; her two children, George Hanson, 48 years old and unmarried, and Miss Susan J. Hanson, the murdered woman, aged 34 years, and Freddy Hanson, the little orphan nephew whose home had been in the family since the death of Mr. Hanson some two years since. The murdered woman was a native and through life a resident of the town, and was universally respected and esteemed. To personal attractions she added intellectual culture and graces of demeanor. She was above the medium height, of fine physique, with a delicate complexion, clear blue eyes and black hair, lightly sprinkled with gray. Her affectionate disposition and kind and genial manners made her a general favorite. In homes where trouble and sorrow came she went as a messenger of love, and blessed many hearts with her kind benedictions. The situation of the family was such that her assistance was needed to secure the comforts of home, and for many years she had labored industriously toward the support of her aged parents.

Mr. Hanson had worked that day on a neighboring farm, and returning quite fatigued, he retired soon after supper. The mother and daughter and little nephew had gathered around the table in the neat and cozy kitchen. Miss Hanson sat in front of the table, while Freddy was near her at the corner, and the aged lady was just beyond him. The mother and daughter were knitting, and Freddy was studying a lesson. Pleasant conversation passed between the group around the table, and when the talking ceased but for a moment the only sound that broke the stillness was the clock on the mantle measuring the happy hours in their flight. At a few moments past seven Miss Hanson looked up pleasantly and remarked that "she felt so tired she was afraid she should go to sleep," and laid her head upon an arm of her chair. At a quarter-past seven a terrible explosion occurred. The room was violently shaken, the lamp went out and Miss Hanson fell violently on to the floor. The brother was awakened from sleep and hurried to the scene as rapidly as possible. The lamp was re-lighted, and Miss Hanson was found prostrate on the floor, terribly wounded and bleeding. A shattered window in the rear of the table revealed the direction of the fatal weapon. Restoratives were immediately applied to Miss Hanson, but no sign of life could be discovered. Mr. Hanson sent with the greatest haste to the nearest neighbors for assistance.

After the excitement had in a measure subsided an examination of the premises was made. The weapon, it was found, was fired through one of the rear windows of the kitchen, which was not more than eight feet from the murdered woman. The gun must have been held very near the window, for the sill was blackened with smoke, and the joints of the sash and five panes of glass shivered to atoms. The report of the weapon was so heavy that it was heard a long distance, and at Peter Cook's, a third of a mile away, the concussion resembled an earthquake, and crockery in a cupboard was rattled. Beside that portion of the charge that entered the body of the murdered woman there were dug out of the opposite wall of the room twenty-seven buckshot and pieces of lead. The latter appeared to be portions of bullets cut with great irregularity. The lamp was not broken, but the light was extinguished by the shock.

An autopsy was held by S. W. Roberts, M. D., of Wakefield, H. R. Parker, M. D., of Wolfeborough, and J. E. Scruton, M. D., of Union Village. They have made no formal report, but it is known that they found seventeen shot and slugs in the victim's face, neck and breast. Her right jaw was partly shot away, and there were other terrible wounds. Her death must have been instantaneous.

No attempt is made to conceal the fact that the murder was no sooner known than suspicion fastened upon Joseph Buzzell. No one in the wide world could be thought of who would have any motive to commit the crime excepting him. It was known that the breach of promise suit had greatly troubled and annoyed him. He could have settled the matter for a reasonable compensation, but refused.

The more the affair was discussed the more the public became convinced that Buzzell was the criminal.

Buzzell is a native of Brookfield, and has always had his home in the town. He is perhaps thirty-eight years old, belongs to a respected family, and is said to have always borne a good reputation. His personal appearance is very fair, and he is active and industrious in performing whatever he undertakes.

Buzzell conversed freely on the subject of the crime, but appeared nervous when directly questioned. He said he worked at Wolfeboro' Bridge the day of the murder. He started for his home at a quarter before six, going by the "Mountain Road," and the distance would be some eight miles. In going this way he would not pass the Hanson house. He says he arrived home at half-past seven. He met several people on his way and thinks he can prove his statement. On Tuesday he also worked at the Bridge. Late in the afternoon of that day he accidentally heard Mr. Hastings say that "it was too bad about that girl." He inquired and then learned of Miss Hanson's death. He says that he cannot account for the murder only on the ground that some enemy of his did it for the purpose of getting him (Buzzell) into trouble, for his relations to the deceased were such that it the crime was committed he would certainly be suspected.

Miss Hanson's relations to Joseph Buzzell form an important portion of her history. When they were children their homes were very near, separated only by a broad field. As playmates they were much together, and for years they attended the same school. An intimacy was early formed between them, and Miss Hanson had not reached her twentieth year before it was understood by the public that Buzzell was her accepted suitor. Subsequently they were reported to be engaged, and the attentions which he showed her and the frequency of his visits to her home confirmed public opinion in the above statement. The time for their marriage was several times fixed upon, but it has as frequently been postponed by Buzzell through various excuses. Matters went on in this manner for years until a few months ago, when Buzzell suddenly, and to the almost entire surprise of the community, married another woman. As would have been expected, the event greatly shocked Miss Hanson's feelings and incensed her many friends, who firmly believed that she was devoted in her affections to Buzzell, and had always been honorable in all her relations with him.

A few weeks since, at the earnest solicitation of her relatives, she brought a breach of promise suit against Buzzell. The necessary legal papers were served upon Buzzell and a hearing in the case was to have taken place the day following the murder.

On Tuesday morning, on the Robinson road, about a quarter of a mile from the scene of the tragedy, there were found fresh tracks of a trotting gig exactly the dimensions of the vehicle which Buzzell rode to the bridge in. A shoe taken from Buzzell's horse corresponds with the tracks of the beast that drew the gig. From that locality on the Robinson road a man was tracked through a piece of plowed land, near Hanson's, and the person who went there wore boots of the same size as Buzzell. The man stumbled and by so doing the imprint of a gun stock was plainly left, and Buzzell was known to have recently owned a gun whose stock it is believed would correspond with the trace found. Buzzell has been questioned about his gun and answered that he sold it. Said he went to deliver it to the man, and not seeing him threw it up on to the hay mow, and that was the last he had seen of it. He told what day he left the gun, and it can be proved that he has had it in his possession since then. A portion of the wadding of the weapon that was fired into the house has been recovered, and it goes farther toward the conviction of Buzzell than any other discovery.

We learn that Buzzell has been arrested and the Strafford county Solicitor deems the circumstantial evidence already obtained sufficient to hold him and perhaps lead to his conviction. His examination will come off in a few days.

The Elections.

The Pennsylvania legislature is democratic.

The republican State ticket in Alabama is elected. The legislature is democratic; five republicans and three democrats are elected to Congress.

A republican majority of 12,000 is reported from Louisiana.

Bailey, republican, is elected governor of Michigan by a small majority.

Minnesota elects two republican Congressmen.

Kansas elects a "reform" legislature, two republican and one democratic Congressmen.

The November number of LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE contains a delightful variety of papers. An instalment of Mr. Strahan's "New Hyperion" is given, with some charming illustrations. An article by Prof. Emmette, entitled, "Where Our Brownstone Fronts Come From," gives a sketch of the origin, present condition, and manner of working the Portland Brownstone Quarries of Connecticut, and is handsomely illustrated. The November instalment of Mr. Black's "Three Feathers" is very choice and captivating. The paper on "The Genius of Conservatism," by the late Lord Lytton, is a fine expression of the author's well-known clearness and force of diction. In "Little Joe," by Jennie Woodville, there is a deal of genuine humor. "Galera," by T. Adolphus Trollope, is written in familiar style. "The Natualist in Buzzard's Bay," by W. D. Gunning, is a description of a fishing excursion. The instalment of "Malcolm," by George Macdonald, possesses an interest altogether its own. "Love at First Sight" is a pleasant story. "Euterpe in America" is short and chatty. There are some charming selections in "Our Monthly Gossip," and the poems,—"Moonlight," by Kate Hilliard, "November," by Mary B. Dodge, and "Fallen Leaves," by Will Wallace Harney, are all among the best efforts of these writers.

Local Matters.

Stealing Papers.

Our subscribers have for years been annoyed by petty thieves who make it a common practice to steal papers from doorsteps as soon as they are left by carriers. We have had a standing offer of reward to any person who would furnish evidence sufficient to convict a thief caught stealing a paper. Several persons who would be astonished if their names appeared in print have been seen under suspicious circumstances sneaking up to doorsteps with the evident intention of stealing subscribers' papers, but we have not been able to fix the act definitely upon them. So frequently have the papers disappeared that several subscribers have stopped taking the CHRONICLE for the sole reason that when it was most wanted it was stolen. We have been forced by the systematic thieving which occurs, to have recourse to the law, for our own protection and for the protection of subscribers who pay for their reading. The cost of a paper once a week is trifling, but the annoyance caused by its being stolen is incalculable.

On Wednesday, a carrier left a paper at the Custom House Exchange, opposite this office, and discovered ten minutes afterward that it had been stolen. Returning to the office he obtained another and left it, and our pressman concluded to watch for the thief. About fifteen minutes before six o'clock, a young man of some seventeen or eighteen years, named Wallace Holbrook, took the paper from the door, looked over his shoulder, evidently thought the coast was clear, concealed it about his person and walked rapidly away. He was overtaken near the North church, and made to return the paper. We put the matter in the hands of County Solicitor Frink, the thief was arrested and on Thursday brought before Judge Page, who fined him eight dollars and costs and sentenced him to thirty days in jail. At the solicitation of the proprietors of this paper the execution of the sentence was deferred, Holbrook being discharged on his own recognizance and put on his good behavior. Judge Page gave him some wholesome advice, which he did not seem to appreciate, appearing stolidly indifferent and impenitent. We have determined to push all other cases of the kind to the full extent of the law, and hereby warn other thieves, male and female, of this inention.

Early on Thursday morning, as a young woman and a man were passing up Pleasant street, and the female stopped to take a package of three papers left in the door-handle of C. E. Laighton & Son's store. The man remonstrated with her, saying that it would lead to trouble—to which she replied: "Why, we snatch them every morning." As he remarked that she might "snatch" them once too often, she concluded to leave them, little thinking that thereby she escaped an appearance before Judge Page. We do not object to giving away papers to those who cannot afford to buy them, but we do object to having them stolen, whether the thieves sell them or only wish to see the news. Having made arrangements for the detection of thieves in future, we shall not interfere again with the execution of the sentence of the law.

Kittery.

Messrs. Editors; Among the many interesting scenes occurring here are weddings and serenades. Notwithstanding Uncle Sam has laid down his tools to rest for a short time on the navy yard, the old and young are looking for better days and many are on the matrimonial road, in spite of hard times. Of late we have averaged two weddings a week, and as many serenades, for our celebrated drum corps follow up every case with the "honors" they are bound to confer, let come what will. In most cases they are treated with respect, but on one occasion the parties not liking to be over "joyful," were determined the corps should not enter, and the citizens generally enjoyed the fun till a late hour. The most interesting serenade of all was given on Tuesday evening, the 3d. As early as eight o'clock the drum corps might have been seen or heard coming down Government street, headed by Dr. Appleton, bearing the American flag, bound for the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Milton, near navy yard bridge. After their arrival and giving a favorite tune, Dr. Appleton raised the flag over the door and very soon Mr. and Mrs. Milton appeared, thanking their host of friends for the honors conferred, and bade them enter and enjoy their hospitality. Refreshments consisting of lemonade and cake in abundance were served, after which the serenade ended with music.

The excellent drum corps from your city paid us a flying visit, during the last moon. We hope they will soon repeat it and refresh us with their timely music, and be certain to find the Doctor at home. Almost daily the old cider press on Traip's Point is sending out its harmonious sound and assuring us that "Aunt Lydia" is still giving us pure apple juice. NIGHT WATCH.

Laconics.

Mr. Charles H. Wallace recently caught off the Shoals, while alone in his whaleboat, 2180 pounds of cod—the largest single catch of the season. The crew of schooner "Light of Home" caught 250 cwt. of fish during one night recently, not far from the same locality.

The Mechanics' Association has elected officers as follows: Frank W. Miller, president; Lewis G. Davis, vice-president; John Knowlton, treasurer; Benjamin M. Parker, secretary.

Messrs. Samuel H. Alley and Walter A. Hoyt are to shoot a pigeon match at the Trotting Park on Saturday, the 14th, for $10.

The boys did not forget Pope night.

Circuit Court.

In the Circuit Court, Thursday, the case of Andrew H. Jones vs. Samuel A. Horton, an account for house rent, was decided for plaintiff.

The suit of Jeremiah Sanborn vs. Thos. B. Gammon, an account for tobacco, was decided for plaintiff, the sum being $19.01.

The case of Hovey vs. Grant was assigned for Monday.

A Colored Heroine's Speech.

Mark Twain puts the following speech in the mouth of the colored heroine in his sketch in the November Atlantic:

"Well, sah, I was raised in ole Fo'ginny, but my mother, she was raised in Maryland, an' my souls! she was terrible when she'd git started! My lan! but she'd make de fur fly! When she'd git into dem tantrums, she always had one word dat she said. She'd straighten herself up an' put her fists on her hips an' say, 'I want you to understan' dat I wan't bawn in de mash to be fool' by ash! I'se one o' de ole Blue Hen's Chickens I is! Ca'se you see, dats what folks dat bawn in Maryland call deyselves, an' dey's proud of it.' Well, dat was her word. I don't ever forget it, beca'se she said it so much, an' beca'se she said it one day when my little Henry tore his wris' awful, an' moss busted his head, right up at de top of his forehead, and de niggers didn't fly aroun' fas' enough to 'tend to him. An' when dey talk back at her, she up an' says, 'Look-a-heah!' she says, 'I want you niggers to understan' dat I wa'nt bawn in de mash to be fool' by trash! I'se one o' de ole Blue Hen's Chickens, I is!' and den sae clar' dat kitchen an' bandage up de chile herself. So I says dat word, too, when I'se riled."

Courting Disease.

The individual may be said to court disease who exposes himself to the miasmatic influences which give rise to chills and fever and other malarious epidemics and endemics, without previously fortifying his system against their insidious attacks by the use of a protective medicinal agent. The far lost constitution is by no means proof against such maladies, much less one naturally weak or bilious, or the antagonistic power of which is lessened by an irregular habit of body. The inhabitants of the bottom lands of the South, of the new clearings of the West, of suburban districts where sunken lots exist, of every locality of the American continent, in fact, where malaria is epidemic or sporadic, declare that the only true antidote to the miasmatic virus that they have ever used is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. There seems to be something peculiarly resistant in this standard, preventive and remedy to all hurtful atmospheric influences.

THE GREAT MEDICAL SUCCESS OF THE AGE. Leading druggists who have been in the business for half a lifetime, state that they have never known a medicine to enlist the entire and universal confidence of the public, as rapidly as HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR. Although it has only been a few years in use, it has already taken precedence of all other medicines advertised as remedies for Coughs, Colds, and incipient Consumption, and its annual sales are without a parallel in the history of this class of preparations.

STOVES! STOVES!

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the state, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Oven Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

A Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

—THE—

Art Journal of America,

ISSUED MONTHLY.

"A magnificent conception, magnificently carried out."

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes, for ten times its cost; and then, there is the chromo, besides!

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in earnest work. It is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate only on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a leading characteristic, the best productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign sources.

PREMIUM FOR 1875.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in oil colors, of the same noble dog whose picture in a former issue attracted so much attention.

"Man's Unselfish Friend"

Will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves such a dog, and the portrait is executed so true to the life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage tells us that his own Newfoundland dog (the finest in Brooklyn) barks at it! Although so natural, no one who sees this chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.

THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. To every series of 5000 subscribers, 100 different pieces, valued at over $2,500, are distributed as soon as the series is full, and the awards of each series as made, are to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.

TERMS.

One Subscription, entitling to THE ALDINE one year, the Chromo and the Art Union,

SIX DOLLARS PER ANNUM, IN ADVANCE.

(No charge for postage.)

Specimen copies of THE ALDINE, fifty cents.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or remitted to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON, President.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs!

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms, with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their application in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Piano and Singing.
THOS. P. MOSES, thorough and tasteful Teacher of Music, from A in its alphabet to composition and arrangement, has concluded not to accept a recent call to go South again, but will retain his permanent location in the grand "Old Town by the Sea," where he was born,—and renews the offer of his services as above, with unabated zeal and love for this branch of human refinement. He is no novice or humbug to beg, borrow or buy bolsters to uphold him in an art he does not fully understand in every phase of its beauty; but would respectfully point to the best of references, WORKS, and ability to discover, develope and train inherent talent to accomplish splendid results. His pupils are shining in private and public, here and elsewhere. His many Musical Exhibitions—such as others seldom or never present to the public—have been and will still be his solid credentials, aside from fawning favoritism where true merit is too often absent. Terms, $12 for twelve weeks (twenty-four lessons) at his Music Room, or $15 at the pupil's residence, for Piano or Scientific Vocalization, separately or together. Mr. Moses will also Tune Pianos,—a business "familiar as household words" to him,—and solicits orders.

LAWS
OF THE
UNITED STATES
PASSED AT THE
FIRST SESSION OF THE FORTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 75.]

AN ACT to amend the customs-revenue laws and to repeal moieties.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 76.]

AN ACT for the better government of the Navy of the United States.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That on and after the passage of this act, any officer of the Navy who may be promoted in course to fill a vacancy in the next higher grade shall be entitled to the pay of the grade to which promoted from the date he takes rank therein, if it be subsequent to the vacancy he is appointed to fill.

SEC. 2. That the accounting officers of the Treasury be, and are hereby, prohibited from making any allowance to any officer of the Navy who has been, or may hereafter be, dismissed from the service and restored to the same under the provisions of the twelfth section of the act of March third, eighteen hundred and sixty-five, entitled "An act to amend the several acts heretofore passed to provide for the enrolling and calling out the national forces, and for other purposes," to exceed more than pay as on leave for six months from the date of dismissal, unless it shall appear that the officer demanded in writing addressed to the Secretary of the Navy, and continued to demand as often as once in six months, a trial as provided for in said act.

SEC. 3. That so much of the act entitled "An act to authorize the Secretary of the Navy to provided for the education of naval constructors and steam-engineers, and for other purposes," approved July fourth, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, as provides that cadet-engineers, not to exceed fifty in number, shall be appointed by the Secretary of the Navy, is hereby repealed; and cadet-engineers shall hereafter be appointed annually by the Secretary of the Navy, and the number appointed each year shall not exceed twenty-five; and that all acts or parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act be, and the same are hereby repealed.

Approved, June 22, 1874.

My Little Stratagem.

Jessie Hale was the merriest, prettiest, most provoking daughter of Eve that ever existed—at least, I thought so—though perhaps I was not an impartial judge, as I must confess I was deeply in love, and, in fact, I don't think I could remember the time when I was not in love with her. I first ventured to ask her company from church, when, after four years' absence, I returned to my native town and set up as a surgeon. Oakdale was a healthy place, or else the people felt afraid of trusting their lives in the hands of such a young scapegrace as they had known me to be, for somehow my horse and gig found more employment in carrying Jessie Hale to ride than any other profitable business, yet of all the tantalizing little wretches that ever fascinated and provoked a poor fellow until he could not have told whether he was in the body or out of it—she was the worst.

And there was I—Willard Tremaine—standing six feet two in stockings, led about by that elf, coming and going at every beck and call, as if I was a great simpleton, as in truth I must have been, for after playing "yours devotedly" for about six months I was no nearer winning her than at the first. Open hearted and candid she was on every other subject; but just let me speak of love or marriage, and I might just as well talk to a stone wall. "All is fair in love and war," or at least I thought so, and resolved to try the result of strategy on my wilful lady love.

One fine morning, as we were about starting for a ride on horseback, and I assisting Miss Jessie into the saddle, her horse commenced rearing and kicking at an alarming rate; of course the jagged bits of iron I had cautiously inserted beneath the saddle had nothing to do with it. By the time she was fairly seated he had become perfectly unmanageable, throwing her violently from the saddle; of course I caught her before she reached the ground. No sooner was she in safety, when, with a deep groan, I staggered back against the fence, my right arm hanging helplessly by my side. It took nicely, for Jessie was beside me in a moment.

"Oh, Will," she said piteously, "that terrible horse has broken your arm; what will you do? Poor Will! Poor Will!"

How like a villain I felt at the sight of her distress; but I was not going to give up then; so I answered faintly, "It is nothing dear Jessie; I would suffer a thousand times more to feel that I had saved your precious life."

"But oh, I am so sorry! What can be done for you?" she said in touching accents.

"Only tell me that you love me, Jessie, darling; it will soothe my pain more than anything else in the world." And then, like the great simpleton that I was, I put that right arm around her, and never discovered my mistake till she sprang suddenly away.

"Wouldn't a little brandy and water do as well, Mr. Tremaine?" she asked archly. "There don't seem to be any bones broken; the injury was internal, I should think."

Wouldn't I have sold myself for a sixpence! But there was no help for it; so I had to own the trick, and went home wishing I had broken my arm or neck, I didn't care much which. After that, for a while, I was rather shy of the love subject, for I didn't fancy hearing of my last attempt; but, one morning, however, I went over the way, resolved that the matter should be decided before I returned. Jessie was sitting by the parlor window, busily sewing and humming some merry tune to herself as I entered. She was looking prettier than ever; and I found it terrible hard work to begin.

At last I broke in upon some of her careless nonsense with, "Why in the world, Jessie, don't you say whether you love me or not? I believe you do—in fact, I know you do."

Here I was again making a simpleton of myself.

"Oh! you know, then, do you?" she said, coolly, with a merry twinkle in her eye. "Then of course there is no need telling you."

"No, I did not mean it, Jessie," I said, "But do you love me? Will you answer me yes or no?"

"Yes or no," she answered demurely.

"Oh, Jessie Hale!" I exclaimed, impatiently, "you will drive me crazy!"

"A terrible misfortune, surely," she said, with a laugh, throwing down her work, and stepping through the low window upon the lawn. "Now, Will, I will tell you what I will do if you will promise never to plague me again about this."

"I will promise anything, if you will only give me an honest answer," I said eagerly.

"Well, then, if you can catch me before I reach the elm tree, I will give you a decided answer."

I thumped my head against the window-sash, and away I went, racing over the green sward with ten times more eagerness than I ever displayed in playing catch in my boyhood days. I caught her before she was half way to the old elm.

"Now for the answer," I said eagerly.

"Oh! but can't you wait until I get my breath?" drawing it in quick, spasmodic jerks. "Let me see; what was it I promised to tell you?"

"Whether you love me or not, you provoking little wretch," said I fairly out of patience.

"Now look here, Mr. Will; if you don't leave off calling me names I won't answer you, now see if I do." And sure enough no answer could I get from her.

The next day I received a letter from my uncle, stating that his assistant had left him and asking me to take his place. This was just the situation I had been wanting for years, and I hailed it with delight now.

"But, Jessie," I thought—"could I leave her?"

A moment's reflection showed me it was just what was needed, for if she really cared for me my absence would make her willing to acknowledge it. It did not take long to make my arrangements, and before night they were all completed, and the next morning I started for the station, calling at Mr. Hale's on my way, to bid Jessie good-bye. I could see the little witch did not believe one word of the story I told her.

"I hope, Mr. Will, you won't break your arm in the train; it would make it so bad for you," she said, with a smile, as I concluded.

"And you not there to cure it," I retorted. "But, seriously, Jessie; I am in earnest, now. It is probable I shall not see you again for years; for if I like the place I shall remain there."

She still believed it some trick, for her eyes said plainly, "You can't cheat me again." And she said good-bye as coolly as if it were only for a day. I went down the walk, feeling much as I think Adam must have felt when he left Paradise, except that he took his Eve with him and I left mine behind.

I was pleased with the place, and was not long in accepting my uncle's proposals. I wrote to this effect to a lawyer, desiring him to dispose of my property at Oakdale. I knew Jessie would hear of it, and it would give her to understand that I had no intention of returning. In three days I followed the letter, determined that if I did not succeed this time, I would give her up forever, though my heart gave a quick throb of pain at the thought.

It was just at twilight, of a pleasant September day, when I reached Oakdale. Direct to Mr. Hale's I took my way, saying to myself as I went, "Now or never!" I entered the dusky parlor unannounced. By the dim light I saw Jessie sitting on a sofa, her head resting on the soft pillow. She was alone and had not heard my step. Was she asleep? A quick sob answered me. That argued well for my success. In a moment I was kneeling beside her, and had raised the bowed head.

"Jessie! dear little Jessie!" I said tenderly, scarcely knowing how she would receive it. With a quick start and a glad cry of surprise, her head was pillowed on my bosom.

"Oh, I am so glad to see you, Will. They told me you would not return, and I have been so lonely without you."

"And I have been lonely too, Jessie, darling," I said: "My house anywhere would always be lonely without you. Will you not go and share it with me?"

The answer was very low but I knew it was the affirmative.

"Will you become my wife next week?" I was determined to make sure work now.

There was some hesitation, a few objections raised, but I finally gained the same answer to that.

Then I hurried to the drawing room to see the old folks. There was considerable pleasure expressed at my unexpected arrival and great surprise when my errand was made known; and a few tears from the mother at parting with Jessie, and hearty congratulations from the father, concluded by the remark "That just as likely as not she would change her mind while changing her dress."

Not so, however. In a week, I got the prettiest, best little wife in all England, and what is better still, I think so now, even though she did say, ten minutes after the ceremony, "I never told you I loved you, after all, Will."

And never has to this day.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1874.

The Elections.

The Minnesota legislature is republican by eighteen majority on joint ballot.

The democratic majority in Alabama is 5000.

Nevada elects a republican legislature, a republican congressman and a democratic Governor.

Osborn, republican, has 12,000 majority for Governor of Kansas.

The republicans have a majority in the Louisiana legislature.

Tennessee elects one republican Congressman.

Bagley, republican, is elected Governor of Michigan by 3000 majority. The legislature is republican on joint ballot.

The democratic majority in Pennsylvania is 7000. The legislature is democratic by 31 majority on joint ballot.

In the U. S. Senate, as now constituted, there are 49 republicans, 22 democrats and 1 (Schurz) not classed. We count Senators Tipton, Fenton, Sprague and Hamilton of Texas with the democrats, with whom they usually act. In the Senate during the forty-fourth Congress there will be 45 republicans, 26 democrats and 1 independent (Booth of California). In 1877, 26 other senators will retire—16 republicans and 10 democrats. Supposing that the present organization of parties should be maintained so long, the democrats must not only hold all their present members, but gain 10 from the republicans to have a majority between 1877 and 1879.

State News.

Joshua Foster rejoiceth so much over democratic victory that he declares the republican bird wears a "cue!" Did you mean a billiard cue, Joshua, or a q-u-e-u-e?

It doesn't require a very keen eyesight to discern that the Concord People is excessively fearful that Gen. McCutchins will decline to run again as the republican candidate for Governor.

At Concord, Thursday evening, a man named Darby Gannon, employed in the Northern Railroad shops, went down cellar to connect a hose, for the purpose of steaming some lumber outside, when he was caught by the head of a set screw in the main shaft, and was whirled around the shaft with such velocity that every particle of his clothes except his boots was entirely stripped from his body. The shaft was only sixteen inches from the solid wall, and, impossible as it seems that he should have been dragged through such a space without tearing his body asunder, yet those up stairs heard the blow as his body struck the wall no less than three times. The noise attracted them below, where they found the apparently lifeless man stretched upon the floor, with his clothes entirely torn from his body. He was carried home and Dr. Conn called, who, after an examination, said no bones were broken, but there might be internal injuries not yet discovered, which would prove fatal. The man is terribly bruised, and it seems a miracle that he was not torn to shreds, as he was whirled around the shaft, striking the brick wall at each revolution, until his clothes were torn from him and he was released.

Almost a Serious Mill Fire.

Considerable alarm was created in Newburyport, Thursday afternoon, when a report, spreading with the greatest rapidity, started that the Ocean mills on Munroe and Chase streets were on fire. Hundreds flocked to the scene fearing a repetition of the Fall River holocaust, which happily was not the case. A fire had broken out between the tin lining inside and slate covering outside of the boiler-house roof, and owing to its inaccessible position it soon made considerable headway. The department arrived promptly, and so well did the men work that not a pane of glass in the mill building proper was broken by water or heat, although the boiler-house adjoins the mill building. The agent, Mr. Chandler, sent his men at once into the various rooms of the mill, and the 350 operatives went safely down the stairs and home. There was no smoke except in the carding-room, and there was no excitement that savored of a panic. The roof of the boiler-house was completely destroyed, and the engines probably damaged.

This is the second fire in these mills during the present summer and autumn, the last of which happened about two months ago, having occurred in the waste-house, but the damage was trifling. The mills are the largest in Newburyport, running 27,000 spindles, turning out about 25,000 yards of cloth per week, and were built in 1846 and 1867.

Readables.

Prohibitionists must console themselves in the belief that there can be no more open bars in Boston than there were before.

It's a little too bad, but they do say that a large number of the men employed in the Charlestown Navy Yard for Gooch's special benefit voted for Banks.

Across The Atlantic.

NUMBER II.

A ride of three-fourths of an hour from Liverpool, through a very pretty farming section, though here and there, wherever water could be reached, dotted with tall manufacturing chimneys, took me to Chester.

"Rare old city of Chester!" wrote Albert Smith, in his "Struggles and Adventures of Christopher Tadpole." "Rare old city of Chester! Even in these days of rocket-like travelling, a man might fly all over Great Britain and Ireland, with an extra 'day ticket' for Berwick-upon-Tweed, before he saw anything half so fine as the mouldering old walls and towers of that venerable city, or looked upon anything half so fair as the prospect of vale and mountain, wooded headland, and spire-pointed plain that surround it." Well said, friend Albert, and from thousands of visitors who annually seek entertainment and the gratification of a healthy curiosity within the circle of her famous walls come the same words! Situated on the northern banks of the River Dee, the deified stream of the ancient Briton,—built upon it as it were; built into the solid rock, for the principal streets within the walls are almost wholly excavations of several feet in depth—the city of Chester stands forth before the world, certainly the most curious city in the British Isles, second to none of its fellows in martial strength or historic importance, and as a faithful and enduring relic of the past, "peerless and alone!"

Chester, a city now of some forty thousand inhabitants, has the reputation of being the oldest town in the United Kingdom. First, as some declare, a settlement of the ancient Britons—then a colony of imperial Rome—afterward a favorite city and resort of the Anglo-Saxon monarchs—now the camp and court of Hugh Lupur the Norman, nephew of the Conqueror—ever a city loyal to its king,—no admirer of the curious and remarkable, none who seek after the ancient in name, and beautiful in nature, should fail to visit and explore the attractions of "rare old Chester." No one can come here, be he Englishman, European or American, without finding an ample and luxuriant field for admiration; and no one can depart without feeling that the hours passed within its walls will ever be enshrined as among the richest in his memory. What shall I write? I hardly know how to begin, or beginning, shall not know where or how to end. I thought to make these letters little sketches of a hasty trip—mere outlines of days here and there, but I fear I cannot keep to my purpose. As I go from place to place, visiting scenes so rich with the aroma of history, or so interwoven with longing desires and day-dreams of the past, it seems as though invisible hands detained me, confining me to the spot, while eye and mind drink in the wonders of the views, and that made a possessor myself, I must, perforce, send all away to the dear friends at home.

From spending a few hours looking into the older numbers of the "Chester Archæological Journal," as well as one or two of the first histories of Cheshire, I think there can be no doubt that Chester was a city of great importance to the ancient Briton long before Cæsar's conquering legions overrun the island. Stirring times must those have been for old Chester; the rude huts of the Britons, the temples and altars of the ancient Druids, the mud walls and other defences of her former possessors, all vanished like a dream; while in their place rose Forum and Prætorium, the pagan temple, the stately columns, the peerless masonry, the noble statues, the massive walks, and all the other elements of civilization which usually followed in the wake of proud old Rome.

I am told, that of all the Roman settlements in Britain,—and they are many, none retain to the present time so many enduring proofs of their energetic rule as Chester. Surrounded by walls, which for almost their entire length rest upon Roman foundations,—nay, which still exhibit to the eye of truth and time the evident impress of their mechanical genius,—one can fancy as he looks thereon, that the sturdy warriors are still pacing to and fro, keeping watch against the enemy; while within the city, the soldiers and inhabitants are plying the pickaxe, trowel, and spade,—here piling stone upon stone in the erection of a forum,—there excavating the parent rock to form the protective fosse,—and there planning and building the tesselated floors, the baths, and the sudatories of domestic life. Eighteen hundred years have rolled away since Julius Agricola and his legion held sway over the city; and yet ever since then, notwithstanding that they have long laid in the dust, scarce a year is said to have passed without the encroachment of the builder or researches of the antiquary bringing to light some long hidden but valuable relic of this extraordinary people. I will only enumerate of the immense number of relics found here in making excavations that of a black earthenware vessel in June, 1858, which upon being broken open, proved to be filled with several hundred of Roman silver and copper coins, all struck in the third century of the Christian era. A fine pig of lead, bearing an imperial inscription, commencing with the word in full, Cæsar; this was discovered in 1849. In the years 1853 and 1863, large and spacious hypocausts, formed of red sandstone pillars, one of them having a well preserved sudatory or sweating room above, were discovered. These have been carefully preserved, and can be seen by visitors. The walls of Chester deserve more than a passing notice. They are said to be the only ones in England whose original appearance have been maintained. Upon them, in different places, I find their chronology thus written out:

A. D. 61.—Walls built by Romans.

A. D. 73.—Marius, King of the Britons, extended the walls.

A. D. 607.—The Britons defeated by the Saxons.

A. D. 907.—Rebuilt by daughter of Alfred the Great.

A. D. 1399.—Henry of Lancaster mustered his troops under the walls.

A. D. 1645.—The Parliamentary forces made a breach in these walls.

Grand old Chester walls! What scenes of glory and renown are inseparably bound up in your history. Here for centuries the fight for supremacy went on. Britons going down before Romans, and when the day of the world's conqueror had passed the battle still went on between Picts and Goths, and Romans—Britons and Saxons under Hengist and Horsa. Later in history we are told that the Saxons, perceiving the weakness of their former allies, the Britons, or Romano-Britons, possessed themselves of Chester, only in their turn to be driven out by the reanimated Britons. For two hundred years Chester enjoyed a prosperous peace, but we have all read of the Danish invasion, and Chester went down with the rest, again and again to change hands until the firm rule of William of Normandie bequeathed a lasting respite. I said lasting! No, not lasting, for from off one of the towers of the walls, Charles the First in 1645 witnessed his sun set in blood, when Cromwell's grim soldiers defeated his cavaliers upon the field of Rowton Moor.

The walls of Chester as now preserved present a sufficiently wide and smooth surface to permit a promenade upon their top the entire circumference of two miles; and are from six to forty feet in height, according to the ground upon which they stand. The foundations only are now claimed to be of Roman origin. Upon the north, south, east, and west sides are high bridges of stone, arching the streets, and as one makes a circuit of the walls the view of town and outside country is very picturesque and beautiful. Besides the walls there are many other objects of exceeding interest in Chester. The Great Cathedral, said to be founded in the year 200, and to have been used as a place of safety against the Danes in 800, is indeed a glorious relic of the past. It is now undergoing very extensive repairs and only a portion of it can be seen by visitors. I am told that upwards of $300,000 is to be expended on it, and that all the repairs will be conducted with the view of strengthening it, and preserving its original appearance. It is a magnificent old building, of a cruciform structure, as most of the cathedrals here are, and with a massive and weather-beaten tower standing just in the centre compartment of the cross. I believe it is not claimed that the present structure is the same as that erected in old Druidical times, or that of Wulpherus, King of the Mercians, who reared one upon the foundation of the old Temple; or yet that of Earl Hugh Lupur, nephew of the Conqueror. These gave place one to the other, and the last in its turn yielding to the "corroding tooth of time," to the present structure, which was erected, partially out of the old materials and upon the original spot, in the year 1492, just fifty years before the time of that shameless polygamist—"Bluff King Hal," who so ruthlessly cut up and divided around the enormous church properties of England. One cannot but feel a sense of awe come over him as he stands beneath the glorious old arches of these venerable Cathedrals and reflects that for hundreds of years the stone pavements have echoed to the tread of nuns and monks, and the walls thrown back the music of a thousand choirs whose voices are now hushed forever. What a pity these old piles were not reared of granite rather than the soft sandstone of which they are formed! What perfect frames those glorious wonders—the stained-glass windows, would then have! Now, alas, window-frames and walls themselves are fast crumbling before pelting rain, and hail, and cutting frosts.

Entering the Cathedral by the South Porch, over which is the Parvice Chamber, or Paradise, we find ourselves in the Nave, and close to a lofty apartment now used as the Consistory Court. Beyond, and to the left of this Court, where ecclesiastical law is dispensed near the baptismal font, is the great West entrance of the Cathedral; and here we behold one of those rare and magnificent windows, of the most delicate tracery, illustrating the final sentence of the Apostle's Creed, "The Resurrection of the body and the Life everlasting." In the centre of the main opening is the "Appearance of our Lord to St. Mary Magdalene in the Garden." The three lights south of the centre illustrate the "Resurrection of our Lord," above Whom are seen the heavenly host, while below are the affrighted soldiers, the angel at the tomb, with the apostles and holy women. Overhead are other very delicate and beautiful allegorical representations. Outside, the appearance of the west entrance, though time has laid its hand heavily upon the red sandstone, is one of great beauty. This part is better preserved than the other portions, and with its grand double Tudor arch of chaste design, supported on either side by four canopied niches—once ornamented with statuettes, gives one a good idea of the ancient beauty of this old Cathedral. St. Mary's Church, although of much smaller proportions than the Great Cathedral, is also well worthy of a visit. This is undoubtedly from seven hundred to to nine hundred years old, the foundations antedating the Conquest, while the town itself is purely of the Norman style of architecture. Inside, the church has lately gone through a thorough renovation, though with an attempt to save all of the old that could be preserved. It has some very fine stained-glass windows, though these are comparatively new, and some partially restored very ancient frescoes; but the principal attraction of this church is the appearance of its ancient walls without, and the fact that it contains two monuments of the date of 1613, these two being the only effigies of Catholic origin in Chester spared by the puritan soldiers of Cromwell.

Chester Castle is spoken of in Harper's Hand Book as the principal object of attraction in the city; but although I spent two or three very agreeable hours with a guide wandering through it, and about and over its embattled walls, I cannot agree with Mr. Filridge. Certainly, however, I would urge visitors not to pass it by. When it was erected, whether during the British, Roman, or Saxon occupation, there is nothing to determine; it is therefore a matter of gratification to have studied a fortification so finely preserved as this, that very possibly stood much as it does now from fifteen hundred to eighteen hundred years ago. This fortress will be remembered as the one which was the object of the Fenian raid in February of 1871. There is much else about and in Chester I should be glad to tell you of, but space will allow me only in conclusion to give you a pen picture of her streets. Chester streets! the quaintest and most curious of all thy wonderful sights. I have before remarked that Chester seems to have been built into rather than on the ground. Some of the streets are almost even with the tops of the windows of the first stories, and yet without any resemblance to our style of basements. On some of the principal streets the second story of most of the houses is thrown forward, as you have seen it in railway stations, or old settlers' houses at home. Sometimes it projects several feet, and is supported by posts in the sidewalk. Soon this becomes a frequent and then a continuous arrangement; the posts are generally of stone, forming an arcade,—and you walk beneath them in the shade. You observe, as would be likely in an old city, that the surface is irregular, and that we are ascending a slight elevation. Notwithstanding the old structure overhead, and the well-worn flagging under foot, we notice the shop fronts are filled with plate glass, and with all the brilliancy of the most modern art and taste. Turning, to make the contrast more striking, by looking at the little windows and rude carvings of the houses opposite, we see a banister or handrail separates the sidewalk from the carriage-way, and are astonished in stepping out to it, to find the street is some ten feet below us. We are evidently on the second floor of the houses. Finding steps leading down, we descend into the street, and discover another tier of shops, on the roofs of which we have been walking.

By all means visit Chester when you go to England, and if possible save from three days to a week for it. The Grosvenor Hotel is a very fine, home-like house, spoken of as one of the best in the kingdom.

Courting Disease.

The individual may be said to court disease who exposes himself to the miasmatic influences which give rise to chills and fever and other malarious epidemics and endemics, without previously fortifying his system against their insidious attacks by the use of a protective medicinal agent. The hardiest constitution is by no means proof against such maladies, much less one naturally weak or bilious, or the antagonistic power of which is lessened by an irregular habit of body. The inhabitants of the bottom lands of the South, of the new clearings of the West, of suburban districts where sunken lots exist, of every locality of the American continent, in fact, where malaria is epidemic or sporadic, declare that the only true antidote to the miasmatic virus that they have ever used is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. There seems to be something peculiarly resistant in this standard, preventive and remedy to all hurtful atmospheric influences.

THE GREAT MEDICAL SUCCESS OF THE AGE. Leading druggists who have been in the business for half a lifetime, state that they have never known a medicine to enlist the entire and universal confidence of the public, as rapidly as HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR. Although it has only been a few years in use, it has already taken precedence of all other medicines advertised as remedies for Coughs, Colds, and incipient Consumption, and its annual sales are without a parallel in the history of this class of preparations.

Well Indorsed.

The Gift Concerts in aid of the Kentucky Library are not at all speculative. The institution is chartered by the State of Kentucky. The first prize in the next drawing, which takes place November 30, is $250,000. It is a reliable institution, and some one will get that money. And that there may be no doubt as to the honesty of its management we cite the fact that the best banks in Louisville indorse it and that Governor Thomas E. Bramlette, of Louisville, is the general manager. An institution so fathered is certainly deserving of confidence.

Laconics.

It is said that all the cider mills in this vicinity are running night and day to accommodate the farmers, whose apples are rotting badly on account of the unusually warm weather. How does this business of grinding apples tally with the conduct of cider mill owners in the time of the teetotal abstinence reform in 1843, when many of them were so thoroughly convinced that their business was wrong that some destroyed their mills and presses, converting them into farming utensils of different kinds while others set them aside to decay and drop in pieces? If cider-making was unjustifiable then, is it any less so to-day? Or was the reform (?) like all revivals, spasmodic, and are the farmers recovering from the spasm? We submit these questions to the farmers, and await a reply.

The biggest turnip (except the new turnup of the democratic party) we have seen this year was left at this office a day or two since by Mr. S. C. Berry, and was raised by him on his farm at Rye. It was of the flat white variety, measured twenty-seven inches in circumference and nearly five inches in depth, and weighed—we don't know how much, as it was all eaten up by our visitors (with a little help from us) before we had a chance to weigh it.

Some fifty of the friends of Mr. John S. Sides partook of a "bird supper" at the Central Oyster House, Thursday evening. The beautifully-dressed and bounteously-loaded tables were laid in the upper (ladies') saloon, and presented a very handsome appearance until the guests destroyed the symmetry of the arrangement by devouring many of the ornaments. Visitors from Concord, Manchester and other places, and politicians of both the great parties, helped make up the company,—and we judged from remarks which we overheard that the democrats had received intimations of an election having recently taken place somewhere, though none of the republicans had heard of anything of the kind. The party broke up before midnight, after doing full justice to the feast and enjoying one of the pleasantest times of the season.

Great blows—those of Tuesday and Friday.

The old house, corner of Hanover and Bridge streets, owned by Wm. Critchley, now being repaired by Moses Yeaton, has probably been over more land than any other house in Portsmouth. More than half a century ago it was removed here from Exeter. A project was on foot to extend what is now Hanover street in a westerly direction, and this house was placed on the lot, it is said, by night, in order to prevent further extension of the street.

Carpenter William F. Laighton is ordered to the receiving ship Ohio at the Charlestown navy yard.

The navy yard steam cutter running in place of the Emerald broke her shaft, Friday, while on one of her trips. The accident occurred during the gale and when the boat was in the middle of the river. Assistance was rendered by another steam cutter belonging to the yard, and she was towed in to the wharf without further damage.

Ann Eliza Young, the thirty-seventh wife of Brigham Young, is to lecture in the Methodist course, the date to be announced.

The ticket holders of the S. P. C. A. course are promised a delightful treat in a supplementary lecture to be given by the Chinese orator, Wong Chin Foo, provided sufficient tickets at twenty cents each are subscribed for, the seats now occupied by the course holders to be reserved for them on this special occasion.

A willow tree in the yard of the Methodist church, two feet in diameter, was broken off by the wind on Friday, and blown over into the garden of Mr. Ammi Davis, crushing a fence and knocking down a cherry tree.

During the high wind of Friday, about noon, the railing on the roof of the building at the corner of Daniel and Market streets caught fire from the chimney, and was extinguished by Mr. Isaac N. Goodrich and others. An hour afterward, the roof of a brick building on Bow street occupied by Peter Sullivan, caught fire from a defective chimney, but no serious damage was done, thanks to Ex-Mayor Marvin and the "soda fountains."

Judge Page fined Albert R. Chamberlain $11.04, on Friday, for an assault on a woman named Lester.

A month ago, Wm. Perkins jumped the bail of $1000 in which he was held for breaking and entering in Boston, and came to this city where he enlisted on the U. S. sloop-of-war Plymouth. On the arrival of that vessel at Boston, Perkins was arrested and lodged in Suffolk County Jail. He will soon appear for trial.

Struggling with the Ocean.

When it was announced in Cork, Ireland, that an American seaman had, in the gale of Tuesday night, Oct. 20th, jumped overboard from a transatlantic liner and, after swimming for seven hours, had landed on the Skibbereen coast, people, while quite prepared to give Americans credit for doing big things, were yet unprepared for such a demand on their credulity as this. The thing, however, was done, and the hero of it was Captain Paul Boyton, of the New Jersey Lifeguards, Atlantic City. This gentleman, a professional diver of well-known daring, left New York in the National Company's steamer Queen, taking with him a patent swimming costume. It was Captain Boyton's intention when from two to three hundred miles distant from New York to jump overboard and swim back, but the commander of the steamer was a man of little faith and vetoed the experiment. Captain Boyton had therefore to remain an involuntary passenger until the vessel approached the Irish coast when the commander, having been repeatedly importuned, gave his permission.

Captain Boyton drew on his India rubber air-tight suit and inflated the air chambers; in his air-tight sack he placed food for three days, a compass, a bull's-eye lantern, some books (just to beguile the time on the water,) some signal rockets and a United States flag. In his inside pocket he placed a mail which the passengers had given to him to post; he strapped his bowie knife and axe to his side, and grasping his paddle was lowered into the water, amid the cheers of the passengers, at 9:30 o'clock P. M. It was a wild, dark night, he was close to the Fastnet rock, with Cape Clear three miles off, and Baltimore, Ireland, toward which he intended to make, was in a direct line seven miles away. He lay on his back paddling vigorously, and now the lights of the vessel were lost in the night. In a quarter of an hour more his spirit almost quailed, when tossed high on the crest of a wave he could no longer see the coast line or any lights. The wind blew, the rain poured down and the tide set dead against him. He was drifting out to sea, and, to add to the awful loneliness of his situation and to increase the dreadful peril, a violent gale commenced. That night for many hours no mailboat crossed the Irish Channel, and great destruction was done on the coast. And through these awful hours of darkness this man was tossing about at the mercy of the waves some fifteen miles from land. The wind was so violent that he had to give over paddling, and with one hand to shade his face (the only part of his body exposed) from the cutting blast. Once his paddle was wrenched away by a heavy sea, but it fortunately came into his hand again. For several seconds a wave would completely submerge him, then he would shoot on to the crest and take breath before he was hurled down a sloping mass of water which seemed one hundred feet to the bottom. As a result of this tossing he became seasick, a thing, he says, which never happened to him before. His indomitable spirit, however, conquered everything, and about one o'clock the wind began to blow directly on shore. His paddle was plied vigorously, and at three o'clock on Wednesday morning he perceived he was near breakers, and the rock bound coast west of Skibbereen loomed up before him. His danger now was not less than it was during the height of the gale, for as a wave would raise him almost on a level with the cliff tops, he could discern nothing but a threatening wall of rock. He made his way along parallel to the coast, and fortunately lighted upon almost the only safe landing place for miles around. He saw an opening in the cliffs and propelled himself cautiously toward it. While hesitatingly examining the entrance a sea struck him, carrying him off; another and another followed in quick succession, and, in an almost senseless state, he was hurled high and dry upon the beach. It was then four o'clock in the morning, and he had been nearly seven hours on the water, traversing a distance of thirty miles. The apparatus had behaved admirably, and having divested himself of it he stood quite dry in his navy uniform, which he wore beneath. That having been done he let off one of his signal rockets without effect. It showed him, however, a narrow path in the rocks. Up this he clambered and got on to a mountain road, which brought him to the coast-guard station. He was hospitably received there, and discovered that the place he had landed at was Trefaska Bight, some miles east and south of Baltimore. During the morning he reached Skibbereen and posted the letters intrusted to him, and arrived in Cork on Wednesday night, where he was the hero of the hour. He intends to swim out of Queenstown Harbor some distance; that will be followed the week after by a little swim across the Straits of Dover to Calais, towed by a kite; and to cap all, on his original idea of jumping overboard at two hundred and fifty miles from land and swimming to New York or Long Island. After his achievements in the gale on Tuesday night these last-named experiments, startling as they seem at first, cannot be regarded as impossible.

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten.—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Oven Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

Smoked Halibut and Salmon.

An Experiment.

Wilkins Micawber Jones is of a statistical turn of mind. He can tell you precisely how many Smiths there are in the directory, how many Browns, Robinsons or Joneses. If you tell him the number of Smiths in a place of a given population he will tell you how many Browns ought to live there to maintain the average relative proportions of the two great families. It occurred to Jones recently that Mary is a very common name, and after careful study he hit upon an original plan for ascertaining the proportionate number of women bearing it. This plan was to station himself at an advantageous position on one of our thoroughfares, address by that name every woman who passed in an hour, and then compare the number who answered to the name with the whole number passing. Nothing could be simpler, thought Wilkins, and accordingly he began his experiment the other evening just as the theatre-going tide was flowing along the street. First came two demure-looking damsels, "timid and stepping fast." Jones let them get by and then called out suddenly "Mary!" but the young women only hurried a little faster, and the ingenuous Wilkins put down two marks on the right side of his tally paper. Just as he lifted his eyes he saw a lady with an escort just in front of him, and blurted out "Good evening, Mary!" Greatly to Jones' astonishment the gentleman, and not the lady, responded; and these are what Jones saw: [* * *]. He concluded to give up the experiment because there were too many risks about it—especially aste-risks.

A Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

—THE—

Art Journal of America,

ISSUED MONTHLY.

"A magnificent conception, magnificently carried out."

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a cover-one volume cannot duplicate the quantity, or the paper and engravings in any lower shape by number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there is the chromo, besides!

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in no narrow sense. True art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate only on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, while pacing before the eyes of the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign sources.

PREMIUM FOR 1875.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in oil colors, of the same noble dog whose picture in a former issue attracted so much attention.

"Man's Unselfish Friend"

Will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves such a dog, and the portrait is executed so true to the life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage tells us that his own Newfoundland dog (the finest in Brooklyn) barks at it! Although so natural, no one who sees this chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.

THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. To every series of 5000 subscribers, 100 different pieces, valued at over $2,500, are distributed as soon as the series is full, and the awards of each series as made, are to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.

TERMS.

One Subscription, entitling to THE ALDINE one year, the Chromo and the Art Union.

SIX DOLLARS PER ANNUM, IN ADVANCE.

(No charge for postage.)

Specimen copies of THE ALDINE, fifty cents.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates. Any one subscribing must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON, President.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man, more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

THOS. P. MOSES, thorough and tasteful Teacher of Music, from A in its alphabet to composition and arrangement, has concluded not to accept a recent call to go South again, but will retain his permanent location in the grand "Old Town by the Sea" where he was born,—and renews the offer of his services as above, with unabated zeal and love for this branch of human refinement. He is no novice or humbug to beg, borrow or buy bolsters to uphold him in an art he does not fully understand in every phase of its beauty; but would respectfully point to the best of references, WORKS, and ability to discover, develope and train inherent talent to accomplish splendid results. His pupils are shining in private and public, here and elsewhere. His many Musical Exhibitions—such as others seldom or never present to the public—have been and will still be his solid credentials, aside from fawning favoritism where true merit is too often absent. Terms, $12 for twelve weeks (twenty-four lessons) at his Music Room, or $15 at the pupil's residence, for Piano or Scientific Vocalization, separately or together. Mr. Moses will also Tune Pianos,—a business "familiar as household words" to him,—and solicits orders.

LAWS

OF THE

UNITED STATES

PASSED AT THE

FIRST SESSION OF THE FORTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 77.]

AN ACT to repeal so much of the act approved May eighth, eighteen hundred and seventy-two, entitled "An act making appropriations for the legislative, executive, and judicial expenses of the Government for the year ending June thirty, eighteen hundred and seventy-three, and for other purposes," as provides for the employment of persons to assist the proper officers of the Government in discovering and collecting moneys withheld and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That so much of the act entitled "An act making appropriations for the legislative, executive, and judicial expenses of the Government for the year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-three, and for other purposes," approved May eighth, eighteen hundred and seventy-two, as provides for the employment by the Secretary of the Treasury, of not more than three persons to assist the proper officers of the Government in discovering and collecting any money belonging to the United States when the same shall be withheld by any person or corporation, be, and the same is hereby, repealed; and the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby directed to revoke and annul all contracts for the collection of such taxes made under and by authority of said act.

SEC. 2 That the Court of Claims shall have no authority to consider or decide upon any claims for damages by reason of the discontinuance of the contracts aforesaid, or for any profits or percentages under them.

Approved, June 22, 1874.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 78.]

AN ACT to legalize entries of public lands under the homestead laws in certain cases.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That in all cases of entries of public lands heretofore made under the act entitled "An act to secure homesteads to actual settlers on the public domain," approved May twentieth, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, where the affidavit required by section two of said act was made before the clerk of the county of the residence of the person making the entry, without having first made the settlement and improvement required by the provisions of section three of the act entitled "An act amendatory of the homestead law, and for other purposes," approved March twenty-first, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, said affidavits be, and the same are hereby, legalized and confirmed, so as to have the same force and validity as if the provisions of said last-named act had been strictly complied with: Provided, That nothing in this act shall have the effect or be construed to impair the valid and paramount adverse rights of any person or corporation to any of such lands, except in so far as the right of Congress to protect the claims or rights of homestead settlers upon lands within the limits of grants of lands to any railroad company may have been reserved in the acts making such grants and be now lawfully existing.

Approved, June 22, 1874.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 79.]

AN ACT to amend an act entitled "an act to provide for the payment of horses and other property lost or destroyed in the military service of the United States," approved March third, eighteen hundred and forty-nine.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the first section of the act of March third, eighteen hundred and forty-nine, providing for the payment of horses and equipments lost by officers or enlisted men in the military service shall not be construed to deny payment to such officers or enlisted men for horses which may have been purchased by them in States in insurrection; and payment in any case shall not be refused where the loss resulted from any exigency or necessity of the military service, unless it was caused by the fault or negligence of such officers or enlisted men.

SEC. 2. That no claims under said section or this amendment thereto shall be considered unless presented prior to the first day of January, eighteen hundred and seventy-six.

Approved, June 22, 1874.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 80.]

AN ACT conferring jurisdiction upon the criminal court of the District of Columbia, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the criminal court of the District of Columbia shall have jurisdiction of all crimes and misdemeanors committed in said District, not lawfully triable in any other court, and which are required by law to be prosecuted by indictment or information.

SEC. 2. That the provisions of the thirty-third section of the judiciary act of seventeen hundred and eighty-nine shall apply to courts created by act of Congress in the District of Columbia.

Approved, June 22, 1874.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 81.]

AN ACT to amend the act entitled "An act to establish a western judicial district of North Carolina."

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That section eight of the act of June fourth, eighteen hundred and seventy-two entitled "An act to establish a western judicial district of North Carolina," be amended by adding thereto the following: "There shall also be appointed a marshal of the United States for said western district of North Carolina, who shall be entitled to a salary of two hundred dollars per annum; payment to be made quarterly out of the Treasury of the United States, and in addition thereto the fees of office allowed by law."

Approved, June 22, 1874.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 82.]

AN ACT to admit free of duty merchandise sunk for two years and afterward recovered.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That whenever any ship or vessel, laden with merchandise in whole or in part subject to duty, shall have been sunk in any river, harbor, bay, or waters subject to the jurisdiction of the United States and within its limits, and shall have remained so sunk for the period of not less than two years, and shall be abandoned by the owners thereof, any person or persons, who may raise any portion of the cargo of such ship or vessel, shall be permitted to bring the merchandise so recovered into the port nearest to the place where such ship or vessel was so sunk free from the payment of any duty thereupon, and without being obliged to enter the same at the custom house, under such rules and regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe.

Approved, June 22, 1874.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 83.]

AN ACT for the relief of savings institutions having no capital stock, and doing business solely for the benefit of depositors.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That no farther collection of internal revenue taxes shall be made on the earnings of savings banks or institutions for savings, having no capital stock and doing no other business than receiving deposits to be loaned or invested for the sole benefit of the parties making such deposits, without profit or compensation to the association or company, whether the earnings of the same have been or may hereafter be divided annually, semi-annually or at other periods.

Approved, June 22, 1874.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 84.]

AN ACT for the relief of settlers on railroad lands.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That in the adjustment of all railroad land grants, whether made directly to any railroad company or to any State for railroad purposes, if any of the lands granted be found in the possession of an actual settler whose entry or filing has been allowed under the pre-emption or homestead laws of the United States subsequent to the time at which, by the decision of the land-office, the right of said road was declared to have attached to such lands, the grantees, upon a proper relinquishment of the lands so entered or filed for, shall be entitled to select an equal quantity of other lands in lieu thereof from any of the public lands not mineral and within the limits of the grant not otherwise appropriated at the date of selection, to which they shall receive title the same as though originally granted. And any such entries or filings thus relieved from conflict may be perfected into complete title as if such lands had not been granted; Provided, That nothing herein contained shall in any manner be so construed as to enlarge or extend any grant to any such railroad or to extend to lands reserved in any land grant made for railroad purposes: And provided further, That this act shall not be construed so as in any manner to confirm or legalize any decision or ruling of the Interior Department under which lands have been certified to any railroad company when such lands have been entered by a pre-emption or homestead settler after the location of the line of the road and prior to the notice to the local land-office of the withdrawal of such lands from market.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 85.]

AN ACT relating to circuit courts of the United States for the district of Alabama.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That there shall be, and is hereby, established a circuit court of the United States for the middle district of Alabama, as said district is now constituted by law, to be held in the city of Montgomery, and a like court for the northern district of Alabama, as said district is now constituted by law, to be held in the city of Huntsville.

SEC. 2. That said circuit courts shall have and exercise, within their respective districts, the same original powers and jurisdiction as are or may be conferred by law upon the circuit court of the United States for the southern district of Alabama at Mobile, and shall have and exercise appellate and revisory jurisdiction over the decrees and judgments of the district courts of the United States for the said middle and northern districts, respectively, under the laws of the United States regulating the jurisdiction, powers, and practice of the circuit courts, and the judges thereof, in cases removed into said courts by appeal or writ of error; and said courts, and the judges thereof, shall have the general superintendence and jurisdiction over all cases and questions arising in said district courts, respectively, under the act approved March second, eighteen hundred and sixty-seven entitled "An act to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States" as is provided for in the second section of said act.

SEC. 3. That there shall be appointed for each of said circuit courts for said middle and northern districts, by the circuit judge of the circuit, a clerk who shall take the oath and give the bond required by law of clerks of circuit courts, and who shall discharge all the duties and be entitled to all the fees and emoluments prescribed by law for clerks of circuit courts; and the United States marshals for said middle and northern districts shall, respectively, act as marshals for said circuit courts, and the United States district attorney for said districts shall discharge the duties of district attorney in said circuit courts for said middle and northern districts.

SEC. 4. That the clerks of said district courts for said middle and northern districts shall transfer to the clerks of the said circuit courts respectively all the original dockets, records and files of papers in all common-laws and equity causes which might have been brought and would have been originally cognizable in a circuit court, and which were either disposed of or pending in said district courts while the same were vested with circuit-court powers.

SEC. 5. That the circuit court of the United States held at Mobile, Alabama, shall be designated and known as the circuit court of the United States for the southern district of Alabama; and its appellate and revisory power, upon appeal or writ of error, or by bill or petition, or otherwise, under the second section of said act, entitled, "An act to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States" is hereby restricted to judgments and decrees rendered or causes and questions arising in the district court of the United States for said southern district; and that the fourth section of the act approved March third, eighteen hundred and seventy-three, entitled, "An act relating to the circuit and district courts of the United States for the middle and northern districts of Alabama" be, and the same is hereby repealed.

SEC. 6. That terms of the circuit and district courts for the several districts of Alabama shall be held as follows: For the southern district, the terms of the circuit and district courts shall commence on the fourth Monday of December and the first Monday of June in each year; for the middle district, on the first Monday of May and the first Monday of November in each year; for the northern district, on the first Monday of April and the second Monday of October in each year.

SEC. 7. That the fifth section of the act approved February twenty-second, eighteen hundred and thirty-eight entitled, "An act to abolish the circuit court at Huntsville in the State of Albama and for other purposes" and the act approved August fourth, eighteen hundred and forty-two, entitled "An act to regulate appeals and writs of error from the district court of the United States for the northern district of Alabama" be and the same are hereby, repealed.

SEC. 8. That all laws and parts of laws, inconsistent with the provisions of this act, be and the same are hereby repealed.

Approved, June 22, 1874.

Not So Bad.

The Providence Journal closes an article on the recent elections with the following well-timed reminders:

The republican party has seen darker days than this. It was a darker day when McClellan, having failed in his great campaign, was fighting his way back to Washington. It was a darker day when the populace of New York, stimulated by Tammany and encouraged by the Governor of the State, rose in riot, against the laws for replenishing the exhausted ranks of the army, and imitated the excesses of the French revolution. It was a darker day when the democrats and southern sympathizers, all over the west, formed themselves into secret leagues, to betray their country, and to aid the enemy. It was a darker day when the democratic party, in national council, solemnly resolved that the war had been a failure, and that it was our duty to sue for peace, on such terms as the rebels might concede, and nominated for President the man who came near making the war a failure. But out of all this darkness light emerged. The republican party, standing upon its record, rallied around it, as it will rally again, the true-hearted patriotic masses of the people. The people of this country will not hand over the results of the war to the men who were vanquished in it, nor entrust the government to those who have endeavored to break it down.

A New York special says that nearly all transatlantic steamers have lost so much money, the past year, that a number are to be withdrawn. Two or three lines are intending soon to run steamers but once a fortnight. Some steamers have sunk money steadily for fifteen or sixteen months. It is estimated that all the lines have lost since September, last year, several millions of dollars. Several companies are nearly bankrupt. The carrying trade between here and Europe is greatly overdone, and cannot be prosperous until the rates are advanced and the number of vessels lessened.

There is a negro boy living in Newport, Va., who will drink kerosene oil by the quantity whenever he can get it. He craves it to such an extent that the family are compelled to hide not only the can which contains it, but even the lamps. He has been known to drink half a pint at a time. The effect of it is similar to mean whiskey; it produces a wild intoxication. When under the influence of it he will light matches and hold them within his mouth, talk idiotically, mimic men and beasts, and acts like a frantic baboon generally.

On hearing a report that John Morrissey wants to be Sergeant-at-Arms for the Forty-fourth Congress, the Washington Star is led to wickedly remark: "If John succeeds in buying the property on Capitol Hill, for which he is negotiating a purchase with the view to establish a club house, he will always know where to find the absentees when there is a call of the House."

Intense excitement exists in Allen county, Ind., on account of the abduction of three children of John Marlin, a few weeks ago, by two men and three women. The party was traced to Illinois, but have not been heard from since. The children were aged respectively 10, 13 and 15 years.

Tuesday was a good day for the Bagley family. Two of them were elected to Congress and one was chosen a State governor. One poor chap failed in business either because he was a republican or because he spelled his name Bagbey.

An officer sent from Fort McPherson, Nebraska, a few days ago, by General Ord to visit all sections of the grasshopper district, reports that he finds no cases of actual starvation, but much suffering, some of which were partially relieved from various sources. Relief must be given, or hundreds will starve before winter is half over. Within ten days many will be without a pound of corn or flour. The present aid that they are receiving is but a drop in a bucket, and unless the government aids them their alternative is fearful to contemplate.

Mr. Solomon Dunham, a veteran Vermont bear hunter, found two bears in his traps on Braintree mountain a few days since. One of these animals was one which attacked Mr. Dunham two or three weeks ago when he attempted to take the life of one of her cubs. On examining the old lady's mouth her front teeth were found to have been nearly all knocked out by Mr. Dunham's rifle in the former encounter. These make fifty-two bears which Mr. Dunham has killed in his lifetime.

The report of Hon. J. H. Ela, fifth auditor, contains many interesting figures. It appears that the cost of collecting the internal revenue for the past fiscal year has decreased $1,118,000, the entire cost being $4,193,876. The expense of the foreign missions has been $286,659; expense of the consular system, $570,621. The consular system has become self-sustaining, the fees received from consuls amounting to $775,200, and the amount of fees above the expenses of consuls, $144,580. The cost of the tribunal of arbitration was $31,408; United States and British claims commission, $224,837; Vienna Exposition, $29,151; northern boundary commission and survey, $123,266; United States and Spanish commission, $18,500; commission to the Texas frontier, $10,742; Mexican commission, $4248; interpreters to China and Japan, $24,284.

STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE.

Proclamation for a day of Thanksgiving and Praise, by the Governor.

Another revolution of the seasons brings us near to that hallowed Christian festival, which has long been observed in grateful recognition of the infinite goodness of Him who bringeth forth the fruits of the earth in their seasons.

That the custom, so appropriate and pleasing, may be continued, I hereby designate Thursday, the 26th instant, as a day of Thanksgiving and Praise; and I earnestly invite the people of this State to unite on that day, in the customary places of worship, to render thanks to Almighty God for the numerous manifestations of his kindness and care. And when gathered in the family circle, surrounded by the endearments of home, may we banish from our hearts all malice and uncharitableness, and direct our thoughts to a kind remembrance of the poor and suffering, resolving anew to shield the tempted, succor the needy and raise the down-fallen. And through the holy influence of such sentiments may we be better prepared to perform our duty to God and our fellow-men, to resist evil, conquer temptation and become more devoted to every Christian and patriotic duty.

[L. S.] Given at the Council Chamber in Concord, this third day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four, and of the Independence of the United States the ninety-ninth. JAMES A. WESTON.

By His Excellency the Governor, with advice of the Council.

STATE OF MAINE.

A Proclamation, by the Governor.

In accordance with a revered custom of our Fathers, and in compliance with the recommendation of the President of the United States, I do hereby, with the advice and consent of the Executive Council, appoint Thursday, the 26th of November, as a day of Public Thanksgiving and Praise; and I recommend that all the people of the State unite in such an observance of a day hallowed by tender memories, as will most appropriately render grateful acknowledgment to Almighty God for the blessings which he has vouchsafed us as a State and a nation.

Given at the Council Chamber, in Augusta, this thirtieth day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four, and of the Independence of the United States of America the ninety-ninth.

NELSON DINGLEY, JR.

By the Governor.

GEORGE G. STACY, Secretary of State.

Itemized Damages.

The most remarkable feature growing out of the Beecher scandal, which has yet come to light is the motion made by Beecher's counsel that Tilton shall be compelled to furnish a bill of particulars of the damages which he charges in his complaint. It would seem as if the original cause had been presented in sufficient detail for Mr. Beecher to understand every particular of it, and what every particular was worth. If he does not understand it, who can? He ought to be familiar enough with the subject to reduce every item of damage which he has occasioned down to the fraction of a cent. There has been no one so familiar in Mr. Tilton's family as he, and no one is so well acquainted with the manner in which it is charged that Mr. Tilton's home was broken up. He is an expert, and thoroughly competent to testify. If the matter were left out to public arbitration, the arbitrators would probably settle upon a bill of items somewhat as follows:

H. W. B. to T. T.	Dr.
For loss of home	$50,000
For loss of newspaper position	45,000
For loss of time	5,000
For general worry	1,500
For loss of membership in Plymouth Church	000
For loss of wife	000
For loss of Beecher	000
Total	$100,000

This, we take it, covers the details of Mr. Tilton's losses, which he presents in the aggregate at $100,000. It is, on the whole, a shrewd device on the part of Mr. Beecher's lawyers, for, if they can compel Mr. Tilton to present his bill in detail, they can offset it in detail and wipe out the whole sum as follows:

T. T. to H. W. B.	Dr.
For one ragged edge	$10,000
For one cave of gloom (large size)	10,000
For hypochondria	10,000
For humbling himself	10,000
For narrow escapes from death	10,000
For Tilton's being a better man	10,000
For Mrs. Hooker's intentions	10,000
For torments of the damned	10,000
For the Life of Christ being knocked higher, etc.	10,000
For services of Mutual Friend	10,000
Total	$100,000

Mr. Beecher has done many cool things, but this last request, which he has made through his counsel, that Tilton shall itemize all the injuries which he has inflicted upon him, and place a cash value, in dollars and cents, upon them severally, is the coolest of all.

In a legal point of view this proceeding shows that he has pettifoggers for counsel, but the demand itself is not so extraordinary as the impudence and effrontery which inspired it. If the court had granted the request which he made, Mr. Tilton need have presented but one item to fill the whole bill. Let him present his empty home to the jury, and then if he shows who emptied it he will have no need to add any more items; and then, as Mr. Beecher has a suit pending against Tilton, into which he has been forced by public opinion and the religious press, Mr. Tilton should demand that he itemize his damages also, that the world may know what expenses attended his housekeeping on the ragged edge and in his cave of gloom.

Courting Disease.

The individual may be said to court disease who exposes himself to the miasmatic influences which give rise to chills and fever and other malarious epidemics and endemics, without previously fortifying his system against their insidious attacks by the use of a protective medicinal agent. The bar last constitution is by no means proof against such maladies, much less one naturally weak or bilious, or the antagonistic power of which is lessened by an irregular habit of body. The inhabitants of the bottom lands of the South, of the new clearings of the West, of suburban districts where sunken lots exist, of every locality of the American continent, in fact, where malaria is epidemic or sporadic, declare that the only true antidote to the miasmatic virus that they have ever used is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. There seems to be something peculiarly resistant in this standard, preventive and remedy to all hurtful atmospheric influences.

THE GREAT MEDICAL SUCCESS OF THE AGE. Leading druggists who have been in the business for half a lifetime, state that they have never known a medicine to enlist the entire and universal confidence of the public, as rapidly as HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR. Although it has only been a few years in use, it has already taken precedence of all other medicines advertised as remedies for Coughs, Colds, and incipient Consumption, and its annual sales are without a parallel in the history of this class of preparations.

Well Indorsed.

The Gift Concerts in aid of the Kentucky Library are not at all speculative. The institution is chartered by the State of Kentucky. The first prize in the next drawing, which takes place November 30, is $250,000. It is a reliable institution, and some one will get that money. And that there may be no doubt as to the honesty of its management we cite the fact that the best banks in Louisville indorse it and that Governor Thomas E. Bramlette, of Louisville, is the general manager. An institution so fathered is certainly deserving of confidence.

Local Matters.

Laconics.

The democrats will celebrate the recent victories on Wednesday evening next. Congressmen elect Banks, Thompson and Tarbox and Governor elect Gaston of Massachusetts are expected to address them. There will be music, fireworks, a general illumination, a salute and a torch-light procession. That's right, boys; wake 'em up! The republicans have needed a counter-irritant these many years, and a little enthusiam on your side will lead them to extra exertions by which you will be whipped out of your boots in just 730 days.

Mr. Dudley C. Littlefield of Greenland recently shipped a lot of mammoth peaches to Boston. It required only one hundred and forty-four to measure a bushel.

York county will get enough out of liquor fines to pay the whole administration of the criminal laws of the county for the year.

The new Direct Cable Company has entered into a contract with the Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph Company, and will begin business on the 15th instant.

The Eastern Railroad claims that it carries more passengers than any other road out of Boston.

State News.

Extensive fires are raging in the woods near Durham, causing considerable damage to the lumber land. Large gangs of men are at work trying to subdue the flames. Large fires are reported in the woods at Effingham, which have destroyed several hundred acres of valuable wood land.

Burnham Wardwell is at Great Falls, entering the saloons, praying and pleading with the bar-tenders to abandon their business. He meets with little opposition.

An enormous revival of religion is reported from Nashua, the movement being under the lead of Rev. E. P. Hammond.

The Pittsfield paper says there is a man in Barnstead, who wouldn't sit under the preaching of a certain minister there because he raised chickens and early vegetables for sale.

The town of Rochester has produced about 4,400,000 bricks the present year at the several yards.

Henry C. McAllister of Colebrook fired into a flock of patridges and brought down four. In company with another party he shot eleven, all of which were stolen from his wagon while on his way home.

Parties who are buying fur say it is very scarce this fall, excepting muskrats.

The Winchester woolen mill, at Ashuelot, is to be closed for the winter.

The mills at Mill Village have stopped for want of water, the result of leaky dams and a wasteful use during the season.

Reports come from "Chemung" way in Meredith and Sanbornton that some wild animal is disturbing the peace of that community.

A son of Harlow B. Campbell of Henniker, aged nine years, was shot on Thursday near his father's house by some person unknown. The bullet entered his head just above the right ear and will probably prove fatal. It is supposed to have been accidentally done by some one hunting in the woods near by.

A wooden block on Elm street, near Central, in Manchester, owned by George H. Hubbard and Almer D. Goodwin, was partially destroyed by fire Friday evening. Loss about $1000. A defective chimney was the probable cause.

Two men supposed to be connected with the gang who robbed the Milford bank recently, boarded at the Milford House in that town all summer, and left on the night of the robbery, leaving a $100 unpaid board bill behind them.

Darmouth College grew out of a school established for the education of Indian children. It now has one Indian among its students.

A young son of Charles Eaton of Warner was fatally injured, by falling from a scaffold in a barn. Paralysis of the lower limbs and abdomen followed.

Writs were served on the Amherst town officers, on the 28th ult., by a Nashua sheriff, in favor of Henry M. Fairfield of Mont Vernon, who asks for damages to the amount of $10,000 for injuries claimed to be received while teaming sleepers, from a defective highway. The affair occurred last August, since which time Mr. Fairfield has been unable to walk, from injuries to his back, received in transporting, loading or unloading sleepers, and appearances indicate that he may be permanently disabled. Mr. Fairfield alleges that the injury was received by being jolted upon his wagon, by a rough and defective highway.

John Currier and Joseph Ruff, who recently placed obstructions on the Cheshire and Ashuelot Railroad, near Keene, have been sentenced to the State Prison for fifteen and two years respectively.

Margaret Murray, the operative at the Manchester Mills who was so terribly injured upon the head by the fall of a piece of shafting on the 21st ultimo, is still alive, and her recovery is considered probable. Her skull was so badly crushed that a portion of the brain escaped through the opening.

Letter From California.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 25.

Autumn has come with its golden horn of plenty; the earth has been beautiful in her gifts of fruits and cereals, the floral world has been arrayed in glorious magnificence,—all nature has revelled in lusciousness. The murky-hued clouds have gathered, and the vivid lightning (unusual with us) and beautiful showers usher in an early season of rain. Cheered and encouraged by the successes of the past season and the promise of the coming one, our people are infused with a bee-like activity, and cottages for the poor and palaces for the rich are going up cheerily, making the air vocal with the music of labor.

Our last Industrial Fair had a run of forty-one days, during which time 560,000 persons passed in at the doors. The new building cost $77,625.57; fitting up, $26,456.58; the running expenses of the Fair were $22,221.71,—total, $126,303.96. The total receipts were $83,482.76,—not a bad showing for a Fair without premiums.

Shipping affairs in San Francisco Bay were never more lively than at present. A fleet of twenty-six vessels is awaiting engagements. The amount of tonnage now loading or under engagement to load wheat is probably the greatest ever known in the history of this port, and embraces forty-six vessels, aggregating over 49,000 tons, with a carrying capacity of some 1,450,000 quintals of wheat. Besides these vessels, the "Star," of 1214 tons, the "Oberon," 1180 tons, the "Star of Scotia," 999 tons, and the "Twilight," 1303 tons, are full. By the time the present fleet shall have been all dispatched, a large part of our available surplus of grain will have been sent to market. Freights by charter are nominally £3 per ton for Liverpool, and £3 s2 d6 for Cork. The Grangers have prevented a corner in freights by employing Morgan & Sons' ships to carry their wheat, thus breaking the Friedlander ring,—hence ships are awaiting engagements.

The Grangers have organized wool and potato associations, for the protection of their interests in these articles; thus the percentage middle-men will be "corralled." The system of the Grangers is working well here, and ere long will be very popular with all classes of ranchmen; the order is increasing very rapidly, and the cry is still they come.

Our city government under the board of supervisors is just now undergoing a financial review of all its subordinates. First, the License Collector's clerks were found to have collected a great deal more money than ever found its way to the Treasurer's office. Next, the Poll Tax Deputies were detected in collecting taxes with forged receipts, and no feller can tell how much or how long they have been collecting for themselves; three of them are in jail and one has taken leg bail. The Coroner is undergoing a trial for stealing the effects of dead men. The Street Superintendent is now being examined, and all his deputies are shaking in their boots. We are in hope that after the offices have been cleansed, and garnished by new instatements, we shall glide along undisturbed in our prosperous career.

Money is plenty, and at lower rates than ever where security is guaranteed. A loan of a million has been made to the Palace Hotel Co. at 7 per cent., but the general average is at 8 and 9 per cent. for loans in the city, and 10 and 12 per cent. for loans in the country. The Grangers' Bank may have the effect to make loans to producers much lower.

The abundance of fruit this season has stimulated many to use Alden's process for drying fruit of all kinds, and thousands of tons of dried fruit will soon find its way to market. Fruits thus prepared retain all their original flavor, and yet are so much reduced in bulk that they can be sent to all parts of the world at a profit to the producer. Much has been done in raisins, but we hope in a few years to make an article equal if not superior to the Malaga in flavor. The enormous yield of the vineyards this year will stock the wine cellars to their greatest capacity, and the red and white wines will "age" and become a source of great wealth to the vine-growers.

Yours ever, J. E. W. C.

STOVES! STOVES!

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Oven Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

A Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

—THE—

Art Journal of America,

ISSUED MONTHLY.

"A magnificent conception, magnificently carried out."

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful lite ature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there is the chromo, besides!

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in no narrow sense. True art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate only on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign sources.

PREMIUM FOR 1875.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in oil colors, of the same noble dog whose picture in a former issue attracted so much attention.

"Man's Unselfish Friend"

Will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves such a dog, and the portrait is executed so true to the life that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage tells us that his own Newfoundland dog (the finest in Brooklyn) barks at it! Although so natural, no one who sees this chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.

THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. To every subscriber who subscribers, 100 different pieces, value in the aggregate $2,500, are distributed as soon as the series is full, and the awards of each series as made, are to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. Such only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.

TERMS.

One Subscription, entitling to THE ALDINE one year, the Chromo and the Art Union,

SIX DOLLARS PER ANNUM, IN ADVANCE.

(No charge for postage.)

Specimen copies of THE ALDINE, fifty cents.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates. The subscription price must be sent to the publisher direct, or handed to the local canvasser, who is responsible to the publishers, except in cases where the subscription is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON, President.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

Any person wishing to act permanently as a local canvasser will receive full and prompt information by applying to

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicines It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the cure of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation, by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs!

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.

JOHN TAGGART."

He is no novice or humbug to beg, borrow or buy bolsters to uphold him in an art he does not fully understand in every phase of its beauty; but would respectfully point to the best of references, WORKS, and ability to discover, develope and train inherent talent to accomplish splendid results. His pupils are shining in private and public, here and elsewhere. His many Musical Exhibitions—such as others seldom or never present to the public—have been and will still be his solid credentials, aside from fawning favoritism where true merit is too often absent. Terms, $12 for twelve weeks (twenty-four lessons) at his Music Room, or $15 at the pupil's residence, for Piano or Scientific Vocalization, separately or together. Mr. Moses will also Tune Pianos,—a business "familiar as household words" to him,—and solicits orders.

LAWS

OF THE

UNITED STATES

PASSED AT THE

FIRST SESSION OF THE FORTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 86.]

AN ACT to constitute Montgomery, in the State of Alabama, a port of delivery.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That Montgomery, in the State of Alabama, shall be, and is hereby, constituted a port of delivery, within the collection-district of Mobile; and there shall be appointed a deputy collector of customs, to reside at said port, who shall receive a salary, to be determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, not exceeding one thousand five hundred dollars per annum.

Approved, June 22, 1874.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 87.]

AN ACT to prevent hazing at the Naval Academy.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That in all cases when it shall come to the knowledge of the superintendent of the Naval Academy, at Annapolis, that any cadet-midshipman or cadet-engineer has been guilty of the offense commonly known as hazing, it shall be the duty of said superintendent to order a court-martial, composed of not less than three commissioned officers, who shall minutely examine into all the facts and circumstances of the case and make a finding thereon; and any cadet-midshipman or cadet-engineer found guilty of said offense by said court, shall, upon recommendation of said court be dismissed; and such finding, when approved by said superintendent, shall be final; and the cadet so dismissed from said Naval Academy shall be forever ineligible to re-appointment to said Naval Academy.

Approved, June 23, 1874.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 88.]

AN ACT to amend the act entitled "An act to reorganize the courts in the District of Columbia, and for other purposes," approved March 3, 1863.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the justice of the supreme court of the District of Columbia, holding a criminal term for said District, may, when not engaged in the proper business of the criminal term, hold sittings of the circuit court, and employ the petit juries drawn for the criminal term in the trial of such cases depending in said circuit court as the justice presiding therein may assign to him for that purpose; and the business done at such sittings shall be recorded in the minutes of the circuit court.

Approved, June 23, 1874.

A Dead Beat.

[Pittsburg Leader.]

While walking leisurely up Federal street last evening, a young man was noticed a little distance ahead, who stopped every one who passed. At first he was thought to be inquiring for something, probably a package which he might have lost while crossing the bridge. A nearer approach showed that he was dressed in the garb of a working man. The gloss on his coat and pantaloons showed that he had just come from a machine shop. In appearance he was the very pink of health, rather good looking, and well formed. However, in his eye there was an indication of meekness, and that air of independence which characterizes the industrious mechanic was wholly wanting. Still, it was evident that he had possessed it at one time, the traces of it being plainly visible in his countenance, as well as in his bearing. While wondering why a mechanic should be thus addressing every one who passed, he approached, saying:

"Couldn't you give a poor devil a little lift; I'm completely strapped."

With this it seemed that every semblance of manhood with which we had given him credit vanished as would a garb of smoke, and he stood before us a beggar; not a beggar from necessity, but from choice, having chosen to ask for pennies on the street rather than work for them.

Somewhat surprised we stopped, not knowing what reply to make or what to do. Seeing the fix we were in he took advantage of the opportunity to get in another plea. With a fawning servile air, and in whining voice said:

"Just give me five cents; I have five more, and it will make enough to get a drink. I'm awful dry."

"To get a drink?" we exclaimed, half horrified at the thought of a man in a well-worn mechanic's suit begging for drink. At the same time that dress, which is always respected, changed in appearance and the wolf beneath became visible.

"Oh, for God's sake," continued the pleader, "give a feller five cents. It will only take five more to get a drink. I have not had a drink since morn. Come, now, stranger, give me a nickle. I know you have got it."

Thinking this a good chance for an interview, we beckoned him to a seat on a store-box. The policeman on duty near by looked hard at us, as though he thought we were being taken in by the "slider." Nearly every one that passed stopped and gave us a look of surprise. Not relishing this very much we took him into a saloon. Nothing could have pleased him better. He led the way, and leaned over the bar in a hungry sort of a way. As we came in, he said:

"I'll take whiskey straight."

The poor fellow's mouth watered as he stood there looking at the decanters and glasses on the shelves beyond. The barkeeper turned around to see who his new customer was, a smile on his face and his mouth puckered up just ready to say: "What'll you take?" when he beheld our friend. His countenance changed instantly, and in a rough, hoarse voice he half yelled:

"Git out of here you lazy lout. Didn't I tell you I didn't want no sliders in here. Now, I'll not tell you to go again, but next time will chuck you out into the gutter. You a'n't got no money or a'n't had for six months. Now go."

"That's all right," we said, giving it that peculiar bar-room air as nearly as we could. We bade the "slider" walk back to the tables in the back room. This pleased him still more as visions of oysters and soup loomed up before him. Following very slowly he at length said:

"Ain't you going to have suthin' to take before eating? I'm awful dry."

We assured him again that "that's all right," he followed and took a seat at the table. Thinking that he would interview better before either eating or drinking, we told the waiter to wait. John, for that proved to be his front name, looked as though he would kiss the foot of a bar keeper, wallow in the dust of the floor, or do any thing low and servile just for a drink. In reply to our inquiry he said:

"I am a boiler-maker, and work sometimes in a machine shop. Why don't you set up the drinks?"

What are you begging around this way for?

"Because I didn't have no job, and am out of cash; and I'm awful dry."

Perhaps it's your dryness that makes business dull for you. How long has it been since you had a job?

"I was discharged the other day, and can't get another job."

Why can't you get a job?

"I don't know, but expect it is because I get on a spree once in a while. I'd give a whole day's work for a drink now."

Where do you board?

"Well, I have no place just now. I got my dinner at a free lunch place to-day, and slipped in on a glass of beer in the bargain. The fellow that ordered it paid for it, and never knew but he drank it himself."

Have you any friends in the city?

"If I have they keep mighty scarce, just now. Anybody that would set up the drinks would be a friend indeed."

How long do you stay in one place when you get a job?

"I haven't stayed more than a week in a place since I came here. You know how the boys are after pay day, too tired to work for a while. Then we would get discharged."

Are your parents living?

"I s'pect so. They were the last time I heard from 'em. The old man is a boiler maker in Cincinnati. He don't know where I am, nor I don't mean that he ever shall. But why the thunder don't you give us a drink?"

What are you going to do for a living?

"Indeed I don't know. I am awful poor and don't know what I shall do. There is nothing before me but starvation and death. I could go to the poor-house, but then there is nothing to drink there, and that wouldn't suit me."

Why don't you beg money for bread?

"Well, I can beg a bite to eat, but drink is cash the world over."

Then you are a regular slider, a genuine dead beat.

"That's what they call me, and because I'm poor, I cannot say a word. That's the way the rich people treat us poor folks. I would like to see them all burned out. They live off us and we can go to the devil."

Don't you know that it is your incessant drinking that keeps you poor?

"Yes, sir."

You will kill yourself if you keep on.

"Yes, sir."

Then why don't you quit it and go to work?

"I don't know, sir."

Would you take a job now and promise not to drink any more?

"I don't care about a job now; it's getting too cold."

What do you propose to do this winter?

"I don't know. Trust to luck and work as I need it. If you are going to give me a drink, why don't you do it?"

We don't drink, neither do we buy drink for anybody else. You can have oysters or whatever you want to eat, but nothing to drink, unless it is a glass of beer.

"Beer! the devil. That's too thin. Why didn't you say so before, and I wouldn't fooled with you so long. I might have had another nickel before this."

He jumped up from the table and left us in a most unceremonious manner. As he passed the bar his eye caught the glasses, and he stopped to look at them. He had scarcely halted when the bar-keeper ordered him to drive along or he would give him something to stop for. Taking this hint, he went out but was only gone a few minutes, when he returned his face radiant with joy. He flung two nickles on to the counter, and with the eagerness of a child waited until the glass was filled to the brim, with one gulp he turned it down, and in the most pleasant tones said:

"Just a little more, please."

"Git," said the bar-keeper.

As we passed out he was leaning against the side of the door, shivering with the cold.

What are we to do with such fellows? Can our crusader friends tell us?

—Cleveland Herald on election returns—"Another dam disaster in Massachusetts."

Daily Chronicle.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1874.

"Independent" Journalistic Folly.

The fruits of so-called "independent journalism" were never more fully shown than in the recent elections. Take Massachusetts, for instance: A few leading papers assumed to be excessively virtuous two years ago. They reviled caucuses and advocated independent action. Political battles are much like all other battles. It is comparatively easy for an energetic commander with an army inferior in numbers, to defeat a larger army, poorly generaled, taken in detail. Political battles should involve principles or they are hardly worth the fighting. To surrender before the battle is rank cowardice; to incite desertion before the passage of arms is the meanest of all treacheries. And yet this is just the policy adopted by the Springfield Republican and a few other papers we might name, whose conductors are so "high-toned" that they betray their friends lest they be unjust to their enemies. The democratic party never deserts its candidates, no matter how weak or wicked they may be. Its tenacity of purpose is the secret of its life.

Before going into a battle, how absurd it would seem for a Colonel to harangue his regiment with the expression of such sentiments as these: "Boys; our General chews tobacco, drinks whiskey and cheats at cards. He is a scoundrel. Let's go over to the other side and whip him and those who stand by him. If General Neckchoker were in command we would follow him, but we are too good to fight in a just cause under a leader who is not a total abstinent.' Wouldn't it be a justifiable act to shoot such a man as that on the spot and follow the army? The "independent journalists" have occupied just such a position as our "Colonel" suggests. Displeased with a republican leader here and there; filled with an overruling sense of their own importance; angry because they have not been called on that their wrath might be appeased—these would-be leaders of public sentiment have demoralized the republican army, disheartened its bravest troops and wrought ruin. The place for working needed reforms is at the caucuses, and not at the polls. The enemy will always concentrate its forces and fight in solid trim. Let all republicans who have faith in their principles profit by such tactics.

Let Well Enough Alone.

The surrender of the republicans of Massachusetts to the impracticables who are never satisfied unless they are working mischief, lost them the Governorship. The deliberate purchase of delegates to Congressional conventions lost more than one district. As there are none so blind as those who will not see, such lessons will have no effect on the same species of politicians in New Hampshire. Nothing being expected of them, it would be worse than useless to enter another campaign fearing their threats or caring for their misapplied energy. The following extract from a sensible editorial in the Claremont Eagle expresses the convictions of thousands of men whose temperance views are unquestioned and whose judgment is clear:

"As we have said in these columns before, the mistakes in New Hampshire in 1871 and 1873 cost us the State. Will we now be emphatic and tell the politicians they must give way to the voice of the people? And when we come, as we shall now very shortly, to assemble in convention, shall we place honest, capable and efficient men in the field as candidates for these various positions?

Another point. Though a majority of the people of New Hampshire and Massachusetts are temperance men, it is evident that sumptuary laws are opposed. James A. Weston was chosen Governor of the Granite State, owing to this and this alone. William Gaston becomes "His Excellency" of the old Bay State, from the same reason. Gov. Talbot, like Gen. McCutchins, was a conscientious, honorable man, and would worthily have adorned the position to which the republicans sought to elevate him, but his known views as regarded this question caused his defeat. Let us not be understood as desiring free rum, but as taking a practical common-sense view of the matter made necessary by the facts in the cases of the elections in our own State and in Massachusetts. The point is, the laws of each State were good enough; are we justified in risking the chances of democratic rule and the total repealing of these laws simply to gratify the ambition of such men as were placed in nomination—nominations which must ensure defeat?

We present these views to the consideration of the republicans of New Hampshire, in all sincerity, believing that we should thoroughly consider the matter before the next election in this State."

The Typhoon in China.

Additional advices from Macao and Hong Kong report the damage by the typhoon and tidal wave as more than confirming previous reports. It is estimated that a total of 20,000 lives was lost. At Macao the typhoon was of the most terrific character. The tidal wave broke on the shore with awful violence, sweeping everything before it. When the tempest was at its height fires broke out in six different places, maliciously caused by pirates for spoils. The church of St. Antonio and a large number of houses in the neighborhood were burned down. Many people lost everything and were rendered homeless. Macao was laid in ruins, and the misery thus entailed upon hundreds of its residents is fearful, while the loss of life is enormous. It is computed that over 10,000 lives were lost in Macao alone.

Four days after the storm the effluvia arising from thousands of decomposing bodies was so great that the soldiers revolted and refused to bury any more. The Governor fearing that the plague would follow if the bodies were not disposed of, ordered them burned. Four thousand bodies were cremated, the troops first covering the corpses with tar and then setting the heaps on fire. The loss of lives around and in the vicinity of Hong Kong will exceed 4000. A large number of Europeans were among the killed.

Readables.

The corrected returns in the fourth Mass., district give Frost 6726, and Abbott 6409. Frost's majority, 217.

What a margin to gain on the Congressional elections afford. Eh?

At Cape Elizabeth, a few days since, in removing a stone wall, a bag of gold coin was found. It is supposed it was placed there nine years ago by George Strout, whose father then owned and occupied the house. In 1865 young Strout came home from Cuba, and was known to have eight or ten hundred dollars, which he refused to account for to his father. Shortly afterward he left home to follow the sea, and was last heard from in South America five years ago. The money has been given to his father, who is quite aged.

The New York Republic predicts the most lively times in New Hampshire since the rebellion. You bet!

The transfer of the Chicago Tribune to Mr. Joseph Medill, replaces that paper upon the republican platform. Mr. Medill bought of Mr. Alfred Cowles and Mr. Horace White three-fifths of their interest in the Chicago Tribune property for the sum of $300,000. The stock of the Tribune Company is $200,000 at its par value, divided into 200 shares of $1000 each. Messrs. Cowles and White sold 60 shares for the above-named sum, being at the rate of $5000 per share, and they retain 41 shares. Mr. Medill now owns 106 shares, and will, of course, be the chief editor. Mr. Cowles will remain as heretofore the business manager, and we understand that Mr. White, after making a journey to Europe, will resume his connection with the paper as an editorial writer. During the nine years that Mr. White has been the chief editor of the Tribune its net profits have averaged $146,000 per year, from which it appears that although Mr. Medill has made this purchase on the basis of $1,000,000 for the whole establishment, he has a very good thing.

The New York Mail, while the voting was in progress in that city, quietly remarked: There is a retired "statesman" on Blackwell's Island who probably knows better how this city will vote than any other man.

The off year in politics is a favorite one with the democrats. The Cleveland Leader calls attention to the fact in 1862, right in the midst of the rebellion, the copperhead democracy carried Ohio, and elected all the Congressmen but five. The following year, however, the republicans carried the State by over 100,000 majority. So in New York, in 1862, Horatio Seymour was elected Governor, but the following year the republicans carried the State by an overwhelming majority. If we judge the future by the past, the reverses of the republicans are but temporary, and this we sincerely believe.

Washington gossip has it that the White House is whiter than ever by two fresh coats of paint, and that it is all ready for the reception of the bride and groom. Mrs. President Grant has given up her own room for the use of the young couple, and has taken one across the hall, which was Nellie's room during her girlhood. A handsome new carpet has been put down and the frescoing and paint touched up in the room which is to be Mrs. Fred's. Old Mr. Dent's room has been newly fitted up for Nellie, who will not be there before the end of January.

The Centennial year, 1876, will be celebrated by the triumphant restoration of the republican party to power.

A careful footing up of the figures shows that the democratic victories in Indiana and Ohio are not the result of an increase of democratic votes, but a falling off of republican. The republican vote in Indiana this year was 23,321 less than it was in 1872, while the democratic vote is only 7,371 less than that cast for Gov. Hendricks. In Ohio, where the democrats have a majority of some 16,000, over 80,000 voters neglected to vote. It was the indifference of republicans, and not the increase of democracy, that turned the tables.

The Mormon press greatly rejoices over the recent democratic successes.

In 1864, Mr. Gaston, the democratic Governor-elect of Massachusetts, with a Rev. Mr. Potter, visited Denver, Col., and invested $4000 in real estate. On the 23d of last June, $4500 had been realized on sales and $2000 on grain to the Baptist church out of the property purchased. Since that time the balance has been sold, realizing the handsome sum of $169,300.

The second election in the Poland district, in Vermont, gives Denison, 8280; Poland, 4111, and McLane, (dem.) 1535. Denison's plurality over Poland is 4169.

The Chicago Tribune says that the changes in Congress may be somewhat roughly indicated as follows:

Members of present House	292
Willing to be re-elected	225
Beaten in convention	68
Beaten by the people	52
Re-elected	105
Elections to be held	17
New members	170

Letter from Washington.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 6.

There is a saying that revolutions never go backwards. Has the political tornado which has just swept over the country any of the elements of a revolution? There has been no policy advanced on either side which to any extent has drawn or driven off voters. Democrats and republicans are for inflation, and democrats and republicans against it. There are protective-tariff democrats and republicans, and revenue-tariff advocates on both sides. The republicans of Congress were with the people on the transportation question and the democrats were with the corporations. There are no continuing reasons that have caused the changes. It has been the result of a hundred causes. The democracy has had the benefit from the panic, from disappointed ambitions, and the general cussedness of rum in politics. Here are reasons enough for political change, but they furnish no reasons for making that change permanent.

It is curious to note some of the alleged causes of the change. In Massachusetts Butler is said to be defeated from his support of salary grab, but Banks is elected, who was a chief of grabbers! Banks is a study in himself alone. Lifted to the Governorship by knownothingism, failing in the West as a railroad man, with a standing in the army that would have broken down anybody else, notoriously neglectful of his duties as a member of the House and notoriously inattentive to his constituents, intemperate, wasteful and extravagant,—whose financial career is strewn with inflated broken promises, and whose votes are always for the biggest appropriations and the biggest jobs;—and yet he is elected by the votes of foreigners, howlers against broken financial promises, reformers and economists.

The time had come for a change; that is all there is about it. The old issues are to give way to new ones. Neither party will remain as it has been. Whichever one is able to offer the best measure for the future will take political control of the future. The history of 1824 may be again repeated, when the election of President is made by combinations that fail when brought to the test of governing.

The pioneer Yankee industry at the capital is the Terra Cotta Works, located on the Metropolitan Railroad, four miles from the Washington depot, for the manufacture of sewer pipe, fire brick and stone ware. The enterprise was originated by Hon. John Lynch of Portland, and his son is on the premises as superintendent, with a force of twenty-five or thirty down-east Yankee workmen from Portland, who have just burnt their first kiln of sewer pipe, which is of the very best quality. When the Works get fully started they will give employment to seventy-five or eighty men. New Jersey has heretofore had a monopoly of the clay for this branch of manufacture, and the Portland Company, of which this seems an offshoot, has to ship its clay from New Jersey to Portland. Close by the Washington works is clay of the best quality in great abundance, and the coal is brought from the mines, by rail, to the furnaces, without transhipment. About a hundred thousand dollars have been expended in land, buildings, fixtures and machinery, and everything about the Works seems adapted to give the best possible results.

The weather has been pleasant almost beyond precedent, and one is tempted off the pavements by the fine scenery and the magnificent and variegated hues of the forest, which rival those of the New England hillsides in October. EXE.

How It Will Be.

[Washington Republican.]

In the next House of Representatives, on Mondays, under suspension of the rules, resolutions will be offered by the New York Democracy for "free trade, hard money and home rule," by the Ohio democracy for "an immediate increase of greenback currency;" by the New England democracy for "an immediate resumption of metallic currency," and by the Michigan democracy for "the repeal of the legal-tender act, to take effect no later than July 4, 1876, and a specie basis and free banks with secured currency." On such occasions cynical republicans will quote from the address of Gen. Ewing, at Columbus, Ohio, the declaration that "the true remedy is to moderately increase the greenback currency at once, and let further increase follow; from Pendleton, that "you send these notes out into the world stamped with irredeemability; you put on them the mark of Cain, and like Cain, they will go forth as vagabonds and fugitives on the earth," and from Dan Voorhees, that "greenback currency is the best the world has ever seen." Then there will be lively times, and the financial condition of the country will be settled—oh, so very quietly, calmly and lucidly settled—so that the commercial interests will not suffer.

A Noble Appeal.

Senator Gordon concluded a speech at Atlanta by an appeal for continued prudence and forbearance, which were the Christianity of all politics. He said: One boon I ask in this hour of your deliverance: I ask you to commission me, in your name, to pledge upon the floor of the Senate your fidelity to the Union under the Constitution; your acquiescence in laws passed in accordance with the Constitution, good and bad, until lawfully repealed; your support of all rightful authority; your cordial friendship for every man and men of all sections who will aid in restoring peace to the sections, justice to the States, liberty to citizens, purity to all departments of the governments, and the constitution to its supremacy over presidents, Congress, parties and the people. [Loud cheers.] I thank you, my countrymen, for that response; you are as temperate in triumph as you were great in adversity.

PULMOCINE.

Readables.

Prison architecture has reached the acme of perfection at Due West, South Carolina. They have a building there in which windows and doors are entirely dispensed with. The prisoners are hoisted outside by means of a rope and dropped in from the top. Once in, it is evident that they must stay in a place so wonderfully deficient in egressive facilities. A captive may have kind friends outside willing to aid him, but what friend can secretly bring a derrick and rope into the prison; and if he could, how or by whom is it to be worked?

A machinist at Charlestown, Mass., while walking in his sleep, fell down stairs and broke his neck.

The Worcester Spy suggests that every one knows that it is the chief business of "independent journalism" to assail the republican party and play into the hands of the democratic party.

In the famous divorce suit of Emma G. Call, libellant, vs. Dr. Moses Call, in which a divorce was decreed eighteen months ago, Judge Dickerson, at Portland, has awarded to Mrs. Call $14,450. This amount includes the support of a minor child, the custody of whom was given to Mrs. Call.

Courting Disease.

The individual may be said to court disease who exposes himself to the miasmatic influences which give rise to chills and fever and other malarious epidemics and endemics, without previously fortifying his system against their insidious attacks by the use of a protective medicinal agent. The hardiest constitution is by no means proof against such maladies, much less one naturally weak or bilious, or the antagonistic power of which is lessened by an irregular habit of body. The inhabitants of the bottom lands of the South, of the new clearings of the West, of suburban districts where sunken lots exist, of every locality of the American continent, in fact, where malaria is epidemic or sporadic, declare that the only true antidote to the miasmatic virus that they have ever used is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. There seems to be something peculiarly resistant in this standard, preventive and remedy to all hurtful atmospheric influences.

THE GREAT MEDICAL SUCCESS OF THE AGE. Leading druggists who have been in the business for half a lifetime, state that they have never known a medicine to enlist the entire and universal confidence of the public, as rapidly as HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR. Although it has only been a few years in use, it has already taken precedence of all other medicines advertised as remedies for Coughs, Colds, and incipient Consumption, and its annual sales are without a parallel in the history of this class of preparations.

Sunday Schools.

At the Union Sunday School Convention at Manchester, Friday, Rev. James DeNormandie of this city spoke upon the difficulty of procuring gentlemen to take charge of classes in the Sunday school. He began by saying that, in his opinion, a good deal that is said about the Sunday school being the nursery of the church is exaggerated. The church had lived and thrived 1800 years without the school, and would live and prosper 1800 more without it. But the strong point of the Sabbath school is the relief it gives to children from the solemnity of the sanctuary, and it was for this purpose that it was originally organized. Customs have changed much. The tendency is less toward devotional exercises on the Sabbath. Men are drawn away by the beautiful weather, fine scenery, good drives and other enticements.

Our Sunday schools are generally carried on by ladies. They do it very well, but not as well as if helped by gentlemen. Even the gentlemen we do get to take charge of classes are not such as command respect; and are not only good, but goodish. The old notion that religion belongs to women, children and ministers is too prevalent now. Then man say they need the Sabbath for rest; they doubt their ability to teach; they are not learned in the Bible, and so on.

It is hard to be a good teacher. So it is hard to be a good anything; but that is no reason why a man should turn back. When we consider the great number of entertaining helps, commentaries and books of travel which are so easily obtained, there is no need of despairing, not only of finding the truth, but of touching bottom.

The remainder of the address, which the Mirror says was finely written and as finely delivered, was a glowing appeal to the young men to come up and take their right place in the Sunday School. At the close it was warmly applauded.

Laconics.

The beauties of democratic rule are becoming more evident day by day, as the palmy days of democracy return. This city becomes noisier each succeeding week and drunkenness is on the increase. On Sunday, a gentleman who took the trouble to investigate during church hours found twenty-six bar-rooms with the front doors wide open, and did not think it worth his trouble to enumerate the number where entrance was made through the back doors. Such a state of affairs never existed under any republican municipal administration, and probably accounts for the howling and fighting on Market street, Sunday evening.

The "hourly" run by Mr. William Plaisted needs more liberal patronage. The proprietor has placed on the route a covered team in which passengers may ride unexposed to wind and weather. A dozen windows afford sufficient light. Mr. Plaisted is really accommodating the public to a great extent and hopes that pedestrians will try his "hourly" now that cold weather, rain and snow are coming.

When the winter arrangement on the Eastern Railroad goes into effect, it is thought that the night train for Bangor, now leaving at 6:20, will leave at midnight. The proposed change meets with great favor, as it will form a connection with the New York evening train, so that passengers leaving New York in the afternoon will be in Portland at four o'clock the next morning. The train will of course connect at Portland with morning trains in all directions.

Mr. Christopher E. Rymes, a Son of Portsmouth resident in Somerville, Mass., has been elected to the Massachusetts senate by 228 majority. He is a scion of one of our "old families" and a credit to his native city in all but his politics, which are genuine copperhead and of the very worst kind at that.

Letters from an officer on board the United States steamer Benecia, at Honolulu, dated 13th ult., says that the sailing of that ship has been postponed, at the request of King Kalakank, until November 17th, and that she would probably arrive at San Francisco about the first of December. To make the voyage in that time it will be necessary to steam the whole distance. Paymaster Edwin Putnam is attached to the Benecia.

The sale of plants at the present low prices at Mr. Goodall's green-houses will continue one week longer.

The Eastern Railroad Company has purchased a tract of land in Charlestown, comprising eight or nine acres, for a freight yard. The design is to occupy the centre of this newly-acquired territory with an immense freight-house, which shall be over 1500 feet in length, with openings for receiving and delivering freight upon both sides. It faces on Front street, and is to be extended the whole length of the territory, making a continuous and connected series of sheds from the State prison nearly to the Waverly House. There is room for sixty or seventy cars to be unloaded at the same time. The company is now receiving on an average two hundred car-loads of freight per day. Between Somerville and the long freight house a new bridge 1000 feet long has been constructed, with double tracks, so connected with switches as to give room to do all the necessary shifting of cars. These improvements are by no means intended to supercede the freight facilities at East Boston. The company still holds its tide-water facilities there. The whole cost of the improvements will be in the vicinity of $800,000, and it is expected that in the course of forty days the work will be entirely completed.

Schooner Celia, Capt. Allen, ran ashore near the narrows while coming up the harbor, Saturday night. She came off at high water, leaking badly, and will be obliged to go on the marine railway at Kittery for repairs.

One of the best lectures of the lyceum course will be delivered this evening by Rev. Warren H. Cudworth. Subject: "Up Hill." Evening tickets twenty-five cents.

State News.

The Franklin Journal says Alexis Proctor's faithful old horse was very hardly treated by some thoughtless boys, recently. They put a fierce dog, of which animal he has a great terror, after him where he was feeding in the orchard, making him plunge furiously over a huge pile of wood a dozen times or more till he drove the end of a stake up into the inside of his thigh full eight inches, and broke it off with the lower end two or three inches inside of the flesh. Mr. Proctor found him lying in the lot at night in a pitiful condition. C. E. F. Davis drew the stick out in fragments from the wound with great exertion, using pincers, the good old horse standing and holding the limb as patiently as a human being. The terrible wound is doing well.

The Grand Jury at the present term of the Circuit Court, at Lancaster, reported forty-two indictments, thirty-two of which are for selling liquor, four for larceny, two for adultery, one for running a lottery, one for assault, one for aiding a prisoner to escape and one for a defective highway. The respondents in three of the criminal cases, already arraigned, pleaded guilty and were sentenced as follows: C. C. Fuller of Stratford, running a lottery, $75 and costs: Charles M. Priest of Columbia, larceny, one year in State Prison; Goodnow of Whitefield, larceny, two years in State Prison or Reform School. A large majority of the cases on the civil docket are being referred, and the prospect is that the term will be unusually short.

All in all it is one of the most singular freaks that nature ever indulged in in this vicinity.

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Oven Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

PULMOCINE CORDIAL,

Portsmouth Chronicle.

He Didn't Become Butter.

A short time since a farmer's wife, residing in Berks County, was engaged on the greensward in front of the house in churning butter. The female is one of those spruce, tidy housewives of which Berks County is so proverbial, and invariably takes special pains to turn out prime better and bread. Now, the woman in question opened the lid of the churn to see what progress she had made, and having business in the house neglected to replace it. A small dog belonging to the family—one of that breed of poodles good for nothing else but to lie in the sun and wag their narratives—came along at a dog trot, having no doubt sniffed a feast from afar. Ponto halted when in front of the churn, and with a bound landed on its top. Scanning the surroundings, and finding the coast clear, the brute inserted his head into the open vessel, and was soon engaged in satiating his appetite on its rich contents. Horror upon horror! elongating his neck deep into the churn in search of better curds, the dog fell through the opening into the vessel. Just at this moment the woman returned, and hurriedly replacing the lid, made things lively for a while. After manipulating the crank for fifteen minutes she took a peep inside, and supposing the dog to be a lump of butter, inserted her hand for the purpose of removing it, whereupon the animal squirmed around, and the woman, who is a firm believer in signs and tokens, quickly withdrew her hand and left the spot at the top of her speed, in search of her husband, who was at work in the barn. The man, upon reaching the green and making an examination, turned to the partner of his "joys and sorrows" and said, "Mine Got, Betz, sis forhoftich unss clay handle, Ponto." The poodle was brought forth, the contents of the churn emptied, and things assumed their regular channel again.

A Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

—THE—

Art Journal of America,

ISSUED MONTHLY.

"A magnificent conception, magnificently carried out."

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful life artwork, and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there is the chromo, besides!

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in no narrow sense. True art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate only on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign sources.

PREMIUM FOR 1875.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait in 20 colors, of the same noble dog whose picture, in a former issue attracted so much attention.

"Man's Unselfish Friend"

Will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves such a dog, and the portrait is executed so true to the life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage tells us that his own Newfoundland dog (the finest in Brooklyn) barks at it! Although so natural, no one who sees this chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.

THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. To every series of 5000 subscribers, 100 different pieces, valued at over $2,500, are distributed as soon as the series is full, and the awards of each series as made, are to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.

TERMS.

One Subscription, entitling to THE ALDINE one year, the Chromo and the Art Union,

SIX DOLLARS PER ANNUM, IN ADVANCE.

(No charge for postage.)

Specimen copies of THE ALDINE, fifty cents.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates, each for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON, President.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

—USE

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases, the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, Inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the choice of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs!

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, I continue to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

He is no novice or humbug to beg, borrow or buy bolsters to uphold him in an art he does not fully understand in every phase of its beauty; but would respectfully point to the best of references, WORKS, and ability to discover, develope and train inherent talent to accomplish splendid results. His pupils are shining in private and public, here and elsewhere. His many Musical Exhibitions—such as others seldom or never present to the public—have been and will still be his solid credentials, aside from fawning invoritism where true merit is too often absent. Terms, $12 for twelve weeks (twenty-four lessons) at his Music Room, or $15 at the pupil's residence, for Piano or Scientific Vocalization, separately or together. Mr. Moses will also Tune Pianos,—a business "familiar as household words" to him,—and solicits orders.

OF THE
British Periodicals.
The political ferment among the European nations, the strife between Church and State, the discussion of Science in its relation to Theology, and the constant publication of new works on these and kindred topics, will give unusual interest to the leading foreign Reviews during 1875. Nowhere else can the inquiring reader find in a condensed form the facts and arguments necessary to guide him to a correct conclusion.

The Troubles of Wau Lee.

[Cleveland Leader.]

Mr. William Lee, of the Ontario street laundry, has not left Cleveland, although he has not appeared of late in the newspapers. The fact is that Mr. Lee has devoted himself strictly to business during the last six or seven months, and has thereby amassed a small amount of cash, which is destined to be expended in carrying him again to his native land over the salt, salt sea. But before leaving it, it is simply an act of justice to state that Mr. Lee has attempted faithfully to submit to the heathenism of this benighted country, and if he does not carry away a fair impress of hospitality or feeling of love to Brother Jonathan, the fault has not been his, but that of the angular brother on whose bosom he attempted to lean. But it will be simply an act of justice to friend Wau to allow him to explain his own feelings, as he did on Saturday last in conversing with a Leader reporter. He unburdened himself as follows:

"Me no likee dam Melican man. Melican man comee in my laundry, spittee on floor, chew, chew. Bringee shirtee, say, 'Thust, Wau Lee?' Wau Lee say, 'No thust, thust dead.' Melican man say, 'Hat eater, I punchee.' Punchee Wau Lee's head, pull his pig tail. Wau Lee runs chop-chop head to fleece officer. Fleece officer say, 'Cheap John—one, two, three—bounceee.' Shakee me pig tail and say 'Climb.' Wau Lee climbs—comee homee. Melican man steal shirt and he climb too."

Wau Lee attempted to go to Sunday school, and his story is as follows:

"Me go on Sundiay day to Joss house. Me take settee and Melican man's boyee comee along. Boyee say, 'Here's China.' More boyee comee. Pull pig tail and say, 'Bully for Chineeman.' Me get mad and swear. Pleece officer comee long, takee me to station. Payee fives dollee and sixty cents; go homee to wash. Say, 'Dam Melican country.'

"Me then go on street car. Melican woman looks at me and laughee loud. One speakee low, 'him nig.' One speakee low, too, and say, 'Him rat eater.' Me gettee mad and say, 'Me Chinaman—me washee-washee. Me no nig. No nig. Me no rat eater. Big lie.' Melican woman scream. Conductor run in. Him say, 'Who's up?' Melican woman say, 'Dirty China 'sulted me.' Conductor he takee my stampees, and he say, 'Get.' Wau Lee gets, fall on the ground, and breakee nose; officer comee up. He says, 'Dlunk again Culneel.' Me say, 'No dlunk.' He say, 'Too thin.' Takee me by collar and takee me to station. Judge say, 'Here again, Chinee?' Me go out, pay ten dollee and fifty cents. Me go homee madee—red hot madee, swear, bleak dishes, shave off pig tail, buy plug hat, shut up laundry and go back to China."

And this was Wau Lee's first determination, but since then he has reconsidered it, gone back to his trade, and still washes and irons as of old.

—A Chicago vagrant was about to be condemned to imprisonment for that he had no "visible means of support." "Wisible?" cried the astonished defendant, as he pulled from his pocket a section of mouldy sausage and a hard old crust of bread; "Wisible, Judge! ain't them wisible?"

—Johnny has been reading the Autocrat and spoiled his sister's devotions, Sunday morning, by asking, just before she started for church: "Sis, you heard about the race?" "What race?" inquired Sis. "Nat Banks after Gooch round the brim of your hat," said Johnny. He cried so about the whipping that he got that he had to stay at home and roast chestnuts.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1874.

Readables.

A shocking accident occurred to a four-year-old daughter of William Carney at East Hampden, Me. She, with a number of young companions, was playing near a large wagon, when one of the number removed the stone placed under the wheels as check, and the team rolled back upon the unfortunate girl, crushing her to the ground. Her playmates had not sufficient strength to remove the wagon, and in this position the child remained, in the most intense agony, till help arrived. She died only a few moments after being released.

The famine in Asia Minor continues.

Two years ago Mr. Hoar's majority was 7809; General Butler's was 6076. Mr. Hoar's now is 413. It is easy, therefore, to see that Mr. Hoar's loss in his district is far greater than that of General Butler in his, and that, only for Mr. Hoar's having had a greater majority from which to lose, he would now be in the same box with General Butler. It strikes us that the less Mr. Hoar's editorial friends have to say about General Butler's rebuke by his constituents the better.

The only evidence of perturbation which the President gave when a messenger rushed in with the news that Massachusetts had gone democratic was to remove the cigar from his mouth and rest the lighted end of it on the back of General Babcock's hand. Babcock's perturbation was much more pronounced.

Full returns from all the towns in Massachusetts show that William Gaston received 95,901 votes for Governor, Thomas Talbot 89,243 and Israel Andrews 131, giving a plurality of 6658 to Gaston, and a majority of 6527.

The annual report of Third Assistant Postmaster-General Barber estimates that the proportion of washed stamps, used again in payment of postage, is five per cent. of the value of all the stamps sold each year, causing an annual loss of one million dollars to the revenue of the department.

State News.

The examination of Buzzell, the supposed murderer of Miss Hanson of Brookfield, resulted in his being held for trial.

As Abraham Darling of Campton was returning home on Thursday night he was attacked by some would be highwaymen, but as he was minus cash they, it is presumed, were satisfied with giving him a severe pounding, which they did in a very complete manner, his head and face being smashed and bruised so badly as to make him almost unrecognizable. No arrests have yet been made, although suspicion is directed to one Nash Elliott of Campton as the perpetrator.

A company has been organized at Littleton for the purpose of working the gold mine discovered in that town.

At a late meeting of the grand division of Sons of Temperance of New Hampshire, it was almost unanimously resolved to discountenance any third temperance party hereafter, and unite with the republicans in redeeming the State from a party which in New Hampshire is not only nearly unitedly in favor of license, but does all it can to prevent any enforcement of prohibition.

Clarence E. Couch, a youth fifteen years of age, made a murderous assault upon another boy, Charles L. Roberts, at Couchville, Salisbury, on Sunday. The injured boy died shortly afterward. Couch will probably be fully committed for manslaughter.

Widow Harriet Barrett of Marlow hung herself on Sunday morning with a skein of yarn. She was highly respected and leaves two young daughters. Hypochondria was the cause of the act.

On Monday evening, fire was discovered in the rear of the wholesale and retail grocery and dry goods store belonging to J. M. Chandler & Co., at Manchester. The fire raged fiercely for some time, owing to the peculiar construction of the back premises, which prevented the firemen getting directly to work on the fire itself. The loss will probably reach $15,000; insured in the Hartford of Connecticut, Home of New York and Ætna of Hartford for $1250. The building was fully insured in Boston companies. The Waverly House, kept by Ira Moore, was damaged considerably in the rear by the fire and in the front by water. His loss will reach about $1500; insured to full amount.

Col. T. G. Banks and wife, of Nashua, celebrated their golden wedding, the City Hall being filled on the occasion. They received presents to the value of over $1000, and the Nashua papers are much enthused over the affair.

—A gentleman was describing to Douglas Jerrold the story of his courtship and marriage—how his wife had been brought up in a convent, and was on the point of taking the veil when his presence burst on her enraptured sight, and she accepted him as her husband. Jerrold listened to the end of the story, and then quietly remarked: "She simply thought you better than nun."

—When the yellow corn sighs to be husked and the golden pumpkins yearn to be gathered, it is no time for a country paper to stop and argue whether Edna Dean Proctor is nineteen or ninety.

—It is discovered that private coachmen in London are in the habit of surreptitiously administering chloral to spirited horses in their charge, to render them easily manageable.

Solemnity in Newspapers.

[N. Y. Cor. Pittsburg Leader.]

The New York papers have more dignity to maintain than their western cotemporaries, so the solemn element is cultivated upon the principle that Tom Corwin advocated in giving a young man about to start out in life, the secret of success. "Be a solemn ass, my boy," said Corwin, and there is every indication that some of the young men now in control of the New York press received in early life similar advice, and have acted upon it. You rarely find in any of the New York papers the weapon of playful satire used in combat, and yet there are times when no more powerful weapon could be used. They either deal in savage irony or more ponderous invectives. They attempt satire at times, but it always becomes too bitter, and so loses its character. All of the morning papers, with the exception of the erratic Herald, are very solemn and heavy in their comments upon the issues of the day. The Times is an especially solemn newspaper. In the long days of a weary year never does a shade of humor lighten the news or editorial columns of the Times. It is conducted upon the principles of the Knapp Brothers, who publish the St. Louis Republican, one of the wealthiest papers in the West. The Knapps have a standing order which Hyde, the managing editor, has to enforce, and that is to discharge any man from the paper who should willfully attempt to perpetrate a joke in it. The Knapps had a serious community to deal with, a community that would not be trifled with. One of the many Knapps had a boy named after George Washington's tomb by his solemn father. Indeed the boy was often called by his irreverent associates Mont Vernon. You can fancy what a boy had to endure, going around labeled as the tomb of the father of his country. The boy was not very strong in the regions abaft the eyes, but because his pa published a newspaper, he thought the son of his pa ought to be able to write for it. One morning, about one o'clock, several years ago, he came into the office after Hyde, the manager, had gone home. The young man had been out to a seance of the Black Crook, and had been very busy ever since the close of the performance eating oysters with a large party of jovial friends. Now this young Vernon had never been permitted to write for the paper, but among his friends he gave out the impression that he did a good deal of that sort of business. That night one mad wag, inspired by the devil, got Vernon to write a criticism for the paper of the Black Crook performance.

The young man caught at the idea, and going to the office he found Hyde away and the coast clear. Being the son of his father, there was no one there to dispute him, and as for the foreman he was one of those steady going machines who would have set up the devil and all his angels if they had come up in the regular spout from the editorial rooms. The next day there appeared in the columns of the Republican one of the most fearful articles on legs that I think ever appeared in print. Mont Vernon had expanded under the influence of oysters and his friends. The result was frightful. For a few days the reason of Knapp pere tottered upon its throne, but he finally recovered. The article in question made more excitement in the city and discomposed the office more than had it been burned down. The young man was sent abroad after this scandal, and now a watchman inspector is detailed in the editorial rooms, who, with his relief, is always on duty.

A Slippery Story.

[Albany Journal.]

We heard a laughable story on Wednesday in regard to a confiding democrat, an honest, simple-minded laborer. He attended a number of political meetings during the campaign just closed, and swallowed, with unquestioning faith, all that the democratic orators told him as to the intimate relation existing between hard times and republican rule, and, of course, drew the inference that the election of Mr. Tilden meant times just the opposition of hard. On Wednesday morning he got him an Argus long before breakfast, and having mastered its election news he seized a plate handed him by his esteemed helpmate, and, in accordance with her request, hied him to a neighboring grocery store and requested to be served with a couple of pounds of their best butter. The energetic and urbane clerk in attendance lost no time in weighing that much of the best butter and placing it upon the proffered plate. Then, while he was in the act of laying a delicate sheet of white paper on the top of the butter to protect it from dust on its way to its destination, the purchaser asked what there was to pay. The energetic and urbane young clerk, who was quick at figures, replied:

"Two pounds at forty-eight cents a pound—ninety-six cents."

At these words the face of the customer, which up to this point had been wreathed with the smiles which the election news had invoked, became overspread with an expression of astonishment and anger. For a moment or so his emotions rendered him speechless, and then in a loud voice he broke forth:—"

"Forty-ate cints! O musha, musha! The devil fly away wid ye; wasn't that what ye was after chargin me Munda?"

The urbane clerk explained that his customer was right—he had been charged forty-eight cents per pound for the best butter on Monday, and the price in the meantime had undergone no variation.

"Did ye take a squint at the Argus this morning, me broth of a bye?" queried the highly excited party before the counter, at the same time exhibiting to the gaze of the clerk a copy of that sheet freighted with democratic victories.

The intelligent clerk replied that he had seen the Argus, and added that he was much elated at the news.

"Ye've seen the news, ye say that?"

"Yes, sir; I've seen the news."

"And ye's know that Tildorn is elected?"

"Yes, sir; I am aware of that fact."

"An' Mr. Tildorn elected ye'ze chargin' me farty-ate cints a pound for butter, just the same as on Munda."

The clerk, as good-humored as he was urbane, explained that the election of Mr. Tilden had not slightest effect on the butter market.

The too, too confiding democrat hung his head a moment and then handed out ninety-six cents in full for his butter, and then as he passed out of the grocery pitched the Argus into the gutter. On reaching home he remarked to the members of his astonished family that notwithstanding his deep affection for each and every one of them, he'd break the head and black the eye of the first one who alluded to politics in his presence. Tilden had been elected and he helped to elect him, and yet butter remained at the same stiff figure at which it stood on Monday! Directly after breakfast he went out with blood in his eye and invested in a shot gun, loaded the weapon to the muzzle, and when last seen was turning the pages of the directory for the address of a well-known stump speaker of the democratic persuasion, who discoursed most eloquently a week ago of hard times and Tilden's Only Infallible Remedy therefor.

This confiding democrat is to be pitied for the mistake into which he allowed himself to be led. The stump speaker who wrought the mischief should have explained when he addressed him that Mr. Tilden will not be sworn in as governor until Jan. 1, 1875, so that hard times cannot reasonably be expected to depart until after that date. Of course there can be no doubt that just as soon as Tilden takes the oath of office the price of butter will fall to 12 cents a pound—that being what it was in Jackson's day—and every man out of work will be given an easy place at a fat salary, payable in hard money. Listening to one of the democratic orators declaim about the hard times, "the result, fellow-citizens, of republican rule," it was an easy step to the inference that the bringing in of Tilden would effect also the bringing in of that ravishing epoch of which Punch tells, "There is a good time coming," says the great jester, "when you shall buy two cents' worth of snuff in a gold snuff-box—for a cent."

Mr. Smiley's Gun.

[Max Adeler.]

Recently it occurred to Mr. Smiley, of Darbey, that it would be a good thing to go out to see if he couldn't shoot a rabbit or two. He always kept his gun loaded and ready in the corner of the room, so he merely shouldered it and went out. After a while he saw a rabbit, and taking aim he pulled the trigger. The gun failed to go off. Then he pulled the other trigger, and the cap snapped again. Mr. Smiley used some extreme language, and then, taking a pin, he picked the nipples of the gun, primed them with a little powder, and started again. Presently he saw another rabbit, but both caps snapped again. The rabbit did not see Smiley, so he put on more caps, and they snapped too. Then Smiley cleaned out the nipples again, primed them, and fired the gun off at a fence. Then the caps snapped again. Then Smiley became furious, and in his rage he expended forty-seven caps in an effort to make that gun go off. When the forty-seventh cap missed also, Smiley thought that there might, perhaps, be something the matter with the inside of the gun, so he tried the barrels with his ramrod. To his utter dismay, he discovered that both barrels were empty. Mrs. Smiley, who is nervous about firearms, had drawn the loads without telling Smiley, for fear of making him angry. If there had been a welkin anywhere about, it would probably have been made to ring with Mr. Smiley's excited denunciations of Mrs. Smiley. Finally, however, he became cooler, and, loading both barrels, he started again after rabbits. He saw one in a few moments, and was about to fire, when he noticed that there were no caps on his gun. He felt for one, and to his dismay found that he had snapped the last one off. Then he ground his teeth and walked home. On his way he saw at least six hundred rabbits. He has been out hunting every day since, however, with his gun in first-rate order, and he has never laid eyes on a solitary rabbit. Smiley is beginning to think something is wrong in the government of the Universe.

Prescription for Cure of Drunkenness.

There is a curious prescription in England for the cure of drunkenness, by which thousands are said to have been assisted in recovering themselves. The receipt came into notoriety through the efforts of John Vine Hall, father of Rev. Newman Hall and Captain Vine Hall, first commander of the Great Eastern steamship. He had fallen into such habitual drunkenness that his utmost efforts to regain himself proved unavailing. At length he sought the advice of an eminent physician, who gave him a prescription which he followed faithfully for several months, and at the end of that time he had lost all desire for liquors, although he had for many years been led captive by a most debasing appetite. The recipe, which he afterward published, and by which so many have been assisted to reform, is as follows: "Sulphate of iron, 5 grains; magnesia, 10 grains; peppermint water, 11 grains; spirit of nutmeg, 1 drachm; to be taken twice a day." This preparation acts as a tonic and stimulant, and so partly supplies the place of the accustomed liquor, and prevents that absolute physical and moral prostration that follows a sudden breaking off from the use of stimulating drinks.

PULMOCINE CORDIAL.

"It Might Have Been."

[Detroit Free Press.]

Low, sad singing had been heard during the Perkins trial, and the cause of it was conducted out. The cause was Alice McCarthy, over whose auburn head but three-and-twenty years had tracked their silent way. She had tears, in her eyes and her nose took on the rosy hue of a new hose cart. It was a case of "shouting drunk," and the facts they were plain.

"A sad case," mused His Honor, deliberately impaling an ambitious cockroach on the point of his pen.

A tear rolled down her briny cheek.

"You might have been some one's happy bride—had little cherubs to sit on your knee—had a chance to cut over old clothes and make preserves," he continued.

A tear fell from the other eye.

"And in due time you could have been the bell-sheep at church festivals, and been elected delegate to a national convention. You might have been, and why didn't you be?"

She was deeply affected. She gasped and sighed—wiped her eyes—sighed again, and softly whispered:

"Give us a rest!"

He made the fine $5; it was paid; and when court stood adjourned, His Honor remarked to Bijah:

"She was human to err."

"Yes, and 'or was human," replied Bijah.

People Who Have

Cut their wise teeth, use the SOZODONT, and all who do, are willing to declare to all who don't use it, that it is the most perfect and delightful thing for the teeth they ever dipped a brush into.

Ten Thousand People.

There are more than ten thousand people in the United States who expect to be the happy possessors of the first grand prize in the Kentucky Gift Concert of $250,000. All of them but one will be disappointed. One will get it, for Gov. Bramlette, the manager at Louisville, has announced that the Concert will positively take place on November 30, 1874; that there will be no further postponement, and if our readers want to know more about it, write to him.

The Effects of Dosing.

Many persons who are wanting in natural vigor endeavor to supply the deficiency by constantly dosing themselves with drugs (often of a very pernicious nature), which they are credulous enough to mistake for invigorants. There can be no doubt that many lives are shortened in this way. All that such persons require is a pure vegetable tonic, which, like Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, also possesses the regulating properties necessary to rectify those organic disturbances which are but the result of weakness. The feeble and the nervous cannot be too earnestly advised to abandon the dangerous practice of swallowing mineral tonics, sedatives and vegetable alkaloids, which disorder the stomach and produce the most hurtful reactions, and to substitute in their place this standard strengthening cordial and corrective of the numerous disorders proceeding from debility of the nervous system, as well as of the stomach, liver and bowels.

Important Medical Correspondence.

If all who are now suffering from Coughs and Colds and other throat and lung diseases, could read the letters continually received from all parts of the country, giving the details of cases similar to their own that have been cured by HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR, the demand for that life-saving specific, vast as it is, would be doubled. It never fails. No cough can resist its tranquilizing influence. It strengthens weak lungs and prevents the possibility of tubercular consumption.

The Grand Hullaballoo

Of the democracy comes off to-night. The torch-light procession will start at 7.30. A special train runs from Dover. One hundred guns will be fired, fireworks let off and residences illuminated. The democratic leaders promise that Gen. Banks, Governor elect Gaston, and Congressmen elect Tarbox and Thompson, of Massachusetts, Governor Weston and Hon. Chas. Levi Woodbury will be here. We believe the programme is for a mass meeting and bon-fire on Market Square.

The route of the torch-light procession will be down Daniel street to Bow, through Bow to Market, down Market to Deer, up Deer to Vaughan, thence through Elm and North streets to Prospect street, through Prospect to Dennett street, thence through North and Elm streets to Vaughan, up Vaughan to Congress, up Congress and Islington streets to Cass, through Cass to Middle, down Middle to Cabot, through Cabot to State, down State to Pleasant, down Pleasant to South, countermarch on South street thence to Newcastle street, through Newcastle street to Water street, up Water to State, up State to Market Square.

Temperance---Proposition No. 9.

Raids and crusades by women have died away leaving the questions as to her legitimate action in the cause of Temperance unanswered.

Now the nature of a man is to display unlimited energy, unbounded license, a right minded woman at his side is the natural check and balance; but if she be a pander-er, confusions and woe are the inevitable results.

She must pray; a man at prayer, and all the forces of heaven and earth are moved; a woman at prayer and all the secret fountains of the soul are stirred; but her prayer must be a combination of sentiment and fealty. It is good even for her to get others to put the hands together and say words of prayer and benediction, and there never can be such a superabundance of piety as that we can afford to allow any flippant tongue to decry the faintest semblance of it. Blessed, yea, thrice blessed are many of the women of this day that they possess and manifest the sentiment; but how is it about that thorough searching into the Divine law which is the only immovable basis of fealty? The observation of the writer leads to the unpleasant conclusions that in points wherein the bodily appetities need training, purifying and consecrating, there is pampering. What is wanted is to set up the standard that it is just as vile and degrading for a person to be billious as to be drunken. HARD PAN.

Laconics.

After paying out nearly 160 miles of the Direct Atlantic Cable, the Faraday encountered a gale and the cable was buoyed in lat. 48:37 N., lon. 44:55 W. A fault in he cable had been discovered, but too late to prevent it being passed overboard. The depth of water had been decreasing, the ship being 180 miles from Newfoundland, where the splice was to be made with the shore end.

The U. S. S. Speedwell is now in the dry dock being repaired and painted.

We are informed by Mr. William M. Thayer, the former editor of the Times, that reports have been circulated here and elsewhere to the effect that he has been married to an estimable lady in Boston; and he is desirous that public denial be given to this and all such untruthful reports, for which he says there is no foundation in fact. He hopes the gossips will not again make him or his friends their victim or victims.

The U. S. S. Emerald, having been thoroughly overhauled and repaired, will resume her regular trips this morning.

At the School committee meeting on Monday evening, Miss Ida L. Marston was appointed to the Peabody School, on State street, to assist Miss Walker. A committee was appointed, to report, at the next meeting, the number of children between the ages of five and fifteen who are not attending any school, and also to devise some method to secure their attendance.

The lecture which was to have been given by Rev. Carlos Martyn at Mechanics' Hall this evening, entitled "The Meaning of our Schools," is postponed on account of the democratic jollification to-night.

The Alabama Chivalry.

[Providence Journal.]

In Alabama, it appears, by a dispatch to the Republic, that the "chivalrous children of the sunny south" were somewhat imprudent in the manner of vindicating the "white man's government," and the 'superiority of the Caucasian race," at the election. In Eufala, the negroes being in the majority, and liable to cast the heaviest vote, "the proud Caucasians" had taken the precaution to come to the polls armed, and as the negroes had no weapons, it did not take long to vindicate the government and the superiority aforesaid. But as the poor fellows fled from the shots of the democrats, one of the superior race, more eager than the others and less careful, shot one of his own companions. This is to be lamented; but it is one of those accidents that no precaution can fully guard against, especially at the present price of whiskey; and it is consoling to believe that when the courts of Alabama are recognized, and justice is administered on confederate principles, two or three of the negroes who fled from the murderous fire will doubtless be arrested and executed for the offence, if indeed it be worth while to await the slow process of the law in a land where revolvers are so plenty and convenient. For it is clear that if the negroes had absented themselves from the polls, or even if they had quietly stood to be shot, when they were told to, the white victim to the lost cause would not have fallen. Moreover the negroes, according to confederate logic, were engaged in an illegal action. On this authority, the constitutional amendment, which gives the right of suffrage to the colored men, was not constitutionally adopted, and therefore is not binding, is not properly a part of the constitution, and will be reversed as soon as the rebels have established their own judges. And for this they will not be obliged to wait for the expiration of the terms for which the judges are appointed. It is not quite as easy to frighten a judge as a negro; but a pistol ball has the same effect upon him, and since the black republicans, themselves, have abolished the distinction of race, color and previous condition of servitude, they cannot expect the chivalry to treat a judge better than a nigger.

—A youth in Iowa, who has a turn for practical joking, recently tried to impose upon an honest lager bier vender by leading a mule into his saloon, and taking him up to the bar as if for a drink. Mynheerr looked steadily at the pair for a few moments, as if collecting his stray wits, and then broke out as follows: "See here, Vynce, I know vat dis is here—your own brudder—but he be one you call a minor. He ish too much young to drink his glass lager; it is not the law in no place, nor not mit my saloon. He look like you; you may be one family, as you call it; but if you ever bring dat young brudder here again, I vill shuse tell your old fadder jackass of you both. Now you must go mit yourself."

—"That's where the boys fit for college," said the professor to Mrs. Partington, pointing to a schoolhouse. "Did they?" said the old lady, with animation. "Then, if they fit for college before they went, they didn't fight afterward." "Yes," said he, smiling, and favoring the conceit; "but the fight was with the head, not with the hands." "Butted, did they?" said the old lady.

—Nineteen years ago a Tennessee father refused to let his young daughter go to a candy-pull, and she disappeared. Recently she returned, lifted eleven children out of the wagon, and entered the house and took off her things as coolly as if she hadn't been gone over a day.

—A country paper tells the story of a new boy in one of the Sunday schools. "The precious youth was asked who made the beautiful hills about them, and replied that he did not know, as his parents only moved into town the day before.

—Sydney Smith said every public man should be provided with a foolometer—that is the acquaintance of three or four regular fools, on whom he could try his measures and judge of the effect they were likely to produce on public opinion.

—"Ben. Billings stole cattle and then lied about it; so his friends took him out and performed a surgical operation on him from which he never recovered," is the way the death of a Nebraska man is recorded in a local paper.

—It is reported that an angel was seen suspended over the town of Ripley, O. It is very likely; any decent angel would remain in a state of suspension twenty-five years rather than drop into the State of Ohio.

—Much given to serenading his dulcinea with "I'm lonely to-night, love, without thee," a lovelorn swain was interrupted by dogs, who effectually dispelled his loneliness during a two-mile race.

—Indigents, book canvassers and solicitors for charity are now easily turned off by the remarks: "No money on hand Have just paid my election bets."

—New York Commercial: Won't it seem funny to have Ben Butler staying at home and reading the news of what they are doing in Congress?

—That blue hue which was formerly thought to pervade the hoisery of certain learned dames is now mounting to the female eyeglass.

—"Mark the upright man;" the man who falls down generally marks himself.

STOVES! STOVES!

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Oven Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

"MEDICAL WONDER"

Prepared by Dr. O. C. Gage, Saratoga, New York.

Geo. C. Goodwin & Co., Wholesale Agents, Boston.

To The Afflicted.

In presenting this valuable remedy to the public, I would say that the almost unlimited and wholly unprecedented success it meets with, stamps it at once as the GREATEST DISCOVERY OF THE AGE. On its merits I am willing to stake my reputation as a physician; and so confident am I that it will not disappoint the most sanguine expectations of a single invalid, that I am prepared to make contracts on the basis of CURE OR NO PAY, with those who have tried other medicines without relief until they have become too listless to make another attempt. To substantiate what I claim for this Wonderful Vegetable Remedy, I do not propose to import far-fetched testimonials, but will simply refer to well-known, reliable living witnesses in your own State.

The afflicted's obedient servant,
DR. O. C. GAGE, Saratoga, N. Y.

Home Testimony.

MRS. IRA S. APPLETON, Hillsboro' Bridge, N. H.; spinal and kidney diseases, confined to bed, and doctors failed to help her; her husband procured "Medical Wonder," and she now writes, "I am able to do considerable work."

J. E. MORRILL, Franklin; scrofulous humor, says nothing has ever helped him like "Medical Wonder."

MRS. C. P. ORDWAY, Centre St., Concord; confined to bed, and had been given up to die; was wonderful ly cured by several physicians, for female and kidney diseases; took Dr. Gage's "Medical Wonder," and was cured in a month.

ANDREW J. PEASLEE, Sutton, N. H.; humor, debility, disease of liver, lungs, &c.; most wonderful recovery.

REV. O. J. WATT, Franklin, N. H.; wife sorely afflicted; took "Medical Wonder" with great success.

GEO. W. EVANS, Derry; difficulty of side and stomach, humor, weakness, &c., cured, and went to work.

MRS. J. W. FITE, Suncook, N. H.; female weakness, dropsy, nervous prostration, &c.; discharged hired girl.

☞ We would also refer to Mrs. Wm. Shepherd and daughter, and Ebenezer Newton, Manchester House; Mrs. Fred Sanborn, West Rumney; Mrs. E. J. Jones, Lebanon; Geo. H. Walker, Grantham; Albert Trussell, Sunapee; Mrs. Benj. Martin, Grafton; Hiram Shannon, Chichester; Alma H. Hill, Canterbury; Mrs. Edwin Stevens, Plymouth; Thomas Wilson, Dunbarton; Mrs. Walter J. Farrar, Hillsboro' Bridge; J. P. Ela, Hooksett; Miss R. A. S. Hoyt, Mrs. S. J. Fitz, Manchester; Mrs. C. P. Ebbett, Concord; Joseph Davis, Rollin; Ellen Proctor, Plaistow; M. J. Leavenworth, Andover.

A Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

—THE—

Art Journal of America,

ISSUED MONTHLY.

"A magnificent conception, magnificently carried out."

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful life allure; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost, and then, there is the chromo, besides!

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in no narrow sense. True art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American publication, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate only on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign sources.

PREMIUM FOR 1875.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in oil colors, of the same noble dog whose picture in a former issue attracted so much attention.

"Man's Faithful Friend"

Will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves such a dog, and the portrait is executed so true to the life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage tells us that his own Newfoundland dog (the finest in Brooklyn) barks at it! Although so natural, no one who sees this chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.

THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. To every series of 5000 subscribers, 100 different pieces, values at over $7,500, are distributed as soon as the series is full, and the awards of each series as made, are to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.

TERMS.

One Subscription, entitling to THE ALDINE one year, the Chromo and the Art Union,

SIX DOLLARS PER ANNUM, IN ADVANCE.

(No charge for postage.)

Specimen copies of THE ALDINE, fifty cents.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or cut rates—all subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, authorized responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is accepted, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON, President.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

He is no novice or humbug to beg, borrow or buy bolsters to uphold him in an art he does not fully understand in every phase of its beauty; but would respectfully point to the best of references, WORKS, and ability to discover, develope and train inherent talent to accomplish splendid results. His pupils are shining in private and public, here and elsewhere. His many Musical Exhibitions—such as others seldom or never present to the public—have been and will still be his solid credentials, aside from throwing favoritism where true merit is too often absent. Terms, $12 for twelve weeks (twenty-four lessons) at his Music Room, or $15 at the pupil's residence, for Piano or Scientific Vocalization, separately or together. Mr. Moses will also Tune Pianos,—a business "familiar as household words" to him,—and solicits orders.

The Country Gentleman is published WEEKLY on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the club.

The Country Gentleman possesses an unequalled corps of correspondents, regular and occasional, among the BEST FARMERS of all parts of the country, and constantly reflects the practical condition and progress of the husbandry of every section of the United states and civilized world.

The Country Gentleman gives in its HORTICULTURAL DEPARTMENT a continuous variety of information and suggestions, equal or superior in the aggregate to what is obtained in the monthly numbers of most magazines devoted to Horticulture.

The Country Gentleman has probably done as much as all other Journals combined, to introduce and disseminate IMPROVED STOCK of every kind through the country; and it commands to a greater degree than any contemporary, the confidence and support of breeders and purchasers.

The Country Gentleman contains unusually full and trustworthy MARKET REPORTS, and devotes special attention to them and to the prospects of the crops, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and When to Sell.

The Country Gentleman embraces numerous minor departments of a practical character, such as the Dairy, the Poultry-Yard, the Apiary, the Vineyard, and so on, and weekly presents a column or two for the housewife and an interesting variety of Miscellaneous Reading. It contains a well edited Review of Current Events, and its advertising pages furnish a directory of all the principal agricultural and horticultural establishments of the country.

Seeking Information.

[Chicago Inter-Ocean Letter.]

Poking among the crevices with a walking-cane was a melancholy, one-armed man who we thought was a soldier, and we wondered if he had come back after the battle, to look for the lacking arm. He seemed so sad—so thoughtful—as he stirred away the fallen leaves with his stick, we wondered if his memory was not poking around among the cracks and crevices of the past to uncover what once had been on that very spot. And we concluded he was a good man to interview, and I approached him and said:

"You seem familiar with this place, sir."

He took a sort of inventory of himself, as if to see what led me to such a supposition, and replied very quietly:

"No, sir; I have never been here before."

"Ah! Some personal interest in the spot, I suppose? Your regiment, perhaps, was in this battle?"

"No, I was never in the army."

"Ah! but, ah! I eh, we eh, my friend there and I were wondering if you didn't lose your arm in this battle."

"That arm, sir," he said, "was snaked off in a saw mill;" and he left me like a man who was terribly bored.

That interview didn't turn out to suit us, and we thought we would have some fun with the colored troops. Calling a mammoth lump of ebony to him, my friend asked:

"What do you call this a battle ground for?"

"Cause der wuz a fight here, sah."

"Who fought?"

"Massa Gen'l Hookah, sah; an' I don't 'low de oder gentleman's name, sah; I disremembahs dat just now."

"Which licked?"

"Massa Gen'l Hookah, sah, of course."

"What did dey fight about?"

"Well, sah, I don't just reckon what dis heah fight was 'bout; de whole fight, sah, was to free de niggah, sah."

"Who owned the nigger, Hooker or the other mac?"

Pompey's eyes opened till they looked like two round agates. He looked at my friend and then looked at me; then he looked over to his companions, who were shouting and laughing at the antics of one of their number in a swing; but he didn't reply. My friend spoke sharply:

"Which owned the nigger that they fought about?"

"W-w-w-what's you been? Who is you, axin' me dis—axin dis chile who owns dat niggah? What's you bin?"

"I've been all around here, but I didn't see any fight. When was the fight?"

"Right smart run o' time since dat, sah; dat's a good while ago, boss, dat was."

"What sort of a fight was it—a prize fight?"

"A which, sah?"

"A prize fight. Did they form a ring and pound each other with their fists? Did Hooker mash up the other fellow with his fists? Who got the first knock down?"

The expression that grew on that man's face—the transformation scene that passed over that man's features, was a better answer to the question than his tongue could have given. First a look of curious bewildernent, then of annoyance, then of pity, contempt and utter disgust successively, till he turned silently and walked back to the party, seeming to wonder which was the greater fool, he or we.

Readables.

One of the satisfactory things in this life is the defeat of Farnsworth, the blatant Ex-Congressman from Illinois, by Gen. Hurlbut.

The free-love community which was to be established on Valcour Island, Lake Champlain, has proved a failure. It had hardly a beginning. It is a significant fact that nearly all the communities, whether free-love or monogamic, which have been founded in this country, have enjoyed only a brief existence, with the exception of those in Oneida county, New York, and at Wallingford, Conn., of which J. H. Noyes is the head. Whether the apparent success of these is dependent on the genius of their head, or in the singular union of religious fanaticism and licentiousness which distinguishes them, a few years will determine.

The Pennsylvania senate will stand twenty-eight republicans to twenty-two democrats, but the House will have from ten to twelve democratic majority, making the legislature democratic on joint ballot.

The propriety of re-enacting the law providing for the organization of Congress on March 4, instead of the first Monday of December, is again suggested. In addition to the usual arguments in favor of such a law, the republicans are seriously considering it because they say it will give the democrats, who are in the majority in the next House, two long sessions, which will be ample rope for them to hang themselves with.

The Springfield Union is convinced that prohibition beat the republicans in Massachusetts, and the third term did the business in New York.

The prohibitory liquor law, in the opinion of the Detroit Tribune, is doomed in Michigan. The Tribune trusts the ultra prohibitionists, who have been knifing the republican party in Michigan with increasing vigor and unreason for the last few years, are satisfied with the results they have finally achieved.

Pennsylvania politicians in Washington say that Hon. Jeremiah S. Black will be elected United States Senator by the new Legislature of that State.

At a special town meeting recently held in West Brookfield, Mass., it was voted "That the overseers of the poor be instructed to give aid and assistance to "tramps," when necessary, and then take them before a trial justice and have their cases investigated in accordance with the statutes." Something of this kind is necessary in every town and city.

The Haverhill Bulletin, republican, predicts that in 1875 "the sheep of the house of Israel will all return to the fold."

The Nantucket Review says that the Oliver Cromwell, while on her mackerel cruise, had a curious incident befall her. The seine being out, a school of mackerel suddenly turned, and, making for the seine, took it down. A vessel in the neighborhood immediately answered a call for assistance, and swept her seine under that of the Oliver Cromwell's. Twenty-three hundred dollars' worth of mackerel were secured, the two vessels dividing the catch, the fish selling on an average of nine cents each. The bunt of the seine belonging to the Oliver Cromwell was badly rent by the sudden rush of the fish, or more would have been secured. This is the second time the seine of the Oliver Cromwell has experienced similar treatment, losing all the fish at the first, on account of the seine giving way, and there being no help near.

The Congressmen just chosen take their seats in December, 1875, and go out of office with President Grant in March, 1877. A new Congress will be chosen at the presidential election in 1876.

The intimidation of the republican vote in Alabama seems to have been greater than at any previous election. Social ostracism was everywhere practiced. In some localities resolutions were passed by which entire democratic communities resolved not to speak to or recognize white republican natives in their own towns. Clergymen refused to speak to members of their own congregation who intended to vote the republican ticket, and republicans were everywhere spoken of and treated as public enemies.

A political paradox—Massachusetts democratic and South Carolina republican.

Mrs. W. H. Howard, Jr., of Braintree, Mass., was walking in the streets of that town, accompanied by her husband, when they met an intoxicated man, who was more than ordinarily demonstrative in his delirium. Just as the Howards came abreast of the inebriate, he gave a whoop which was so sudden in its effect upon Mrs. Howard that she dropped dead at her husband's feet. Mrs. H. was a robust and healthy woman, and her death was pronounced by her physician, Dr. Dearing, to be unquestionably the consequence of fright.

Jones of Nevada says that "Inflation is the child of Impecuniosity and the parent of Panic."

—On a recent Sunday morning a Sheffield workman who had just been married in church was met on his return by about fifty of his fellows, and received at their hands, as a bridal gift, a fine leg of mutton. He accepted it, with thanks, and soberly walked his way, a leg of mutton in his right hand, and his blushing bride leaning on his left arm.

—Four thousand Americans are enjoying the autumnal glories of Paris.

State News.

The Dover (Foster's) Democrat thinks Hon. Warren F. Daniell the strongest democrat in the State for Governor, and Hon. Frank Jones the most available candidate on that side for Congressman in this district. It also opines that Hon. Charles H. Bell of Exeter, or Hon. Person C. Cheney of Manchester will be likely to lead the republican hosts in the next campaign.

B. F. Dame, principal of the Lincoln-street grammar school, Manchester, has been asked if he will accept the position of usher in the Lincoln school, Boston.

Suspicions are still entertained that Daniel F. Bean of South Danbury, whose body was found in Eagle River, West Andover, fell a victim to foul play.

Clarence Eugene Couch, the boy who killed Charlie T. Roberts in Salisbury, by striking him on the head with a stick, was arraigned in Warner, and bound over in the sum of $2000 for his appearance at the next term of the circuit court. His bonds were readily furnished.

No. 3 engine-house, on Washington street, Great Falls, was broken open and pictures, furniture, etc., were badly mutilated. The outrage probably grew out of the fact that at a recent meeting of the engineers several members were stricken from the rolls of the company. Arrests will be made.

Mrs. Joseph Hill of Tilden fell from the roof of a one-story building, while passing out to hang out clothes, and received a serious injury on the head. Her recovery is considered doubtful.

Some persons suspect foul play in the case of Mr. George Leavitt of Piscataquog, who disappeared, recently. His wife, however, is not aware that he had any enemies.

Letter From Dartmouth.

HANOVER, Nov. 9th.

Last Tuesday evening Bishop Clark was advertised to lecture here, but for some reason he did not appear. The committee when Bishop Clark did not come succeeded in procuring Ex-Senator Patterson in his place, and in the evening the audience listened to a very interesting lecture from him entitled, "A trip through Germany and Switzerland."

The graduation exercises of the Medical department took place in the Chapel on Wednesday afternoon. The number of graduates was 23. The address was delivered by Prof. Albert Smith M. D., LL. D. The conferring of Degrees by the President was an affair of unusual interest.

On Saturday a "whole division" game of foot-ball was played. The Seniors and Sophmores composed one party, the Juniors and Freshmen the other. The game was the best three in five. It was well played and excited a great deal of interest. The Seniors and Sophomores showed their superiority and won the first three in the time of 10, 6 1-2 and 8 minutes.

On Saturday night a concert was given at Lebanon by the Camilla Urso Concert Company, consisting of Camilla Urso, Violinist; Clara Doria, Soprano; J. F. Rudolphsen, Basso; W. H. Fessenden, Tenor. Auguste Saurct, Pianist. The hall was crowded. About 100 went down from Hanover.

The Aegis, just published, has many things of interest not only to the undergraduate but to the alumni. In addition to the picture of the Resident Academical Faculty it has a cut of all the College buildings, pictures, of the finish at Saratoga and the "Original Mulligan Guards." It contains numerous statistics, some of which are of interest, and I will mention a few; 25 States contain the residences of the 459 students. New Hampshire leads by claiming 296 of them, Vermont has 89, Massachusetts 61, New York 33, Maine 25, Ohio, 13, Province of Quebec 2, Nova Scotia 1, and South America 1. The youngest student is 15 years of age, the oldest, 50. The united average age of the Academical and Scientific departments is 20 1-3. Of the Professions in view in these departments is Law heads the list with 67, Civil Engineering 43, Medicine 25, Theology 23, Teaching 21, Business 7, Journalism 6, Farming 4. Those who are wholly dependent on self for support are 66. Partially dependant on self for support 119. Teach school at some time during the course 152. As to yearly expenses, $275 will suffice for the very economical student: the average student requires $400. These estimates do not include vacations. "BUG."

—Dr. Theodore L. Cuyler writes from Southold to the Evangelist: "In our time, many a poor minister never gets his grist into the 'hopper,' and is turned out of the back door of the mill with only the bran. Until God's church provides a better grist for the great mass of her religious teachers, the best brains and culture from our colleges will often go off into other professions." This is a fitting comment upon the parsimoniousness of pew-holders, as illustrated by a Chicago pork-packer, who, when his pew-rent was raised to $25, exclaimed, "Great Cæsar! Here's a nice state of affairs—the gospel going up and pork going down. What's to become of us?"

What fun! Way down below the band begins to play, and the festive boys are happy. They listen in a sort of hushed expectancy, and in a subdued manner beat time to the rattling music. A jig of a tune, but vastly amusing. There, now, it is over, and the curtain will rise. No, another tune. They take it kindly, and listen with might and main. That quarter looked big: they knew just how much weariness and toil it cost, and they are bound to get its value.

—Modoc Lizzie, Captain Jack's widow, has left off mourning. It may interest our readers to know that the process of leaving off mourning among this Indian tribe consists in washing the black paint off the face.

Just Under The Roof.

[Boston Journal of Commerce.]

A man's amusements are the measure of his character. There is your base ball lover. You know him. There's your theatre goer. You know him. There is your attendant upon Thomas' symphonies. You know her. Here is the nightly attendant upon the upper glories of "the Howard," a ragged, starved, riotous little devil. Newsboy, bootblack, and boy of the street. You don't know him? More's the pity. Here on the narrow sidewalk of Howard Street, under the white glare of a calcium light, stands this beautiful product of Boston—social science and charity. Some rags, more dirt, no collar (poor child, he's pretty low down,) thin lips, hollow eyes, and an expression of age beyond his years. As he steps out of the friendly shadows of the street into the white flood of light, he instantly turns his eyes upward to the wonderful lamp overhead, and at once begins to button up his poor old coat, as if he would hide his poverty. He fumbles in his pockets, and eagerly counts his coppers, to see if he can muster that terrible twenty-five cents. It may be his last copper, and no prospect for the morrow's breakfast, "but he'll sink it all to go to the Howard."

They come in twos, threes, crowds. They fill the street, pushing, hurrying, struggling for the doorway, and with noisy clatter they climb the steep wooden stairs that lead to the upper gallery. "Gimme a cent, Mister? I've got twenty-four. Only a cent, mister." Talk about the desperate courage of business men sinking their last dollar. Here is greater courage. "Hullo, Jimmy! Is it open? be ye goin' in?" "I've only got twenty-four cents." "Oh! come 'long. I'll give ye a cent." The look of gratitude that beams in the boy's face is worth seeing. Up the stairs they go, in great glee.

A starved mite of a child, barefooted, on the slimy sidewalk, gazes wistfully up the stairs. He hasn't even twenty-four cents. He stares forlornly after the crowds of ragged little rouges and seems ready to cry. He does not. Such boys never do. Men in good clothes, men in working suits, men with girls and women, men alone and in crowds, blockade the doors. The thief, the blackleg, the rough, the rowdy and the sneak gather around the place. The well-dressed loafers stand on the opposite walk and smoke disdainfully. By and by, when the rest have gone boldly in, they, too, will slink in the shadows and steal in. The roughest and dirtiest, and the poorest, take the boy's gallery and climb up to "the twenty-five cent heaven."

A narrow door, some three feet wide, leads to a steep flight of wooden steps, and then we come to a little den, where, in his filthy tank of an office, sits the ticket man, who devours the children's living. Then a narrow, winding, wooden stairway, worse than Bunker Hill, and as dark as a cathedral tower stairs, reeking in dirt, thick with the horrid smells of a totally unventilated place. A halting footstep on the stairs above us. A young man with a wooden leg hobbles alone up the dismal place, poverty, starvation and misery written all over him. Why is he here? He is seeking amusement.

A brute of a man snatches our tickets, and bundles the cripple into the door.

And this is the upper gallery of the Howard? Queer place and not lovely. A steep bank of rough wooden seats with no backs, spread out like a horse-shoe under the low roof. The ceiling is some six feet overhead and it follows the slope of the gallery till it meets the flat ceiling of the theatre, where the great broiling sunburner hangs close to the roof.

The place is thick with boys. The front row is occupied by the youngest, or the most active in climbing the stairs when the door was opened,—some in shirtsleeves, some without coats, and nearly all with their hats on. Through the horizontal slit between the floor and ceiling we may catch a glimpse of the stage and its tawdry surroundings. The heat is something fearful, and the smells—well, the least said the better. There are some open windows. Perhaps by standing near them we may survive the evening.

Suddenly the curtain rises on the absorbing drama of "Po-ka-hon-tas: or, the Gentle Savage." With a wild yell a number of lively Indians, much war-painted, rush in and join in a festive chorus. The entire audience rise as one boy and stand up. They are bound to see everything, and no one boy is to have the selfish advantage of standing on his seat, so all save the first two or three rows get upon the bare wooden benches. There is a craning of necks, a pulling down of caps to cut off the dreadful glare of the sun-burner, and a straining of old young eyes to catch the all of it. Only the brush of a Dore can paint the half circle of faces spread out before us. Take a stand at the side, above and behind the shadow of the steep roof. Pleasant sight, isn't it? Boston should feel proud. Poor devils! Hungry for mental food of some kind, they seek this. Starved for want of a little pleasure, they snatch at such crusts as this wretched burlesque, the very jokes of which are totally beyond their comprehension.

It's not a lovely sight. Vice, ignorance, incipient insanity and a short, hard life are written all over their pinched and eager faces. They listen in silence and with unwearied attention, though it is all a muddle, and they don't understand a word of it. The comic antics of the actors alone seem to strike them understandingly, and nearly all the rest is quite lost upon them. Presently there is a song by one of the female characters. A really pretty song, and well sung, though the words are dreary nonsense. Now isn't that very odd? The poor devils are actually charmed with the music, and express their unqualified approval and delight by abundant applause. She gives another, and the absorbed attention they pay is higher praise than ever a prima donna won in grand opera.

After a while the stupid play comes to an end, and the grinning crowd starts up with renewed interest. Now something is coming that they can understand. A negro melody with song and dance. They grow jolly and wildly demonstrative. Ripples of laughter run through the crowd, but it sounds harsh and unnatural, and unlike the laugh of a child. More pathetic than amusing, more sad than funny.

Then follows a dialect song by a stupid Dutchman, and the poor devils are quite uplifted and grow wonderfully merry. Then follow some gymnastics that seem to appeal to boyish imagination powerfully, and they are in ecstacies.

Then there is a pantomime with much calcium light and tableau work. The poor devils gaze upon it in profound silence, while the band does the "slow music," supposed to be appropriate to such shows. At the end the wicked brigands have their heads chopped off, and the crowd vents its satisfaction in very pronounced applause.

Then a wild Irish duet wakes up the boys to an extraordinary pitch of delight. They fairly howl with joy. Their faces are a study. Such earnestness to see, such earnestness of attention, such absorbed delight in the show, never lighted the faces of parquet people. The actors should feel proud. Again and again the boys demand that the wild songs and dances, barbaric howls and cries shall be repeated, and the furious jigsters only stop from sheer exhaustion. Then follows a farce of the broadest humor, and the boys are quite captivated. During the early part of the evening they were sometimes listless and inattentive. Several little fellows laid down on the floor by the windows to rest. Now every one crowds to the edge to see it all. They lean two and three deep over the rail, and every boy stands up. Not one stirs to go home till it is all over.

Then comes the outpouring down the dismal stairs. The lower part of the house is cleared in a moment, but here perhaps ten minutes pass before the place begins to be empty. Many linger by the windows or round the gas lamps, and one mite of a child devours a cream cake like a little wolf. Think of it ye dainty lovers of late suppers! A cream cake! The child is scarce six years old, and perhaps he has had no supper. He clutches at the cake and stuffs it into his mouth like a beast feeding ravenously. The band meanwhile roars and rattles away, though down stairs the place is empty and the lights are out. A big fellow turns out the gas, and with insults and oaths drives the last of the crowd down the stairs. They slink away in silence, and the doors are slammed behind us. Two or three poor wretches still linger round the door, but a policeman swings his cane over their heads, and tells them to "Git out o' this wid ye!" The street once more. The teakettle clock says half-past ten, and the ragged urchins saunter wearily away to their dens.

The show is over. Real life returns with its hardships and poverty. They have tasted a brief respite from its weariness in a twenty-five cent heaven. It is all they have of pleasure, and they must take that or starve. Happy that there is once more an averting of the dreadful fate that some night will overtake them in that fire-trap. Only that winding stair and a narrow door barred up, leading down into the gallery below, and the fifth story windows. But then, they are only poor little devils that nobody owns. Let 'em burn. Who cares?

—A clergyman taught an old man in his old parish to read, and had found him an apt scholar. After the lessons had finished he had not been able to call at the cottage for some time, and when he did he only found the wife at home. "How's John?" said the clergyman. "He's canny, sir," said the wife. "How does he get on with his reading?" "Nicely, sir." "Ah! I suppose he will read his Bible very comfortably now." "Bible, sir! bless you, he was out of the Bible and into the newspaper long ago."

—"Mother," said a little urchin when he came home, "I have seen such a smart preacher. He stamped and made such a noise, and then he got mad; he shook his fist at the folks, and there wasn't anybody dared go up and fight him."

—The Paris correspondent of a London paper vouches for the truth of the following incident, which occurred in Lyons: On the 6th of October two young people were married in that town. Within a few hours of the ceremony they became insensible, and have remained so ever since. The Lyonese doctors have exhausted their science in this case, and the luckless pair, though alive yet, are evidently sinking from mere starvation. There can be no question but that some narcotic of the most violent class has been given them, probably as a joke.

PULMOCINE CORDIAL,

Local Matters.

The Richings-Bernard Company

gave the opening concert at Tremont Temple, Boston, one evening last week, to a large audience. The Advertiser says: "the costumes of the eighteen performers are in every case interesting, and many of them are very handsome. They are a little incongruous as a combination of forms, perhaps, for they present among the ladies the Elizabethan, the Watteau Shepherdess, the Pompadour, the Puritan of 1620 and the Quakers; but the colors are rich and the fabrics elegant. The music of these fine birds too, is worthy their fine feathers, and is exceedingly enjoyable. The programmes are selected from the best compositions of Webbe, Parry, Sullivan, Bishop, Hatton and like composers. Madame Richings-Bernard's soprano seems as strong and trustworthy as ever, and her method as artistic, and she is fitly supported by her troupe." To-morrow evening the company sing here. Secure your reserved seats at Preston's.

The "Imperial."

The Washington papers are very complimentary to the new management of the "Imperial-Hotel," which has been remodeled and has 125 rooms. Its coaches are at all the depots and steamboat landings, and all that is necessary for a visitor in order to secure not only fashionable but desirable lodgings is to say "Imperial Hotel."

The Gazette says of the Hotel: Its large, lofty rooms, halls, and parlors are well ventilated and furnished with the most excellent and handsome styles of rosewood furniture, carpets in which the foot sinks softly, and curtains and hangings of the best lace and damask. The bedding is the best that we have seen in any hotel in the city, and until we are shown better we are bound to consider it facile princeps. The large marble-tiled room on the lower floor will in a short time be opened as a cafe, where every luxury that the taste can crave will be served up in the best style. Improvements have been made by Col. Pierce in this department by the construction of a kitchen adjoining the cafe, so that everything ordered will be served piping hot or icy cold, as may be desired. In fact, the guests who may arrive at this hotel will find everything that he desires for pleasure or comfort. But a hotel may possess the most magnificent appointments and yet lack that essential—a man at the head who knows how to keep a hotel. We can state from personal knowledge that Col. Peirce is not only one of the most experienced but most courteous and affable gentlemen that ever opened a house for the accommodation of the public. Under his guidance the "Imperial" will gain a national reputation, and we expect that the only difficulty that we will meet with will be to find room for the hundreds of guests who will seek the shelter of his roof during the Congressional season.

Laconics.

The lecture before the lyceum by Rev. Warren H. Cudworth, Tuesday evening, on the subject "Up Hill" was a cheery presentation of the necessity of overcoming obstacles, the speaker holding that that which is most desirable is well worth striving for in the face of opposition. The most successful of men are those who have strengthened themselves in this manner. He paid a merited compliment to the teachers of New England. The lecturer was in his best mood.

Such an abundance of "trundle-bed trash" has not been seen in public procession in the streets of Portsmouth since the Greeley fiasco of 1872 as adorned the ranks of the noisy democracy, Wednesday evening.

"The Postal Guide," for sale at the post-office, contains a fund of information which makes it valuable to every business man. See advertisement.

The democrats showed their knowledge of where democratic majorities come from by parading through the classic precincts of Bow and Water streets, Wednesday evening. The inhabitants of Middle street, from Cabot to State, where there is not a corporal's guard of mobocrats, were spared the infliction.

The report of the Eastern Railroad for the year ending Sept. 30, shows a surplus of $234,987, and an increase in net earnings over 1873 of $820,000

The Times puts its foot in it by denying our statement that there were twenty-six bar-rooms open on Sunday, the 8th inst., and saying it is given on the authority of some "anonymous person." The statement we made was a true one, and the person who gave us the information we deem as reliable as any person connected with the Times in any capacity. Our item causes people to reflect over the consequences of democratic ascendency, and it is no wonder the Times is alarmed lest its enthusiastic supporters show their disposition too openly. It is a very unhappy season for the Times to say, as it does; "The truth is, our city has not been so quiet for a number of years as since the organization of the present police department," for it was only two days since that the police complained that they had too much work to do, and the City Marshal remarked that he had no idea before assuming the duties of the office that it was so difficult to preserve order. Our informant is a democrat.

We hear that ex-Mayor Adams lies at the point of death at his residence in this city.

On Wednesday evening, Coroner Rider was notified by the authorities of the finding of the body of a girl named Georgia Fowler in a pond at Seabrook. The circumstances as reported are that the girl's father went to Newburyport Wednesday, and before leaving told his daughter if she was found at his home when he got back he would kill her. It is reported that other troubles occurred there the same day before the deed was committed and that the daughter was pregnant. The Coroner has gone there to-day to investigate the matter.

The immense democratic procession on Wednesday evening was exactly three minutes in passing a given point, when it first started and before its ranks were thinned out by the "breaking-off" of many thirsty souls for refreshments. Considering the amount of money laid out and the fact that all the neighboring towns were laid under contribution to furnish processionists, the grand show may be set down as a first class fizzle.

—Tidioute, Pa., evades the local option law in a peculiar manner. There is but one place in the town where the cup that inebriates can be procured, and that is so arranged that the drinker never knows of whom he is procuring his indispensable. The searcher after his morning bitters enters a room, one side of which is boarded up. In this partition a horizontal wheel revolves. Over the wheel is the legend, "Drop your money on this wheel, call for what you want, and wait until the wheel revolves." The first order obeyed and the wheel turns around, bringing out the desired liquid. The man is unable to swear who sold him the liquor, as no person is visible.

—Peru is just and gracious to its women. A young lady desirous of entering the law school at Cuzco, an institution supported by the State, wrote to the goverment to inquire if her sex were a bar to her admission. The minister of justice promtly replied that all Peruvian citizens should enjoy equal rights; that women were considered by the law as on the same footing with men, as far as the privileges to be accorded by the republic were concerned, adding that it was a matter of peculiar pleasure to the administration to improve the opportunity of giving publicity to such a declaration.

People Who Have

Cut their wise teeth, use the SOZODONT, and all who do, are willing to declare to all who don't use it, that it is the most perfect and delightful thing for the teeth they ever dipped a brush into.

The Effects of Dosing.

Many persons who are wanting in natural vigor endeavor to supply the deficiency by constantly dosing themselves with drugs (often of a very pernicious nature), which they are credulous enough to mistake for invigorants. There can be no doubt that many lives are shortened in this way. All that such persons require is a pure vegetable tonic, which, like Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, also possesses the regulating properties necessary to rectify those organic disturbances which are but the result of weakness. The feeble and the nervous cannot be too earnestly advised to abandon the dangerous practice of swallowing mineral tonics, sedatives and vegetable alkaloids, which disorder the stomach and produce the most hurtful reactions, and to substitute in their place this standard strengthening cordial and corrective of the numerous disorders proceeding from debility of the nervous system, as well as of the stomach, liver and bowels.

Important Medical Correspondence.

If all who are now suffering from Coughs and Colds and other throat and lung diseases, could read the letters continually received from all parts of the country, giving the details of cases similar to their own that have been cured by HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR, the demand for that life-saving specific, vast as it is, would be doubled. It never fails. No cough can resist its tranquilizing influence. It strengthens weak lungs and prevents the possibility of tubercular consumption.

PIKE'S TOOTH-ACHE DROPS—Cure in one minute.

STOVES! STOVES!

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Open Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

A Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

—THE—

Art Journal of America,

ISSUED MONTHLY.

"A magnificent conception, magnificently carried out."

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there is the chromo, besides.

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in no narrow sense. True art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate only on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign sources.

PREMIUM FOR 1875.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in oil colors, of the same noble dog whose picture in a former issue attracted so much attention.

"Man's Unselfish Friend"

Will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves such a dog, and the portrait is executed so true to the life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage tells us that his own Newfoundland dog (the finest in Brooklyn) barks at it! Although so natural, no one who sees this chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.

THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with 40 other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. To every series of 500 subscribers, 100 different pieces, values in over $2,500, are distributed as soon as the series is full, and the awards of each series as made, are to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.

TERMS.

One Subscription, entitling to THE ALDINE one year, the Chromo and the Art Union,

SIX DOLLARS PER ANNUM, IN ADVANCE.

(No charge for postage.)

Specimen copies of THE ALDINE, fifty cents.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON, President.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, &c.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs!
NO. 70 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Piano and Singing.
THOS. P. MOSES, thorough and tasteful Teacher of Music, from A in its alphabet to composition and arrangement, has concluded not to accept a recent call to a South again, but will retain his permanent location in the grand "Old Town by the Sea" where he was born,—and renews the offer of his services as above, with unabated zeal and love for his branch of human refinement. He is no novice or humbug to beg, borrow or buy boisters to uphold him in an art he does not fully understand in every phase of its beauty; but would respectfully point to the best of references, WORKS, and ability to discover, develope and train inherent talent to accomplish splendid results. His pupils are shining in private and public, here and elsewhere. His many Musical Exhibitions—such as others seldom or never present to the public—have been and will still be his solid credentials, aside from gaining favoritism where true merit is too often absent. Terms, $12 for twelve weeks (twenty-four lessons) at his Music Room, or $15 at the pupil's residence, for Piano or Scientific Vocalization, separately or together. Mr. Moses will also Tune Pianos,—a business "familiar as household words" to him,—and solicits orders.

"Little Joe."

[Lippincott's Magazine.]

Tom Wise, a great big, handsome fellow, with a heart of the same order, was standing at the corner talking to a friend. He held a cigar to his mouth with his left hand, and with his right had just struck a match against the lamp-post when at—or rather under—his elbow a voice exclaimed cheerily, "Busted agin, Mas' Tom!"

Tom threw a glance over his shoulder, and there stood "Little Joe," a small misshapen negro about fifteen years old, with crutches under his arms and feet all twisted out of shape, his toes barely touching the ground as he hopped along. He had on an old straw hat with only a hint of a brim. There must be some law of cohesive attraction between straw and wool, for Little Joe's cranium was large, while the hat was small, and set back much nearer the nape of his neck than the crown of his head, yet held its place like a natural excrescence or a horrible bore. Joe had met with very few people mean enough to laugh at him; for though he possessed all the brightness and cheerfulness and pluck of deformed people generally, there was a wistful look about his eyes which his want of height and his position on crutches intensified (indeed perhaps created), by keeping them upturned while talking with any one taller than himself; and this was generally the case, for there were no grown people so small as Little Joe. His shirt was torn and his pantaloons ragged, but to gild these faded glories he wore a swallow-tailed coat with brass buttons which some one had given him, whether from a sense of humor or a sentiment of charity, let the gods decide.

"Busted agin, Mas' Tom!"

"What 'busted' you this time, Joe?" asked Mr. Wise.

"Lumber, Mas' Tom. I was in de lumber bizniss las' week, buyin' old shingles, an sellin' 'em for kindlin'; but my pardner, he maked a run on de bank—leas'ways on my breeches pocket—and den runned away his'self. Ain't you gwine to set me up agin, Mas' Tom?"

"What business are you going into this week?"

"Feckshunerry," replied Joe, taking the quarter Mr. Wise handed him. "Dis 'll do to buy the goods, but 'twon't rent de sto', Mas' Tom."

"What store?" asked Mr. Wise.

"Dat big sto' Hunt an' Manson is jes' moved outen. Mr. Manson say I may hab it for sebben hunderd dollars if you'll go my skoorty."

Tom laughed: "Well, Joe, I was thinking I wouldn't go security for anybody this week. Don't you think you can do business on a smaller scale?"

Joe's countenance fell, and he suffered visibly, but a cheering thought presently struck him, and he exclaimed disdainfully: "Any how, I ain't a-keerin' 'bout Hunt an' Manson's ole sto'—der ole sebben-hundred-dollar sto'! I can git a goods box an' turn it upside down, an stan' it up by de Capitol groun's, an' more folks'll pass 'long an' buy goobers dan would come in das ole sto' all de year. Dey ain't spitin' me!"

As Joe limped off to invest his money, his poor little legs swinging and his swallow-tails flapping, Tom's friend asked who he was.

"Belonged to us before the war," said Tom. "Poor little devil! the good Lord and the birds of the air seem to take care of him. I set him up in business with twenty-five cents every week, and look after him a little in other ways. Sometimes he buys matches and newspapers, and sells them again; sometimes he buys gingercakes, and eats them all; but he is invariably 'busted,' as he calls it, by Saturday night.—Joe! o-oh, Joe!"

Joe looked back, and with perfect indifference to the fact that he was detaining Mr. Wise, answered that he would "be dar toreetly," continuing his negotiations for an empty goods box lying at the door of a neighboring dry-goods store. "What you want, Mas' Tom?" he asked on his return.

"Miss Mollie is going to be married week after next, Joe, and you may come up to the house if you like. I was afraid I might forget it."

"Whoop you sir! Thanky, Mas' Tom. I boun' to see Miss Mollie step off de carpit. But, Lork-a-mussy! dem new niggers you all got ain't gwine to lemme in."

"Come to the front door and ask for me. Cut out now, and don't get busted this week, because I shall need all my money to buy a breastpin to wait on my sister in.—Come John, let's register."

Joe's glance followed Mr. Wise and his friend till they were out of sight; then he turned and paused no more till he reached an out-of-the-way grocery store, in the window of which were displayed samples of fish and soap and calico and kerosene lamps and dreadful brass jewelry, among which was a frightful breastpin in the shape of a crescent set with red and green glass, and further ornamented by a chain of the most atrocious description conceivable. Before this thing of beauty, which to him had been a joy for weeks, Joe paused and lingered, and smote his little black breast, and sighed the sigh of poverty. Then he went in. "What mout be de price o' dat gent's pin in de corner ob de winder?" he inquired.

"I don't see any gent in the corner of the window," said the proprietor of the store.

Joe took the mild pleasantry, and inquiring "what mout be de price' o' de pin?" was told that it might be anything—from nothing up—but it could go for seventy-five cents.

He stood again outside the window, looking sadly and reflecting at the attractive bijou, then seated himself on the curbstone, his crutches resting in the gutter, and thoughtfully smoothed between his finger and thumb the twenty-five cent note Mr. Wise had given him. "Ef I takes dis, an' de one Mas' Tom gwine to gimme nex' week, dat'll be fifty cents, but it won't be seventy-five, so I got to make a quarter on de two. Ef Miss Mollie knowed, I 'spec she would wait another week to git married, an' den I wouldn't run no risk o' dese; but I ain't gwine to tell her, cos I know she couldn't help tellin' Mas' Tom, an' I want to s'prise him. Mas' Tom has made me feel good a many a time; I want to make him feel good wunst. He don't nuvvur come dis way, and ain't seed dat pin, or he would ha' had it 'fore now."

Then Little Joe bestirred himself, and, obtaining the assistance of a friend, took his dry-goods box up to Capitol Square. There he turned it upside down, spread a newspaper over the top, and proceeded to display his wares.

A pyramid of three apples stood in one corner; a small stack of peppermint candy was its vis-a-vis; a tiny glass of peanuts graced the third, and was confronted by a lemon that had seen life, and was now more sere than yellow. But the crowning glory was the centre-piece—an unhappy-looking pie of visage pale and thin physique, yet how beautiful to Joe! He stepped back on his crutches, turning his head from side to side as he surveyed the effect, took up a locust branch he had brought with him to brush away the flies, and, leaning against the iron railing, with calm dignity awaited coming events.

His glance presently fell on the figure of a negro boy, who stood gazing with longing eyes on the delicacies of his table, and it was with a strange feeling of kinship that little Joe continued to regard the new comer, for he too had been branded by misfortune. He appeared about Joe's age, and should have been taller, but his legs had been amputated nearly up to the knee, and as he stood on the pitiful stumps, supported by a short cane in one hand, his head was hardly as high as the iron railing. He had none of Joe's brightness, but looked ragged and dirty and hungry, and evidently had no Mas' Tom to help the good Lord and the birds of the air to take care of him. His skin was of a dull ashen hue, and the short wool which clung close to his scalp was sunburnt till it was red and crisp, and formed a curious contrast to his black face. One arm was bare, only the ragged remains of a sleeve hanging over the shoulder, and it seemed no great misfortune that his legs had been shortened, for he had hardly pantaloons enough to cover what he had left.

He looked at the pie, and Joe looked at him. Presently the latter inquired seriously, "War yo' legs?"

"Cut off," was the answer.

"How come dey cut off?"

"Feet was fros'-bit. Like ter kill me."

"What yo' name?" asked Joe.

"Kiah."

"What were yo' ole mas' name?"

"Didn't have no ole mas'."

"Was you a natchul free nigger?"

"Dunno what you mean," said Kiah.

"Fore we was all sot free," explained little Joe. "Was you born wid a old mas, and a ole mis', or was you born free?—jes' natchully free?"

"Free," said Kiah, thus placing himself as every Southerner knows, under the ban of Joe's contempt. "Umph! my Lor'! Dat pie sholy do smell good!"

"You look hongry," said Joe gravely.

"I is," said Kiah—"hongry as a dog?"

Negroes are generous creatures, and Joe's mind was fully made up to give Kiah a piece of pie; but before he signified this benevolent intention he rested his crutches under his shoulders, and swung his misshapen feet almost in Kiah's face. He leered at him; he grinned at him; he stuck his chin in his face, and made a dart at him with the crown of his head; finally snapping his eyes and slapping his sides and swing his heels to the following edition of "Juba," repeated with incredible rapidity and indescribable emphasis:—

Ruby-eyed 'simmon seed
See Billy hoppin' jes' in time;
Juba dis an' Juba dat,
Juba killed de yeller cat.
Roun' de kittle o' 'possum fat,
Whoop a-hoy! whoop a-hoy!
Double step o' Juba!
Forty pound o' candle-grease
Settin' on the mantlepiece.
Don't you see ole Granny Grace?
She look so homely in de face.
Up de wall an' down de 'ition,
Gimme axe sharp as sickle,
Cut de nigger's woozen pipe.
What eat up all de snaessengers?
Git up dar, you little nigger!
Can't you pat Juba?

He stopped suddenly and grinned ferociously at Kiah. Kiah gazed stolidly back at Joe. Then Joe stepped to the table, took up a rusty old pocket-knife, and cutting out a piece of the pie handed it to Kiah. Kiah bit off a point of the triangle with his eyes fixed on Joe as if in doubt whether he would be allowed to proceed, but finding that the liberty was not resented, he eagerly devoured the remainder, drew his coat-sleeve across his mouth, and said, "Thanky." And thus their friendship commenced.

It was very touching and beautiful, the attachment which was formed between these two unfortunate creatures. Neither could perform the labor or join in the sports incident to his age, and they seemed drawn together by the attraction of a common misery. Every day some little service pitiful in its insignificance except to themselves, some little humble office from one to the other, some little act of self-denial—perhaps the saving of a few cold potatoes that had been given to Kiah, or the sacrifice of a buttered roll that Joe had got at Mr. Wise's,—every day some little thing served to cement this friendship which gave to each a companion who did not mortify him; and they became inseparable, Joe taking Kiah to the little shed where he spent his nights, and making him an equal partner in business during the day.

The next time Joe came to be set up he gave Mr. Wise a knowing wink and said mysteriously, "Don't you go buyin' no bres'-pin to w'ar to de wedden', Mas' Tom."

"Why not, Joe?"

"Cos ain't no use in two bres'pins, an' dar ain't tellin' what mout happen 'fore dat weddin' come off."

Mr. Wise laughed, but he had no premonition that Joe had entered into a successful negotiation for the grocer's execrable crescent, and the shock was therefore unbroken when on the evening of the marriage Joe entered his dressing-room and presented it to him with an air of pride so pitiful that it would have made a woman cry.

Tom was fully as much surprised as Joe had anticipated, and affected to be as greatly delighted; and when he had completed his toilet of faultlessly quiet tone he pinned the horrible thing in his shirt bosom, and thanked Little Joe for the gift with all the gracious courtesy of his fine nature.

Mr. Wise was to "stand" with a friend of his sister's who was a guest in the house, and, as they fancied themselves very much in love with each other, they had agreed to meet in the parlor an hour before that appointed for the ceremony, that they might enjoy a quiet tete-a-tete before the assembling of the guests. Having finished his toilet, he accordingly went down, and was soon joined by the lady.

They promenaded up and down the parlors, and again and again her eyes rested curiously on the pin, but she made no allusion to it till her feelings had become entirely irrepressible, when she interrupted him in the middle of a sentence to inquire what on earth it was, and where he got it, and why he wore it.

Then he sat down by her side, with lace curtains shimmering in the twilight, and long mirrors reflecting alabaster vases and oil paintings, and the air heavy with the perfume of flowers, and told her about Little Joe—of his shapeless feet and forlorn life, his empty pocket and grateful heart. And she agreed that it must be dreadful to be so poor and deformed, and all that, and of course he ought to be grateful, but really she thought Mr. Wise rather morbid in his philanthropy when he could wear that brass moon before five hundred people only to please a little deformed negro.

"Perhaps you do not understand," said Tom gently, "that I have given Joe permission to witness the ceremony (I believe I told you that he was the personal property of my mother, and a favorite with her,) and he will certainly know whether I wear this pin that he has worked for, and gone in debt for, and probably starved himself for. Will there be any one here—save yourself—whose laugh I dread enough to induce me to mortify and disappoint him?"

"It will make us both ridiculous," said she haughtily.

Tom quietly unfastened the pin, and placed it in his vest pocket, and with it disappeared Miss Annan's prospect of becoming Mrs. Wise, enviable as she deemed the position.

"I have no right to include you in my sacrifice, if sacrifice there be," said he with grave courtesy, and referred no more to the matter, but as soon as he could leave her he sought his sister, and requested that the honor of standing with Miss Annan might be conferred on Mr. Marshall, and himself allowed to take Mr. Marshall's partner, she being a little girl on whose pluck and good nature he could alike rely. His sister had no time to enter into particulars, but made the desired change, and Mr. Wise said to Miss Annan, "I could not sacrifice Joe, Miss Emily, I could not sacrifice you, so I have sacrificed myself, and am a volunteer in the noble army of martyrs."

When, however, as the bridal cortege passed through the hall, he saw Joe nudge a fellow servant with his elbow, and point out the pin, he felt repaid, though Miss Annan was holding her head very high indeed.

The next morning Little Joe came by the office: "What did de folks says 'bout yo' bres'pin, Mas, Tom?"

"Say? Why they did not know what to say, Joe. They could not take their eyes off me. That pin knocked the black out of everything there. The bridegroom couldn't hold a candle to me," said Mr. Wise; and Joe laughed aloud with delight, "Did they give you your supper?"

"Did dat, Mas' Tom; an' I tak home a snowball an' a orange to Kiah," said Little Joe.

Late on the evening of the same day Mr. Wise was about leaving his office when Little Joe's crutches sounded in the doorway, and Little Joe himself appeared, sobbing bitterly, tears streaming down his face: "Oh, Lordy, Mas' Tom! oh, Lordy!"

"What is the matter, Joe?"

"Oh, Lordy, Mas' Tom! Kiah's done dead!"

"Kiah! Is it possible? What was the matter?" asked Mr. Wise.

"Oh, Lordy! oh, Lordy!" sobbed Little Joe. "Me an' him went down to de creek, an' was playin' babtizin', an' I'd done babtized Kiah, an'—oh, Lordy! Lordy!—an' Kiah was jes' gwine to babtize me, an' he stepped out too fur, an' his legs was so short he lost his holt on me an' drownded; an' I couldn't ketch him cos I couldn't stan' up widout nothin' to hold on to. Oh, Lordy! I wish I nuvvur had ha' heerd of babtizin'! I couldn't get him out, an' I jes kep' on a-hollerin' but nobody didn't come till Kiah was done drowned."

"I am sorry for you, Joe; I wish I had been there. But, as far as Kiah is concerned, he is better off than he was before," said Mr. Wise.

"No he ain't, Mas' Tom," said Joe stoutly; "leas' ways, Kiah didn't think so hisself, cos ef he had a-wanted to die he could ha' done it long an' merry ago. I don't b'leeve in no soch fool-talk as dead folks bein' better off dan they was befo'."

Tom was silent, and Little Joe went on with renewed tears: "I come up to ax you to gimme a clean shirt an' a par o' draw's to put on Kiah. You needn't gimme no socks, cos he ain't got no feet. Oh, Lordy! oh, Lordy!" sobbed Little Joe: "ef me an' Kiah had jes' had feet like some folks, Kiah wouldn't ha' been drowned!"

"Take this up to the house," said Mr. Wise, handing him a note, "and Miss Mollie will give you whatever you want."

"Thanky, sir," said Joe. "I know you ain't got no coffin handy, but you can gimme de money, an' I can git one. I don't reckon it will take much, cos Biah wan't big."

Then Mr. Wise wrote a note for the undertaker, and directed Joe what to do with it.

The next day was cold and dark and misty, and the paupers' hearse that conveyed Kiah to the gravehard was driven so fast that poor little Joe, the only mourner, could hardly keep up as he hopped along behind it on his crutches.

The blast grew keener and the mist heavier, and before Kiah was buried out of sight the rain was falling in torrents that drenched the poor little cripple sobbing beside the grave, and the driver of the hearse, a good-hearted Irishman, said to him, "In wid ye, or get up here by me an' ye're a mind to. I'll take ye back."

But Joe shook his head, and prepared to hop back as he had hopped out. "Thank, sir," said he, "but I'd ruther walk. I feels like I would be gittin' a ride out o' Kiah's funeral."

The wind blew open his buttonless shirt and the rain beat heavily on his loyal little breast, but he struggled against the storm, and paused only once on his way home. That was beside the goods box that he and Kiah had had for a stall. Now it was drenched with rain and the sides bespattered with mud, and the newspaper that had served for a cloth had blown over one corner, and was soaked and torn, but clung to its old companion, though the wind tried to tear it away and the rain to beat it down. Little Joe stood a minute beside it, and cried harder than ever.

For several days Little Joe drooped and shivered and refused to eat, and at length he grew ill and sent for Mr. Wise, but Mr. Wise was out of town, and did not return for a week; and though, when he got home, the first thing he did was to visit Little Joe, he came too late, for Joe would never again rise from the straw pallet on which he lay, nor use the crutches that now stood idle in the corner.

His eyes brightened and he smiled faintly as Tom entered like a breath of fresh air—so strong and fresh and vigorous that it made one feel better only to be near him.

"Why, Joe! how is this?"

The little cripple paused to gather up his strength; then he said, "Busted again, Mas' Tom, and yon can't nuvvur sot me up no mo'."

"Oh, stuff! Dr. North can if I can't. Why didn't you send for him when you found I was away?"

"I dunno, sir; I nuvvur thought 'bout it."

Turning to the woman with whom Joe lived: "And why the d——l didn't you do it?" said Tom angrily.

"I didn't know Joe was so sick," said she, "Tain't no use sen'in' for no doctor now I jes' been tellin' Joe he better not put off makin' peace wid de Lord."

"I don't reckon de Lord is mad wid me, Nancy. What is I done to Him? I didn't use to cuss, an' I didn't play marbles on Sunday, cos I couldn't play em' no time, like de boys dat had feet."

"Ef you don't take keer you'll be too late, like Kiah. I ain't a-sayin' where Kiah is now—tain't for me to jedge," said Nancy—"but you better be a-tryin' to open the gate o' Paradise."

Piping the words out slowly and painfully, Joe replied: "I don't b'leeve I keer 'bout goin' 'less Kiah can git in too; but I 'spec' he's dar, cos I don't see what de good Lord could ha' had agin him. He oughtn't to thought hard o' nothin' Kiah done, cos he warn't nuvver nothin' but a free nigger, an' didn't have no ole mas' to pattern by. Maybe He'll let us bofe in. I know Kiah's waitin' for me somewhar, but I dunno what to say to Him. You ax Him, Mas' Tom."

He spoke more feebly, and his eyes were getting dull, but the old instinct of servitude remained, and he added, "Ain't you got nothin' to sprread on de flo', Nancy, so Mas' Tom won't git his knees dirty?"

Immediately and reverently Tom knelt on the clay floor, and, as nearly as he remembered it, he repeated the Lord's Prayer.

"Thanky, Mas' Tom," said Little Joe feebly. "What was dat—ole mis'—used to—sing? 'O Lam o'—God—I come—I'" The words ceased, and the eyes remained half closed, the pupils fixed.

Little Joe was dead.

—The singular statement appears in the St. Louis Globe that "General Sheridan won't marry because he don't want to give up the privilege of going to bed with his boots on." The amount of useful information lying around a Western newspaper office makes circulating libraries a superfluity.

—"What," exclaimed Mrs. Jones, when her son John asked permission to join a club, "what, you become a club man! No, John, emphatically no; I've sat up too many nights for your father, and now that he is bedridden, I am having some rest!"

The Effects of Dosing.

Many persons who are wanting in natural vigor endeavor to supply the deficiency by constantly dosing themselves with drugs (often of a very pernicious nature), which they are credulous enough to mistake for invigorants. There can be no doubt that many lives are shortened in this way. All that such persons require is a pure vegetable tonic, which, like Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, also possesses the regulating properties necessary to rectify those organic disturbances which are but the result of weakness. The feeble and the nervous cannot be too earnestly advised to abandon the dangerous practice of swallowing mineral tonics, sedatives and vegetable alkaloids, which disorder the stomach and produce the most hurtful reactions, and to substitute in their place this standard strengthening cordial and corrective of the numerous disorders proceeding from debility of the nervous system, as well as of the stomach, liver and bowels.

Important Medical Correspondence.

If all who are now suffering from Coughs and Colds and other throat and lung diseases, could read the letters continually received from all parts of the country, giving the details of cases similar to their own that have been cured by HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR, the demand for that life-saving specific, vast as it is, would be doubled. It never fails. No cough can resist its tranquilizing influence. It strengthens weak lungs and prevents the possibility of tubercular consumption.

Local Matters.

The "Great Democratic" Fizzle.

Of all the "fizzles" that Portsmouth democrats ever found themselves engaged in, that of Wednesday night was worst. It had been given out at home and spread abroad that the affair was to be the greatest on record hereabouts. Gaston was promised, but chose to remain over the line; Banks couldn't be persuaded that Portsmouth liquors tasted better than those of Boston and vicinity, and was conspicuous for his absence; Thompson, who was promised as a sort of natural curiosity as the man who beat Butler, was non est; Weston couldn't leave Manchester to aid the fortunes of the first district democracy; and even Tarbox failed as completely as did his opponent Ayer, to put in appearance on this eminently proper occasion. Busy preparations had been made for several days; some $1350 had been subscribed; painters were engaged for many hours on several scores of transparencies—and there was much promise of success. The wind interfered somewhat with bon-fires and torches, but the "divisions" organized as advertised. No. 1, consisting of the unterrified of wards one, two and seven, came marching down Islington street with some thirty-nine torches, and the other "divisions" joined in. Three bands were in the procession, the Naval Band leading with countenances which showed that they were not at all proud of the company they were in. One of the other musical organizations got away with some of the most excruciating music it has ever been our pain to experience. This band was somewhere near one end of the procession; which end we were unable to distinguish, as both ends were so "near apart" that it was a labor of great imagination for the spectators to convince themselves that there was a beginning. When this band began to play on Market Square, the ladies and gentlemen who thronged the sidewalks fled in dismay down Market street, but fortunately were not pursued, as the course of the "procession" was down Daniel and through Bow streets.

The great mistake of those in charge was evidently made at the commencement, in laying out the route—and a fatal mistake it proved. The idea of a democratic procession passing rum shops at the very start! Preposterous! Numerous small boys were amazed to find the torch-bearers entreating them to "hold these torches till we come back"—and some of them haven't returned for them yet! The democratic braves straggled fearfully. A considerate General would have put them over the most decent part of the route first, leaving refreshment to follow labor. We were of the crowd who took up position on Market street to witness that "tidal wave" pour down from Church hill, and as the escort turned into Market street our chronometer indicated the fact that in just twenty-seven minutes the clock would strike nine. Came that fine Naval Band with martial tread; followed the remainder of the democratic army afoot—and that fearful band! Ned Coffin's cavalcade was the best part of the "procession." As the last hero swept by, the chronometer indicated four plus twenty minutes previous to nine. The chief marshal, the three bands, the assistant marshals, the aides, the three "divisions," and the gentlemen in drags who preferred neither to walk or go astride, had all passed in three minutes' time! Here was a revelation—and the crowds on the sidewalks sauntered off bewilderedly as if awakened from a dream. We were not satisfied with the "jubilee" quite, and betook ourself by a flank movement to Vaughan street, where as the "procession" passed the residence of the Mayor (who by the way did manage to have the gas turned on,) we counted the striplings and voters as they passed. And here was another revelation. There were just 230 afoot, about 200 boys and 30 men; 48 horsemen who rode three abreast; and nine carriages and baggage wagons. All this time with the precision of half minute guns, somebody was engaged in firing what was popularly supposed to be a salute of 100 guns—but which were so feeble that they could have been easily discounted by cannon crackers, the powder was so poor.

The "procession" went its route, being condensed on Cass street so that it did not reach from State to Middle—and the crowds went home. Nearly every rum shop and house of ill fame was lighted or decked with bunting and received their meed of applause. Shortly before ten o'clock, the weary and lonesome pilgrims who had dragged themselves over the route halted on Market Square, and listened, or thought they did, to a couple of ten minutes' speeches from Hon. John H. George and Hon. Chas. Levi Woodbury. Those who heard them say that the first made a harangue on a par with those of the halcyon days of Franklin Peirce, whose administration he thought was so "glorious and God-like." The other, we are told, was excessively silly. A show of fireworks, thrown helter-skelter, concluded the public festivities, and at a late hour of the night drunken brawlers were about the streets making night hideous with profanity and obscenity. The police worked well to preserve order, and succeeded in more than one instance in convincing the rowdies that voting the democratic ticket in September did not exempt them from arrest as law-breakers. The whole affair was a failure for the projectors and recoils heavily on the heads of those who inspired it thinking to make political capital for ambitious Congressional aspirants. No provision seems to have been made for such a "flash in the pan."

A Piece of Cool "Cheek."

We have heard a good deal in the past, from democratic sources, about the injury resulting from the introduction of partisanship into municipal affairs; and none have ever howled so loudly as the democrats concerning the need of keeping "party" out of the city government. And we always supposed until Wednesday evening that the city property belonged to the city, and not to any clique or party; but it seems we were mistaken, for on that evening the City Building was very handsomely illuminated by the democrats, as part of a partisan celebration over a partisan victory. What a precious outcry these same fellows would have raised—what fearful yells they would have given over "republican outrages" and outrageous prostitution of place to party—had the republicans done anything of the kind at any of their celebrations, when they held the city government! We infer that the City Building is regarded merely as a democratic headquarters, by that party, and that the city government is not to be regarded as the government of the whole city, but as being in the service of the democratic party only. Who gave permission for the building to be illuminated we neither know nor care; but such permission, if given by any city official, was a gross prostitution of official position in the interests of party, and the illumination itself was either an exhibition of extreme ignorance concerning what is due to common decency or a studied insult to every respectable citizen of Portsmouth. We are not ready to believe that Mayor Goodrich could have been aware of the intention to illuminate the city's property as a token of rejoicing by one portion of its owners over the other portion, as we have always considered him a gentleman and a man of too much common sense to put a useless insult upon even his political opponents for the mere purpose of irritating them, and should regret to learn that he is willing to use the position he occupies for any such ignoble purpose.

"The Colored Troops Fought Nobly."

In the democratic procession, Wednesday night, were a number of colored citizens,—rather amusing, when we remember the frantic denunciation of "niggers" and negro suffrage by the democracy in times past, and that even after the rebellion was smashed and the "black cattle" of the democratic South had been raised to the dignity of manhood by the efforts of the republicans, the democratic leaders in this city imported Rev. C. C. Burr to prove by a series of ethnological lectures that the colored man's normal condition is one of slavery, and that he is unfit for freedom and Christianity, and fearfully unfit to be trusted with a vote! Verily, the world does move, and this loving affiliation of the old negro-hating democracy with the colored men is an encouraging sign of its progress. In South Carolina, too, the democrats have actually elected a colored Congressman, showing that the southern democracy are beginning to do what for their own good they should have done at the close of the war,—recognizing the full political rights of the colored men. When this recognition becomes universal no further legislation will be needed to secure the negroes their civil rights, for political power carries civil rights with it.

Death of Ex-Mayor Adams.

Hon. Joseph B. Adams died at his residence in this city on Wednesday evening, after a lingering illness which in 1870 weakened him to such an extent that it was deemed necessary to place him in the Asylum at Concord. Mr. Adams was one of the earliest of Portsmouth citizens who took up their residence in California, going there we think in 1849. Returning several years afterward with a competency, he engaged in the auctioneer business with Capt. Geo. W. Towle. Being a republican in politics and having a host of warm personal friends, Mr. Adams was chosen an alderman from old ward Two and served with good acceptance. During the prolonged illness of Mayor Dearborn, he was acting Mayor, and in 1869 was elected Mayor by the people, receiving 965 votes to 596 for Hon. Frank Jones. He was re-elected the next year by a vote of 925 to 625, Gen. Josiah G. Hadley being the opposing candidate. Mr. Adams was for several years Sheriff of Rockingham county and was a prominent Odd Fellow.

Ha! Ha!

For several days previous to the "hullabaloo" of Wednesday night, the Times had a glaring advertisement (surmounted by a rooster) which read as follows:

"Democratic jubilee! The democrats of Portsmouth and vicinity and all opponents of Grant's Administration, will celebrate their recent splendid victories throughout the Union, by a grand torch light procession, in Portsmouth, N. H., on Wednesday evening, November 11th, 1874."

Which reminds us of the couplet: "Hans Breitman gif a barty, vere is dot barty now?"

The Concert,

This evening, by the Caroline Richings-Bernard Musical Union will be first class in every respect, the singers being richly costumed. The songs and choruses are rendered with great spirit and precision, and the entertainment combines rare art, charming pathos and homely fun. Eighteen persons comprise the company, including eight ladies. The quaint anthems and hymns they sing are familiar as household words. Reserved seats may be secured Preston's.

Laconics.

In the Circuit Court, Thursday, the jury in the liquor case of Hovey vs. Grant returned a verdict for the latter.

A large wagon crowded with exultant democrats from Rye passed down Middle street early Wednesday evening, to take part in the "grand" democratic pageant, the passengers gaily singing in chorus to the tune of "John Brown's body," though with a keen appreciation of the eternal fitness of things the last line—"As we go marching on"—was changed to "As we go rolling home." The latter contingency occurred to a great many democrats that night.

A large number of ladies organized a temperance movement at Concord, on Wednesday, the 11th. A State League was formed, of which Mrs. A. D. Smith of Hanover is president. Mrs. J. H. Kent and Mrs. B. F. Thorndike of this city are members of the executive committee.

The democrats much regret the absence of Gen. Banks from their "great moral show," Wednesday evening. It was expected he would give the republicans a terrible raking down about "salary-grab," which the democrats so strongly contemned that they elected chief-salary-grabber Banks to Congress. No doubt the exposures of a man so thoroughly posted in the salary-stealing business as democratic-Congressman-elect Banks would have told with crushing effect upon the republicans.

Two inches of snow fell in Lancaster, Thursday.

The police rendered efficient service, Wednesday night, in gathering in the torches after the democratic procession had dispersed. We don't object to this, nor to any other extra-official work the police may do, so long as they do their duty in preserving the peace; but we would suggest to the Times that one of its old-time tirades about "partisan police," etc., would be very pleasant reading just about now,—we haven't been favored with a democratic attack on the police for daring to exercise their rights as citizens, for a long while, and the Times could make an excellent article about the police neglecting the duty they are paid to perform, in order to do the "dirty work" of their party, while the streets were full of "enthused" democrats who evidently needed the watchful care of somebody.

Lieut. W. W. Rhoades, U. S. N., is ordered to the receiving ship Sabine.

One of the assistant marshals of the democratic "procession," Wednesday night, is evidently not extensively acquainted with military drill. Wishing to turn into Bow street he shouted "Round this way, boys!" and finding the "first division" too much in advance of the second, he brought them to a halt with a "Whoa!" that could be heard above the music of the Band.

A Washington telegram to the Traveller states that J. Horace Kent, Esq., has been tendered the position of Chief of the New England Division of the Secret Service Department of the United States Treasury. The New England Division includes the States of Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Vermont, Rhode Island and Connecticut, with headquarters at Boston.

A Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,
—THE—
Art Journal of America,

ISSUED MONTHLY.

"A magnificent conception, magnificently carried out."

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there is the chromo.

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in no narrow sense. True art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate only on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign art.

The artistic illustration of American scenery, original with THE ALDINE, is an important feature, and its monthly issue places it in a position to appropriate to it a satisfactory treatment of details than can be afforded by any inferior page. The judicious intermixture of landscape, marine, figure, and animal subjects, sustain an unabated interest, impossible where the scope of the work confines the artist to one class of subjects, or a single style of execution. THE ALDINE is a light and graceful accompaniment, worthy of the artistic features, with only such technical disquisitions as do not interfere with the popular interest of the work.

PREMIUM FOR 1875.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in oil colors, of the same noble dog whose picture in a former issue attracted so much attention.

"Man's Faithful Friend"

Will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves such a dog, and the portrait is executed so true to the life, that it reveals the veritable presence of the animal itself. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage tells us that his own Newfoundland dog (the finest in Brooklyn) barks at it! Although so natural, no one who sees this chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.

THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. To every series of 100 subscribers, 100 different prizes, values at over $2,500, are distributed as soon as the series is full, and the awards of each series as made, are to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.

TERMS.

One Subscription, entitling to THE ALDINE one year, the Chromo and the Art Union,

SIX DOLLARS PER ANNUM, IN ADVANCE.

(No charge for postage.)

Specimen copies of THE ALDINE, fifty cents.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates, and subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON, President.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

Any person wishing to act permanently as a local canvasser will receive full and prompt information by applying to

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs!
No. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most intelligent attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Piano and Singing. THOS. P. MOSES, thorough and tasteful Teacher of Music from A in its alphabet to composition and arrangement, has consented not to accept a recent call to go south again, but will retain his permanent location in the grand "Old Town by the Sea" where he was born,—and renews the offer of his services as above, with unabated zeal and love for this branch of human refinement. He is no novice or humbug to beg, borrow or buy bolsters to uphold him in an art he does not fully understand in every phase of its beauty; but would respectfully point to the best of references, WORKS, and ability to discover, develope and train different talent to accomplish splendid results. His pupils are shining in private and public, here and elsewhere. His many Musical Exhibitions—such as others seldom or never present to the public—have been and will still be his solid credentials, aside from fawning favoritism where true merit is too often absent. Terms, $12 for twelve weeks (twenty-four lessons) at his Music Room, or $15 at the pupil's residence, for Piano or Scientific Vocalization, separately or together. Mr. Moses will also Tune Pianos,—a business "familiar as household words" to him,—and solicits orders. No. 13 EXCHANGE BUILDING.

NUMBER III.

WARWICK, England.

What school boy or girl who ever delighted in English novels depicting feudal times, but has read of Guy of Warwick, that redoubtable warrior of Alfred the Great's time? Not only in romance, but in English history also, for the old Saxon Earl, the founder of his house, was no myth, but a veritable personage, whose sword, often dyed in infidel blood, hewed out for himself and heirs, a prominent nitch in the temple of fame. Nor have his descendants failed to keep the old warlike reputation alive, and some have made deep impressions on the tablet of England's history.

I call to mind one who accompanied Richard of the Lion Heart to the Holy Land; another who stood staunchly by King John in all his conflicts with the barons—and still another who was lieutenant to the Black Prince at Crecx—and one who in marrying into the family, became the stoutest earl of all—Warwick, the King-Maker.

Old Guy, it will be remembered, was a very Goliath in stature, standing as is stated in the traditions of those days fully nine feet high, and wearing armor now to be seen at the Castle, the breast-plate and helmet of which weighed fifty-nine pounds, and wielding a sword, also to be seen, five feet in length and weighing twenty pounds.

The old dame who opens the lodge gate to visitors, and for a fee of sixpence exhibits relics of Guy, as well as armor indented by the bullets of Cromwell's soldiers, has a long story to tell of a great wild boar, a green dragon, and an enormous wild dun cow being slain by the giant with the very sword before us, and as proof of the tale, a massive bone is shown which we are assured was one of the ribs of the cow. As even a smile seemed to shock the old lady, I forbore expressing a doubt as to the authenticity of the relics, so taking it all in and down, bones, armor, porridge pot, and all, I passed out from the lodge into the grand approach to the Castle.

This pass is about thirty feet wide, out for a hundred yards or more, through the solid rock; the sides are beautified and adorned by overhanging shrubs and lichens, thickly interspersed with stately tree of various kinds. This winding road, by a sudden turn, at once brings the fortifications and tower of the Castle into view. On the right hand is the Guy tower, and on the left Cæsar's; the first rising to the height of 128 feet, and the last, built on the rock, out of which it seems to have grown rising in its massive and dignified beauty to the noble height of 147 feet. Cæsar's Tower is considered to be the most ancient, its construction being supposed to have been commenced at the time of the Norman Conquest, and is consequently nearly 800 years old; yet despite its venerable age holding itself aloft in all its original dignity and majesty, unchanged by time and undamaged by war.

The tower, called Guy's, is said to have been erected by the second Thomas, Lord Beauchamp, about 1310, and is a polygon of twelve sides, and machicolated, with open parapets projecting from the wall, supported by huge brackets, through the spaces between which, molten lead, heavy stones, and other dangerous missiles were thrown upon the heads of besiegers.

Both these towers are connected by massive embattled walls. A deep moat once encircled the entire walls, but it is now filled up and constitutes a pleasant walk of greensward. In the centre, the moat, or walk, is crossed by an arch, occupying the place where the ancient drawbridge formerly rested, and immediately beyond this arch is the Great Arched Gateway, with towers and battlements and some distance from this a second, still more lofty with towers and battlements commanding the one before it. One of the ancient portcullises for the defence of the entrance is still left, and is easily discernible by the visitor. Passing through the gateway, the Inner Court presents itself, and here "Warwick Castle," one of the finest, and most ancient erections of feudal times, stands forth in all its lordly majesty. The mount, or keep, which fronts the Castle, defended likewise by towers and battlements, is now covered with shrubs; the Gothic gateway is protected by an iron grating. Standing here, the warden points out the Bear Tower, underneath which, or rather from which, is one of those subterraneous passages so often found in connection with strongholds built in the disturbed period when this tower was erected; to the right of this is another tower still unfinished. The ramparts, as also the embattled walls are of great strength and thickness, having terraces for communication between the towers.

The Castle, looked at as a whole, is of the irregular castellated description of building, strong, massive, and of a most imposing and venerable appearance; and worthy to have been the abode of the King-Maker. Even the legends of the champion, Guy, lose their fabulous appearance, on a spot where all the surroundings so admirably correspond with the wonderful exploits of the age of knight-errantry. The view from the Inner Court is truly magnificent—but no description I can give would reach half the attractions on which the eye will here delight to linger.

The Great Hall has usually been the first room shown to visitors, but owing to the disastrous fire of Dec. 3, 1871, it is now closed for repairs. Such of the arms, armor, relics and paintings, however, as were saved, are arranged on the walls of several smaller rooms, and would not even now inadequately furnish a museum of themselves. Among the many curious and beautiful specimens of arms displayed, some of them very ancient indeed, I observed Andrea Ferrara rapiers, which though over three hundred years old, still preserve their finished look and exquisite temper; also English steel cross-bows, and one curious fashioned revolving gun or pistol, made two hundred years ago, and which I was assured Col. Colt came frequently to examine before he perfected the celebrated arm that bears his name. Having by this time learned the value and use of English silver, I dropped a sixpence—fully enough—into the palm of the steward, showing the party of which I was one about, with the request to be admitted into the Hall. Motioning me to remain behind a moment, he left me for the time busily looking at a painting, and attracting the attention of the ladies and gentlemen to an antique carving, returned softly to my side, saying as he turned the key in the lock of the door "we are not hallowed to show this." The old Hall must have been very grand and imposing before the fire despoiled it of so much, and in its time have been well adapted in every respect to the boundless hospitality of the feudal age. It is 62 feet long, 40 feet wide, and 35 feet high. In the restoration now going on in the Hall, the large dining-room, breakfast-room, and my Lady's boudoir, it is pleasing to know that everything is being done with a view to make all exactly as of old. From the windows in this spacious Hall, which are large and of the Gothic order, and placed in deep recesses, most beautiful prospects are obtained, more particularly from those on the southern side. A hundred feet below glides the Avon, falling gently over a moderate descent, and washing in its progress the rocks upon which the Castle is built, while a little way beyond can be seen the ruins of the ancient bridge which centuries ago spanned the river. This ruin is appropriately left, adding a pleasing variety to the view; whilst higher up again is the New Bridge, 105 feet in span and 25 feet high.

The landscape all about, as seen from the windows on this side, is very beautiful. In front, the course of the Avon being divided, a small island is formed, on which is a plantation; while to the right, at intervals, for a distance of more than two miles, the silver thread of the river, in its serpentine progress through a varied and picturesque part of the country, forms a delightful outlook. Standing at the extreme end of the Hall one can view at a glance the whole grand suit of apartments, a straight line of three hundred and twenty feet, the State Rooms on the one side, with the domestic on the other.

In a passage near the entrance to the Hall is Vandyck's noble painting of Charles I. on horseback. I think I never saw anything on canvas so real and life-like. Sir Joshua Reynolds is said to have offered $25,000 for it. The king is in mail, mounted on a gray horse, attended by his equerry bearing his helmet. Seen from a little distance the figures are perfect. The Red Drawing Room has some exquisite paintings by Rubens, Paolo Veronese, Vandyck, and one from the pencil of Raffaelle.

On the mantlepiece are two urns of Devonshire black marble, of fine form and workmanship, and between them a very beautiful and ancient sacrificial basin, and an urn of bronze. All about the room appeared, occasioned by the fire spoken of, objects of rare beauty, among the most interesting of which was a table of the curious Pietra Commessa, or mixed stone work, once the property of the ill-fated Marie Antoinette.

Passing from the Red, we enter the Cedar Drawing Room, a splendid apartment of forty-seven feet in length by twenty-five in width. The chimney-piece in this room, which is of marble and of most excellent workmanship, is said to be the only specimen of the kind in England, being of a description of stone wholly unknown here. Opposite the fireplace is a marble table inlaid with lava from Vesuvius; upon this is placed a noble marble bust from the Justiniani Minerva at Rome, between two fine Etruscan vases. In this room also are many works—models, busts, cabinets, and paintings of rare skill and immense value. It would be folly for me to attempt mention of all that can be seen here, though I cannot pass without speaking of two fine busts placed on small tables opposite the windows; one the late Earl of Warwick, by Nollekens; the other the Countess of Warwick, by Bonelli. Both are beautiful works of art. A Guido—Circe with her magic wand and enchanted cup—also claims attention; the loveliness of this painting is beyond description.

The Gilt Drawing Room, which comes next in order, will at once attract notice. On the mantel-piece I observed some elegant lava vases, and bronzes. Over the mantelpiece is a very striking portrait of Mary, Queen of Scots, and her son James I. Here also were some full length portraits of knights in complete armor by Vandyck, a full length of Ignatius Loyola, by Rubens. Loyola will be remembered as the founder of the Order of Jesuits. This painting is regarded as of almost inestimable value, and as, I believe, the finest and most commanding work in the collection. Near by is a sketch of a lady by Lely; and on each side three Vandycks, giving the impression that the old Fleming was the Earl's favorite. In this room I also saw an original portrait of Robert Dudley, Earl of Leicester, Queen Elizabeth's favorite and the rival of Essex, —a beautiful painting of a girl blowing bubbles, by Murillo. Probably the most valuable object in the room is the celebrated Gremani table, from the palace of that ancient Venetian family. It is circular, about four feet in diameter, and of surpassingly beautiful mosaic work; its value is set down at $50,000.

My letter is growing long, while yet we have seen but little of this noble castle, and nothing of the ancient tower. I wish I could take my reader leisurely through all these beautiful rooms, pointing out the glories of art that fill them as with a flood of light. We must pass on rapidly, only glancing at the rich Brussels tapestry, made in 1604, which covers the walls of the State Bed Room, pausing a moment only at the bed with gorgeous crimson velvet embroidery, given by George III. to the family; and satisfying ourselves with a look at the stiff, full length original portrait of Queen Anne, by Sir Peter Lely—on to the Countess of Warwick's boudoir. This as one would expect, is an exquisitely furnished little room, hung with pea-green satin and velvet and decorated with a dozen or more valuable paintings by Holbien, Lely, Salvator Rosa, Vandyck and impressive portraits of Luther, Anne Boleyn and others. From this room visitors have a most beautiful outlook upon the banks of the Avon, and can almost touch the branches of the lofty Cedars of Lebanon which have stood here for more than two hundred years, while the park just about us, the field, the woods, the flowers, the hills, the perfumed air, the whispering winds, all contribute to make the scene one of enchanting loveliness.

Leaving the apartments of the castle, and passing through a gateway, over where once rested the bridge crossing the moat, we come to a beautiful walk, bordered on either hand with velvety turf and lovely flowers, which soon takes us to the green house, in the centre of which stands the widely known Warwick Vase. This vase, so often and so justly admired as being a splendid specimen of the purest Grecian taste, cannot be too highly spoken of. It is formed of white marble, of circular shape, and is capable of holding 168 gallons, and evidently of such an ancient date as to make even Warwick Castle but a modern structure in comparison. The inscription on the base states that it was found at the bottom of a lake near Tivoli, by Sir William Hamilton, then ambassador at the court of Naples, from whom it was obtained by the Earl.

In closing this letter I deem it but justice to the ancient town of Warwick, to add that its beautiful Cathedral, incomparable hospital—Leicester's gift to the town—its quaint streets, and odd signs, are alike worthy of inspection with the Castle itself.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 14, 1874.

The Spring Campaign.

For years the democratic papers have been charging corruption upon republican leaders, and have given them no credit for honesty, integrity or good intentions. If they have told the truth the incomparably honest democracy has been beaten at every hand's turn for these many years by corruption and fraud. Adopting the views of the democratic papers, the "corruptionists" are now thrown, and the republican party has nothing to fetter its future action. After such exhibitions as those given by the democratic legislature last June, the gerrymander of cities, the shameless manipulation of check-lists, the selling of rum openly on Sunday, and the absurd "jubilee" performances of democratic soakers, there seems to be no stimulating motive necessary to awake republicans from their former lethargy to do battle for principle, good government and order.

While other States, careless of change, have dropped into the embrace of the democracy of to-day, New Hampshire with an experience of but a few brief months of democratic rule, is already restive. As a natural sequence of outrage and the violation of the rights of citizens, thinking men who have held aloof from active participation in politics see more clearly their duty to aid in a restoration of order and good government. The republican organization offers the only opportunity for such a return. In no State in the Union has the party a cleaner or prouder record. In no State are political issues more thoroughly understood or discussed. Living issues are all that is wanted to bring every man in the ranks once more shoulder to shoulder as in the past—and every day brings indications that the veterans of twenty-three victories are not dismayed by two defeats. The overthrow of the democratic party in this State may not be as easy of accomplishment with the enemy in possession as has been the task before, but the very circumstances of the situation show that their position is untenable against such an assault as can be and is likely to be made. The democrat in power forgets his pledges, his allies and his responsibilities. The granger, used but to be abused, is thrust aside; the liberal republican, if still remaining a tadpole, possesses but a crushed chrysalis; the third party prohibitionist, who has thought the opinions of the majority worthless compared with his own, is thrown aside as no longer useful to distract democratic opponents; and the independent finds himself an unconsidered trifle in the great mass of voters. The democrat considers when in power that he who is not for him is against him—and now is the time for the granger, the liberal republican, the prohibitionist and the independent to unite against the party in power, which has not thrown a majority of votes in this State at any election since 1854. The republicans will go into the contest with courage and determination born of convictions of duty and confidence in the right. Good nominations, an energetic canvass and the determination to wrest New Hampshire from the grasp of such buccaneers in politics as now rule the State, cannot fail to bring out a full vote and corresponding success. In such a campaign no man who stands up to his convictions can well hold aloof. If the republican party is better for its defeat of last March, it is certainly in improved condition to grapple with those in power who have not one superior principle to guide them and who have made haste to show their capacity for mischief.

The Cause Of It.

The Chicago Tribune takes occasion in its first issue under Mr. Medill's management, to show that the recent defeat of the republican party has been mainly due to what it calls "the monstrous absurdity of prohibition." It points out that encouraged by their crusade in Ohio and Indiana, the prohibitionists forced their policy on the republican party by threats of secession, while temperance democrats gave up their ultra notions on this subject for the sake of defeating their political opponents. Sumptuary clauses in the republican platform, applied not merely to strong liquor, but to beer and wines, at once alienated the support of the foreign-born and foreign-descended population, and the saloon became the centre from which radiated tremendous influence against the party in power. Massachusetts emphasized the lesson of the evils of the prohibition policy by the defeat of Mr. Talbot, democrats being used as a broom to sweep away the unpopular obstruction. The only safety for the republican party, concludes the Tribune, is to let sumptuary legislation alone. Prohibition is not and cannot be made a party principle. If it is made a law, it cannot be enforced. In Wisconsin, Iowa, Vermont, Rhode Island, Nebraska, wherever the republican party has ignored and refused to have anything to do with this folly, it has retained its power. To persist in bolstering up this mischievous and insane movement any longer is simply suicidal. Prohibition must be prohibited in the republican party, if it seeks for success.

The Brookfield Murder.

The Rochester Courier says: A dozen or fifteen years ago the farm buildings of Mr. John Churchill were set on fire and burned, together with twenty head of cattle, several horses and some other stock. A man by the name of West was arrested for the crime, convicted and sentenced to State Prison for twenty years. Gov. Weston pardoned the fellow from State Prison two years ago. Miss Hanson was one of the principal witnesses against West, and her evidence helped convict him. Putting this and that together, the people of Brookfield are beginning to think that perhaps Buzzell may not be the murderer after all.

Readables.

Richmond Enquirer: "We can very well afford to observe the President's Thanksgiving Day this year. But how can the Rads keep it, since we've got all the turkey?" What do we care as long as you have all the geese, also?

Daniel L. Haskell, editor of the Boston Transcript, died Friday morning.

An analysis of the vote in Maryland shows that the democratic vote, as compared with that of 1873, for Comptroller, has decreased 11,842, and the majority has decreased 5,587. The republican vote, similarly compared, has decreased 6,225.

Treasurer Spinner's annual statement shows that receipts of the year ending June 30 shows a decrease compared to the previous year in customs, caused by the panic, of $24,985,685, and in internal revenue, occasioned by the recent changes in the law, of $11,315,529. The expenditures, exclusive of those on account of the public debt, have been decreased $1,869,652. Commendable, he says, as this retrenchment is, it is believed it will be still greater at the end of the current year.

The Massachusetts legislature will have a republican majority of seventy-two—eight in the Senate and sixty-four in the House of Representatives.

The election returns from Louisiana shows that the republican State ticket is elected. The constitutional amendment, embodying Governor Kellogg's policy regarding the State finances, is admitted, on all sides to have been carried by a large majority. Three republican Congressmen are certainly elected. The State Senate will stand twenty-six republicans to ten democrats. The vote in the House will be close. There will be a republican majority on joint ballot.

Alex. G. Cochran, of Pennsylvania, will probably be the junior member of the next House of Representatives. He is less than thirty years of age.

The Illinois Legislature stands: Senate—Republicans, 25; Democrats, 23; Independents, 3: opposition majority, 1. House—Republicans, 67; Democrats, 64; Independents, 22; opposition majority, 19; opposition majority on joint ballot, 20.

Wisconsin went against the republicans last year; but a year's experience was enough. Having discovered her mistake, she now gives a republican majority of about 6,000, elects a strong republican legislature, and the republicans hold their own in the Congressional delegation.

Providence, R. I., has chosen republican city officers. For Mayor, Doyle, republican has 3194; Snow, democratic, 372; Spencer, prohibition, 789; Clark, citizens', 381; scattering, 10. The city council is largely republican, and in favor of the present water board. The prohibition question was brought into the election, but nine of the ten aldermen are regarded as anti-prohibition.

The official returns of the election in Maryland for members of the Forty-fourth Congress show the following majorities; The First Congressional district gives Thomas, dem., 2,321 majority, including an unofficial return from Somerset county; the Second district gives Roberts, dem., 2,334 majority; the Third district gives O'Brien, dem., 4,452 majority; the Fourth district gives Swann, dem., 3,424 majority; the Fifth district gives Henkle, dem., 1,410 majority, and the Sixth district gives Walsh, dem., 77 majority, making an aggregate democratic majority in the State of 13,968.

Says editor Medill on resuming management of the Chicago Tribune: In free countries, the press, to be useful, cannot avoid being partisan in greater or less degree. If an editor undertakes the role of supporting both sides, his position is equivalent to a double affirmative, which amounts to a negative. If he habitually censures and condemns both, he is soon regarded as a common scold and a nuisance. To be entirely unpartisan leaves him in the condition of a cipher; and when a newspaper undertakes to be wholly "independent" of its party and yet discuss politics, it is on the high road to the camp of its political opponents, whether its conductor so intended at the outset or not,—unless, indeed, he takes refuge in the coward's harbor of neutrality, and abdicates his duties altogether, which is a most contemptible and despicable position.

The rout of the Carlists before Irun, in Spain, is confirmed. The Carlist attack on San Marco lasted four hours and resulted in the retreat of the Carlists, after heavy loss.

Ohio democrats say it is the paper money platforms that won the recent victories, and they declare that their Governor, William Allen, the representative democrat, must be the party's Presidential candidate.

Snow fell in New York, Friday.

J. D. White, republican, is elected to Congress in the ninth Kentucky district by 500 majority over Cockerill, democrat.

KEROSENE BURNER

Without a

CHIMNEY!

One pint of the cheapest Kerosene Oil burns eighteen hours with the new burner, and gives more blaze than one that has to have a chimney. The doing away with chimnies will be enough to make the NEW BURNER POPULAR. As it is coming cold weather, lamp chimnies will be cracking all the time. Do not waste your time cleaning chimnies and cutting your hands, but buy the new burner.

There are Two Sizes, One of Which Will Fit Any Lamp.

☞ The common house lamp burner is 50 cents. Sample sent by mail in a box on receipt of 60 cts., to any address.

Ladies and gentlemen wanted to canvass every town and city. One or more can be sold at almost every house. Send for sample. For further particulars inquire of or address

STOVES! STOVES!

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Open Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

TIN AND SHEET IRON WORK.

We are practical Tin and Sheet Iron Workers, and are prepared to do work in our line in the most substantial and workmanlike manner, and at figures as low as anybody.

City Councils.

In board of Mayor and Aldermen Thursday evening, permission was given Samuel J. Gerrish to lay a drain on Deer street.

Petition of Geo. E. Smart for sidewalk on Mt. Vernon street was laid on the table.

The committee to whom was referred the petition of John S. Treat and others for the removal of gas light, corner of Deer and Vaughan streets, reported that they had given the petitioners a hearing, and recommended that the request be granted. The report was accepted and adopted.

The committee to whom was referred the petition of Alexander Robinson for a brick sidewalk on Islington street, recommended that the petition be granted. The report of the committee was accepted and adopted.

The following resolution was offered by Alderman Hackett and was adopted:

It having been announced to this Board by the Mayor that ex-Mayor Joseph B. Adams died at his residence on the 11th instant; Resolved, That this Board express to the widow and family of the deceased their sympathy in their bereavement; and that this Board will attend the funeral of the deceased on the 14th instant.

Laconics.

The two assistant teachers of the primary and intermediate departments of the Cabot Street School, by a sad coincidence, lost each a married sister by death on the same day this week,

The next lecture in the series at the Universalist church will be given Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Subject: "Social Shams."

The railroad time tables between Boston and Bangor are to be changed, in accordance with the arrangement spoken of a few days ago. The Pullman night train will leave Bangor at 7:45 P. M. will leave at 5:30, arriving in Augusta at 9 o'clock, instead of at 11, and reaching Boston at 6 o'clock, in the morning. The return Pullman train, which now leaves Boston at 6:20 P. M. (for Maine,) will leave at midnight, arriving in Augusta at 8:15, instead of half-past two in the morning, and continuing through to Bangor. The Biddeford Times says the new time table will go into effect on the 23d inst.

What an expense the democratic managers must have been at for gingerbread, Wednesday night. In this connection we wish to deny the report that the school committee forced the primary schools to appear with torches in the procession.

The State Temperance Union held a session at Concord, Thursday. Hon. Thomas Pearson of Nashua was chosen president. Rev. John A. Goss of this city is a vice president. Dr. Gallinger, from committee on resolutions, reported a platform, which upheld the principle of prohibition, solicited pecuniary help from the churches, and suggested the propriety of every church in the State classing temperance among its benevolent enterprises, and taking an annual collection in aid of the cause. To this end the union recommended the officers of the union to issue a circular to the churches urging compliance with this suggestion.

Auction sale to-day (Saturday) of Mr. Goodall's house and land, No. 125 State street. Immediately after the sale of the real estate, the carpets in the house will be disposed of at auction. See advertisements.

Hon. Charles L. Woodbury, in his brief harangue to the glorifying democracy, Wednesday night, after referring to the recent democratic successes, said: "We have had to wait a long while for the delivery, but it is all right at last and the baby is a splendid one." To which an Irish washerwoman in the crowd instantly responded, "I wonder if anybody knows who's the father of it?" As inflation and repudiation, hard-money doctrines, opposition to and advocacy of salary grabs, free rum and prohibition, all combined to secure the defeat of the republicans, the quick-witted Irish woman's query was pertinent and suggestive.

Auctioneer Wendell will sell at noon this day, Saturday, some valuable real estate on Green street, including the stone yard, wharf, houses, shops, etc. See advertisement.

The "democratic jubilee" procession of Wednesday night showed such deep respect for His Honor Mayor Goodrich, that not a single cheer disturbed that gentleman as the "crowd" marched past his residence! What was the matter, fellers?

The father of Georgia Fowler, who committed suicide in Seabrook, made her sleep in the barn two nights before she drowned herself.

Paymaster Gulld is ordered to the Boston Navy Yard. Paymaster Clark is detached as inspector of provisions, etc., at this Yard. Paymaster Woodhull from the Boston Navy Yard is ordered to this Yard.

The funeral of the late Joseph B. Adams will take place from the North church this afternoon at two o'clock. The Odd Fellows, Masons and City Government will attend.

It took the paralyzed democracy two days to recover sufficiently from the effects of Wednesday night's prostration to remove the speakers' and band stands from Market Square.

— If you are going to Montana put a few apples in your coat-tail pockets. They will sell for forty cents apiece when you get there.

State News.

Dover rejoices in a most excellent Mayor under whose administration taxes have been reduced from $2.60 to $2.14 on $100. The cost of repairing the streets has been $5000 to $8000 less per year than heretofore. Mayor Horton is a most estimable gentlemen, courteous official and able executive.

A meeting of the legal voters of Keene was held to act upon the question of voting a gratuity of three per cent. of the valuation of the city, amounting to about $120,000, to the Manchester and Keene Railroad. The result was 884 in favor to 280 against the proposition. This has yet to go before the City Councils.

The "Paul House" in Rollinsford was totally burned last week. It was a somewhat famous edifice.

The dry house, store house and tenement belonging to Col. Hazen Bedel, and starch mills, Columbia Valley, Colebrook, were burned on Tuesday afternoon of last week, with twenty tons of stock. Loss $3000; uninsured.

Eliza McQuillan, a widow with four children, of Seabrook, attempted suicide by shooting, the ball entering just below the heart.

A few days since Mrs. Nancy Hardy of Salem died very suddenly. She had arisen and was engaged in the usual advocations of the day when she exclaimed to the family, "I believe I am dying!" and almost immediately expired.

The Monadnock Railroad has done the heaviest amount of freighting during the past month since it commenced operations. The new management is running it very successfully.

George Leavitt, an Irishman, fifty years old, a bleacher in the Namaskee mill at Manchester, was drowned while crossing the Merrimac river in a boat, at that place. He leaves a family.

The democratic convention to nominate a candidate for Governor will meet at Concord, Jan. 5th. The Congressional convention will meet at Newmarket, Jan. 8th; the Councillor convention at Dover, Jan. 12th; and the senatorial convention at Exeter, Jan. 12th.

The reported failure of Mr. John Pepper of Lake Village will probably prove only a temporary embarrassment, caused by a misunderstanding with his selling agents.

For the first time in the memory of the "oldest inhabitant," starch mills in the vicinity of Lancaster have shut down for want of sufficient water power to run.

On Thursday, Mr. Eugene W. Ober, of Nashua, a teamster, for ex-Mayor Chandler, received a kick from a horse in the pit of his stomach, rendering him insensible for some time. There were fears, at first, that he would not recover, but he is now out of danger.

The bakers in Nashua have reduced the price of bread twenty per cent.

Barque Asphodel, Perkins, of and from Boston for Valparaiso, was at Montevideo Sept 25, in distress. She was in 59 South on Aug 28, but took a fearful gale on the 30th and was driven back 250 miles, receiving much damage to hull, spars and sails, and leaking badly. Failed in an attempt to reach the Falkland Islands. During the gale started bowsprit, knightheads, and topgallant forecastle, and strained the deck badly, also sprung rudder and disarranged steering apparatus. A survey at Montevideo ordered cargo out from between decks, for further examination.

People Who Rave

Cut their wise teeth, use the SOZODONT, and all who do are willing to declare to all who don't use it, that it is the most perfect and delightful thing for the teeth they ever dipped a brush into.

The Effects of Dosing.

Many persons who are wanting in natural vigor endeavor to supply the deficiency by constantly dosing themselves with drugs (often of a very pernicious nature), which they are credulous enough to mistake for invigorants. There can be no doubt that many lives are shortened in this way. All that such persons require is a pure vegetable tonic, which, like Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, also possesses the regulating properties necessary to rectify those organic disturbances which are but the result of weakness. The feeble and the nervous cannot be too earnestly advised to abandon the dangerous practice of swallowing mineral tonics; sedatives and vegetable alkaloids, which disorder the stomach and produce the most hurtful reactions, and to substitute in their place this standard strengthening cordial and corrective of the numerous disorders proceeding from debility of the nervous system, as well as of the stomach, liver and bowels.

Important Medical Correspondence.

If all who are now suffering from Coughs and Colds and other throat and lung diseases, could read the letters continually received from all parts of the country, giving the details of cases similar to their own that have been cured by HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR, the demand for that life-saving specific, vast as it is, would be doubled. It never fails. No cough can resist its tranquilizing influence. It strengthens weak lungs and prevents the possibility of tubercular consumption.

PIKE'S TOOTH-ACHE DROPS—Cure in one minute.

Ten Thousand People.

There are more than ten thousand people in the United States who expect to be the happy possessors of the first grand prize in the Kentucky Gift Concert of $250,000. All of them but one will be disappointed. One will get it, for Gov. Bramlette, the manager at Louisville, has announced that the Concert will positively take place on November 30, 1874; that there will be no further postponement, and if our readers want to know more about it, write to him.

A Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

—THE—

Art Journal of America,

ISSUED MONTHLY.

"A magnificent conception, magnificently carried out."

The necessity of a popular medium for the representation of the productions of our great native artists, has always been recognized, and many attempts have been made to meet the want. The successive failures which so invariably followed each attempt to establish an art journal, did not prove the indifference of the people of America to the claims of high art. So soon as a proper appreciation of the want and an ability to meet it were shown, the public at once rallied with enthusiasm to its support, and the result was a great artistic and commercial triumph—THE ALDINE.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there is the chromo, besides!

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken into account in any comparison. True art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate only on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign sources.

The artistic illustration of American scenery, original with THE ALDINE, is an important feature, and its unsurpassed plates are of a size more appropriate to a satisfactory treatment of details than can be afforded by any inferior pages. The judicious intersperson of landscape, marine, figure, and animal subjects, sustain an unabated interest, impossible where the scope of the work confines the artist too closely to a single style of subject. The literature of THE ALDINE is a light and graceful accompaniment, worthy of the artistic features, while only such technical discussions as do not interfere with the popular interest of the work.

PREMIUM FOR 1875.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in oil colors, of the same noble dog whose picture in a former issue attracted so much attention.

"Man's Unselfish Friend"

Will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves such a dog, and the portrait is executed so true to the life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage tells us that his own Newfoundland dog (the finest in Brooklyn) barks at it! Although so natural, no one who sees this chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.

THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. To every series of 5000 subscribers, 100 different pieces, values at over $2,500, are distributed as soon as the series is full, and the awards of each series as made, are to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.

TERMS.

One Subscription, entitling to THE ALDINE one year, the Chromo and the Art Union,

SIX DOLLARS PER ANNUM, IN ADVANCE.

(No charge for postage.)

Specimen copies of THE ALDINE, fifty cents.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates; each for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON, President.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs!

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

ROSES, thorough and tasteful Teacher of Music, from A in its alphabet to composition and arrangement, has concluded not to accept a recent call to go South again, but will retain his permanent location in the grand "Old Town by the Sea" where he was born,—and renews the offer of his services as above, with unabated zeal and love for this branch of human refinement. He is no novice or humbug to beg, borrow or buy bolsters to uphold him in an art he does not fully understand in every phase of its beauty; but would respectfully point to the best of references, WORKS, and ability to discover, develope and train inherent talent to accomplish splendid results. His pupils are shining in private and public, here and elsewhere. His many Musical Exhibitions—such as others seldom or never present to the public—have been and will still be his solid credentials, aside from fawning favoritism where true merit is too often absent. Terms, $12 for twelve weeks (twenty-four lessons) at his Music Room, or $15 at the pupil's residence, for Piano or Scientific Vocalization, separately or together. THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN. POSTAGE FREE FOR 1875. The Country Gentleman is published WEEKLY on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.00; FOUR COPIES, $6, and an additional copy for the year free to the leader of the club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the club. The Country Gentleman possesses an unequalled corps of correspondents, regular and occasional, among the BEST FARMERS of all parts of the country, and constantly reflects the practical condition and progress of the husbandry of every section of the United States and civilized world. The Country Gentleman gives in its HORTICULTURAL DEPARTMENT a continuous variety of information and suggestions, equal or superior in the aggregate to what is obtained in the monthly numbers of most magazines devoted to Horticulture. The Country Gentleman has probably done as much as all other Journals combined, to introduce and disseminate IMPROVED STOCK of every kind through the country, and to diffuse a greater degree than any contemporary, the confidence and support of breeders and purchasers. The Country Gentleman contains unusually full and reliable MARKET REPORTS, and devotes special attention to farm and to the prospects of the crops, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and When to Sell. The Country Gentleman embraces numerous minor departments of a practical character, such as the Dairy, the Farm, Orchard, Vineyard, Garden, and so on, and weekly presents a column or two for the boys and girls, and a fair variety of Miscellaneous Reading. It contains a well edited Review of Current Events, and its advertising pages furnish a directory of all the principal agricultural and horticultural establishments of the country. ☞ SPECIMEN COPIES FREE. A Sleeping Car in Flames.

The Pullman sleeping car Georgia was burned on the Georgia railroad recently. As the train left Stone Mountain about daylight, the postmaster at the Mountain noticed smoke issuing from the sleeping car. He immediately raised the alarm and shouted at the top of his voice, but in the noise made by the train he was not heard. As the train was moving slowly off a Mr. O'Brien was awakened by a smell like that from a piece of furniture scorching. He rose up and looked outside. What was his amazement when he saw a dense smoke in the rear of the car, through which a curling jet of flame was discernible. Springing instantly from the berth he raised the alarm and jerked with all his might at the bell-rope. So powerful were his efforts in this direction that the rope broke—not until after the bell had sounded at the engine, however. Mr. O'Brien's shouts roused the sleeping-car conductor, porter and passengers, and in a few moments there was a wild scene of excitement. Mr. Roberts, who was among the first roused, remained very calm, shoving the passengers forward, and making them get into the passenger coach ahead as fast as possible. Ladies, children and men were soon all in the passenger coach, none having received any injury, but all half clad, as they had no time to put on their outer garments. Conductor Purcell rushed into the sleeping car as soon as the alarm was raised, went to Judge King's berth, raised him up in his arms and carried him into the car in front. The judge had on only his undershirt and a pair of drawers. So startling was the shock that Judge King was rendered almost unconscious for the time. Captain Purcell, after placing Judge King in the passenger car, rushed back with the intention of saving the judge's valise and clothing. But vain was the attempt. The lurid flames were licking up bed-clothing and woodwork alike, and a stifling smoke filled the entire car. Mr. Purcell was driven back by the fire and smoke. Judge King had in his valise about five thousand dollars in State of Georgia bonds in two pocket-books, and in his pants pockets were nearly one thousand dollars in money, and in his hat was a splendid gold chronometer repeating watch, made in Geneva especially to order, and presented to Judge King two years ago by his daughter and her husband, then living in England. All was lost, except the watch, which was found in the ashes afterward by the people of Stone Mountain, and returned to Judge King, but of course, in a damaged condition. The passengers saved absolutely nothing, except the scanty raiment they had on. Exclusive of Judge King's loss, that of the other passengers cannot be less than $1000. The train was stopped about the time the last passenger reached the car in front of the sleeping coach. As it was apparent that the latter could not be saved, and there was danger of its communicating the fire to the rest of the train, it was cut loose and left to its fate on the main track, about 250 yards above the station at Stone Mountain. The people of Stone Mountain, however, went to work with tubs and buckets, and by throwing water on the flames managed to save the floor of the car. The remnant of the coach was then pushed on the siding, and the main track left unobstructed. The fire was undoubtedly communicated to the car from the stove, which was in the rear of the coach. Had it been in front all of the passengers would have perished in the flames, as the wind created by the moving of the train would have driven the fire toward the rear and upon the sleeping human beings. The Georgia was a fourteen section sleeping coach. The damage to the car will amount to $10,000 or $12,000.

Kansas Church Scene.

[Coffeeville (Kansas) Courier.]

Jim Barndollar, of the Osage agency, had sent his washing to a full-blood Osage squaw, who was to have it done and bring it home on Saturday night. The squaw failed to fulfill the contract, however, and on Sunday Jim had to go to church with the same suit he wore during the week. In the meantime he had sent word to his washwoman to "bring them shirts." He had just got comfortably seated in the church, and the grave minister had opened up in thunder tones on sinners generally, when in stepped a big Osage Indian, with a package under his blanket, who began making all kinds of unintelligible signs to our friend. Jim appeared to take no notice of his presence, however, until by his audible whispers and frantic gesticulations the Indian had attracted the attention of the congregation, and fairly horrified our hero by drawing forth a shirt with a stunning clean front, several pair of socks, and other things that go to complete a fashionable young man's wardrobe. This was too much for him, and he immediately arose, and beckoning the persistent laundry clerk out, he then and there exhausted both the English and Osage vocabulary of epithets, after which he took charge of the clothes and sold the dusky warrior to go his way. Profane language is prohibited at the agency, but he said that Jim made good use of all the emphatic religious adjectives that came within his grasp.

—Dan Magoinnis played the part of a villainous Irishman so well in "Connie Soegar," at Boston Theatre, Thursday night, that a sensitive auditor, manifested his dis-approbation in the usual way, and the hissing was taken up in several parts of the house, but was quickly put down by general applause. A little later in the scene the sensitive auditor broke out again, whereupon the applause was resumed and joined in by Mr. Williams, who, with Mr. Maguinnis, stepped to the front of the stage, the latter bowing his acknowledgements. When quiet was partly restored Mr. Williams, addressing Mr. Maguinnis, said, "You do it too well." "That's what the boy said to an aching tooth," replied Dan, and the performance of the play was resumed. The sensitive auditor declares that he will make the theatre suffer for presenting on the stage such a libellous portraiture of a fellow countryman.

Daily Chronicle.

Start Right.

The initiatory steps leading to undoubted republican success in this State must be taken by the present State committee in issuing the call for a convention. It is neither necessary nor advisable for the republican organization to become a close community. The interests of a majority of the voters of the State are identical with it, and every effort should be made to combine all phases of the opposition to the present State government for an earnest contest for its overthrow. The call for a convention should be made broad and generous and the platform should ignore side issues. With the democracy in power all labor reform, and liberal republican elements are absorbed or thrown aside as useless. As a matter of course, democrats who have stood by the party during its minority now claim and receive its favors. No half-way policy enlists the doubtful voter, and the events of the unexpired year of democratic rule already foreshadow the course of all who earnestly oppose the revolutionary schemes of the party in power. A comprehensive invitation to all who are not in full sympathy with the democracy should bring to the republican organization an element which is too influential to be despised and too honest to be compelled to take independent action which can be of no avail to itself or its interests.

Readables.

To think that a democratic Cockeirll should be defeated in "Old Kaintuck!"

The legacy that the scheming tricksters of the republican Congressional convention for this district left the party on the 14th of December, 1870, now returns to annoy its inventors. It is a significant lesson and teaches politicians that is unsafe to be unjust.

We have seen the condition of affairs no more succinctly put than by Bro. Lazier of the Claremont Eagle, who closes an article on "The Republican Defeat" by saying: "If good men are not now convinced of the impropriety of attempting to secure their own and their neighbors' present and eternal welfare by political scheming and methods, they are simply incurable lunatics." We agree with the Eagle that to roll back the tide of disaster, the republican party must nominate honest, clean-handed men for office, and unload itself of every sort of side issue, "standing on the broad and solid foundation of wise statesmanship."

Russian advices report a severe drought in the Crimea.

During the retreat of the Carlists from Irun between fifty and sixty men of the Biscay battalion were frozen to death on the snow. The whole surrounding country is covered with homeless women and children, exposed to the inclemency of the weather.

General Joe Hooker continues to suffer severely from partial paralysis.

General Butler says there are two supremely happy women in Essex county—Mrs. Butler, who rejoices that her husband is to be kept out of Washington; and Mrs. Thompson, who is delighted that her husband is going to Washington.

The report that Spain has paid indemnity to England growing out of the Virginius affair is confirmed.

In seventy-seven counties of Illinois for State Treasurer the republican vote is 110,027; the democratic vote 72,549, and the farmers' 59,575.

Kerr and Cox, and Wood, and Banks, and Randall, and Knott, and Walker, are going to be the next speaker.

J. McCreary of Republican City, Nebraska, under date of November 3, says the whole Republican valley of Nebraska has been made a desert by locusts, that 30,000 people are threatened with starvation, and that a company has been formed at Omaha, called the State Aid Society, which has assumed the distribution of supplies for the destitute, but which in fact either sells the supplies sent for the starving people by forcing the latter to give notes for what they receive, or converts said supplies into the stock of the company.

We believe we neglected to mention last week that Uddersook, the murderer, had been successfully hanged at Westchester, Pa. He killed a Baltimore man for life insurance.

We find in one of our exchanges the following summing up of the places in the gift of the next House of Representatives: General clerkships, 24; library of the House, 3; document room, 8; Sergeant-at-Arms' office, 4; doorkeepers, 23; House post office 10; committee clerkships, 29; official reporters, 5; total, 106. Then there are thirteen men employed in the general library of Congress, but their appointments must be concurred in by the Senate. But, giving the House seven of these, it makes a grand total of 113. Under the last democratic administration there were 127 offices to be filled. How many applicants will there be for the 113 offices now?

Already the ambitious Warwicks of Zion in Utah have commenced figuring for the spoils of office under the coming administration of the democracy. Brigham Young's friends and relatives are booked for every important office in the Territory, and they only await the result of the elections in 1876.

It is suspected that the Plainfield, Mass., boy who shot his little brother and sister committed the act deliberately, though but eleven years old. The boy's name is George Brown and the family is colored. The parents were away from home and the story is that the boy aimed the gun at his brother, two years old, who died almost immediately after the discharge. The sister, ten years old, who was also hit, probably cannot recover. The boy told his parents that he did not know that the gun was loaded.

State News.

Rivers, the polygamist, tried at Lancaster, has had five wives, and he says he had rather go to State Prison than live with either of them.

By the bursting of an emery wheel in Woodman Brothers' machine shop at Wolfeboro', Edward Thompson had a severe gash cut in his leg by one of the flying pieces, and Addison Woodman had a very narrow escape. Fragments of the wheel penetrated the walls of the building, and one was found fifty feet distant.

A white fox has been seen in Lancaster, and the traps are all set for him.

A steam shovel is at work in Hudson and attracting much attention. A good story is told of a son of the Emerald Isle who, after watching it intently for some time, remarked, "Begorra yez kin shovel like the divil, but yez can't yez nor drink whiskey."

The Amherst Cabinet says: A case of rare presence of mind in a boy occurred at the railroad crossing near the residence of J. J. Badger at Milford. Several children were playing "hide and seek," one of the number, a little Miss of four years, Gracie Woodworth, hiding in a culvert on the track. Just as she was in position along came the 11 o'clock train. Master Eddie Jenkins, a lad of twelve, seeing the danger ran to her assistance. The engineer whistled for brakes, and the girl attempted to climb out, but the engine was so close that the boy saw there was not time and pushed her back, telling her to "Lie down close and keep still!" which injunction she obeyed so faithfully that the train passed over her, and she escaped unharmed, except by dirt and cinders.

The Concord Patriot speaks wisely to its followers, reminds them that majorities have their perils, and is fearful that "some lunatics in some Southern town," will break the law, or the democrats of the House "do the wrong thing." Just so. That's what kept the democratic party under so long.

McLaughlin, the murderer of Allen Craig was sentenced to twenty years in State prison. He pleaded guilty to manslaughter in the first degree and was sentenced for that offence. Craig was killed in a drunken debauch, in which he participated with McLaughlin and two others.

A meeting of the citizens of Hanover was held on Wednesday evening to take measures for public improvements, such as the planting of trees, the care of streets and walks, the clearing off of snow, the putting up of gas lamps, etc. It was resolved to form a citizens' association, which should carry out the contemplated objects.

Mrs. E. A. Rowe of Belmont committed suicide by hanging on Thursday forenoon. Cause, insanity.

The Missing Found.

In Friday's Boston papers appeared the announcement of the loss of Hattie May Hastings, the young daughter of H. L. Hastings, editor of the Christian. It seems that the girl left her father's office, 538 Washington street, at 3:20, Wednesday afternoon, with her instruction book in her hand, for the New England Conservatory of Music, where she was to take a lesson. Since that time nothing had been heard of until Friday evening, when her almost agonized parents received a telegram stating that Hattie was safe in the family of a Mr. Sawtelle of Athol. The discovery was made in the following manner: Detective Skelton visited the Fitchburg depot, and was told by Depot-master Dagget, that a girl answering the description of Hattie had gone on a train, Wednesday afternoon, having not quite money enough to pay her fare. Mr. Skelton then went through the cars of an outgoing train distributing the printed description of the lost girl, and had just finished, when a passenger who had read one of the bills, called to him, and said that such a girl had gone to Athol, on the previous afternoon. Mr. Hastings was immediately notified of this, and, remembering that he knew of a Mr. Sawtelle in Athol, telegraphed to him with the above result. No reason is known for the strange freak on the part of the girl which led her, after leaving the house in unusually buoyant spirits, to go to directly to the Fitchburg depot, and take the cars for a distant place. It is understood that at one time Hattie attended school in Athol, and boarded where she went; and the probably correct theory is that she entertained feelings for them which nearly divided the affections between them and her home. On finding that his daughter was missing, the first act of the father was to notify the chief of the police. Telegrams were immediately sent to New York, New Haven, Hartford, Springfield, Portland, Providence, Albany, Worcester and other cities and large towns. A number of photographs of the girl were ordered from a negative, and sent to the city police stations, and to all the railroads running out of the city. Conductors were asked to look among their passengers for a person resembling the photograph. Messages were sent to acquaintances in Lynn, Watertown and other neighboring places, whom the girl might possibly have desired to visit. Postmasters in New England towns were notified to keep a sharp look-out on strangers who deposited letters for Boston in their offices. No person could have adopted a more complete system for the recovery of a lost child than was adopted in the present instance, and Hattie will, at least, have the satisfaction of being the best advertised little girl in the United States.

Daniel Noyes Haskell.

Became editor of the Boston Transcript in 1853, and that paper, in a review of his life, pays the following tribute to his memory: He was through and through and in every fibre of his being a strong man; a man with a head and a heart to command respect and trust and to win affection, and to have these given to him in increasing measure the more intimate became the knowledge of his character and the more familiar intercourse made manifest his noble and tender qualities, especially as shown in his words and acts. He was upright and downright always and everywhere; positive often to bluntness in his desire not to be misunderstood, and his determination to say and to do what he believed to be the right thing. Mr. Haskell could not be ranked among scholarly men or men of large literary culture. From early manhood he was a reader, his bent being for historical matters. As a correspondent and lecturer he wrote with vigor and plainness, without much regard to the graces of composition; but with studious carefulness as to facts and clearness as to his thoughts. He was not a man of imagination or poetic sentiment, and never professed to be familiar with æsthetic matters. His understanding was masculine, and the sagacity, quickness and observation of his rare common sense made his critical judgments of the writings of others quite unerring and full of discriminating tact. Thus he made a wise use of whatever came to him from the hands of others. The Transcript has borne the impress of his mind in all its departments as its controlling and managing editor; and that has told the story of the diversity and sagacity of its operations, and how mentally and morally he was fitted for his profession as a journalist. For its spirit and its letter it has from the hour he took it in charge been indebted to the influence of his skillful management. Years of intimate, and in some instances confidential intercourse, have given us the privilege of knowing Mr. Haskell in all the phases of his in many ways remarkable character and in all the stages of his professional and social life. He had his faults; but they were hardly more than motes amid the steady brightness of his virtues as we recall the light of them; and those faults were untainted with any vices, neither were they accompanied by aught of ill-nature or anything to justly cause lasting bitterness or pain to any human being. But faults and virtues aside, we close with the simple expression of the belief that no one among all who were his companions or fellow-workers, in any of the relations of life—no one among the many who were the recipients of his large regards and the unstinted kindliness of his never-failing considerateness, will feel that we have at all exaggerated the solid worth of an honorable citizen, a fast friend, and a good man.

—An old French countess of the most exquisite politeness, was about to breathe her last, when she received a call from an acquaintance ignorant of her mortal illness. —At a Boston restaurant, a mechanic with his overalls took his seat at the table and called for his dinner, when the following scene occurred:

Waiter—"I will take the money for your dinner."

Gent—"I usually pay after I have eaten my dinner."

Waiter—"We must have it before."

Gent—(leisurely, with some display; turning down his overalls, and taking from his pocket a one hundred dollar note) "Can you change this?"

Waiter—"No. Have you nothing smaller?"

Gent—"Yes, plenty. Here is a twenty dollar bill, which you may change. If you had chosen to wait until I finished my dinner, I have plenty of small change with which I would have paid you, but now you can take your money out of that."

The result was that the waiter had to go out to get change for the bill, and the numerous spectators of the scene had their laugh over the new illustration of the old truth, "Don't trust in appearances."

The Effects of Dosing.

Many persons who are wanting in natural vigor endeavor to supply the deficiency by constantly dosing themselves with drugs (often of a very pernicious nature), which they are credulous enough to mistake for invigorants. There can be no doubt that many lives are shortened in this way. All that such persons require is a pure vegetable tonic, which, like Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, also possesses the regulating properties necessary to rectify those organic disturbances which are but the result of weakness. The feeble and the nervous cannot be too earnestly advised to abandon the dangerous practice of swallowing mineral tonics, sedatives and vegetable alkaloids, which disorder the stomach and produce the most hurtful reactions, and to substitute in their place this standard strengthening cordial and corrective of the numerous disorders proceeding from debility of the nervous system, as well as of the stomach, liver and bowels.

Important Medical Correspondence.

If all who are now suffering from Coughs and Colds and other throat and lung diseases, could read the letters continually received from all parts of the country, giving the details of cases similar to their own that have been cured by HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR, the demand for that life-saving specific, vast as it is, would be doubled. It never fails. No cough can resist its tranquilizing influence. It strengthens weak lungs and prevents the possibility of tubercular consumption.

The Concert

By the Richings-Bernard company, Friday evening, ranks with the finest ever given here, and we regret that an audience fourfold in number to that present did not greet the first appearance of these delightful singers. The male quartet rivals the far-famed Temple quartet of Boston in its best characteristics, and excels, we think, in richness of tone and harmony. The parts seem perfectly balanced, and during the rendering of the second selection we half imagined hearing the music of an organ. The Quaker City quartet bears the same relation to other organizations that the Russian band did to the others performing at the Peace Jubilee. Director Pierre Bernard has taught the company such precision of execution that the hearer can hardly detect anything worthy of criticism. The glees and choruses are sprightly and rendered with an energy that adds greatly to the effect. The members of the company show no pretention or assumption and during the intervals between the choruses seem so especially engrossed with their "knitting" as to appear regardless that they are entertaining an audience. The naturalness of the performance added to its enjoyability. Each lady and gentleman of the company excels in solos and there seems no opportunity of failure. Mrs. Bernard's voice has lost none of its richness and fullness and she was admirably seconded by her husband's splendid tenor. She threw off such rippling gems of music in the cadenzas of the "singing lesson" that the delight of the audience was unbounded. Mr. Bernard, too, brought down the house with "Barbara Allen" and the encore "The Little Fat Man." "Old folks at home" was plaintively sung as an encore by Mrs. Bernard, the company joining in the chorus. We were especially pleased with the rendering of "Oh! Hush thee my baby," the ringing chorus of "Clinkety Clink," the hunting song, (in which one could almost fancy hearing the hunter's horn,) the madrigal "Since First I saw your face," the grand old melody "Old folks at home," and "Excelsior." In response to an encore Mr. and Mrs. Bernard gave "Bonnie Doon" with exquisite taste. The singing of the company so charmed the audience that each listener paid the highest compliment possible by attention so earnest that not even the rustle of a garment was heard. The costumes of the company are attractive and tasteful and we think the expression we overheard from the lips of a young lady emerging from the Temple after the entertainment, to the effect that "the lady in the Quaker garb looked just too lovely for anything," would have been unanimously endorsed by all present.

Just So.

The following communication, from a working man who has spent forty years of his life at sea, gives a pretty good idea of what kind of men the mass of the republican party is composed, and how they look upon the proposition of some people to hand over the country to the democracy:

Messrs. Editors: Any unprejudiced person, who witnessed the failure of the faint attempt of the democratic party, Wednesday evening, to make their party popular, cannot fail to see that republicanism still lives and that the republican party as a power is still intact. It is true we have met with a defeat, but at the most it is only a rebuke, and can be easily remedied if we only put the good, honest men of the country into office, and discard certain unprincipled men who have brought shame and disgrace on the party, which it is not at all too late yet to do. The republican party is the party of the present as well as of the past, and it remains for the republicans to say if it shall be the party of the future,—or shall they throw their chances away by ill-advised legislation, and tamely submit to the old time democracy, which cannot adapt itself to the new issues now involved? The question for every thinking mind is, "Have we anything to expect from the past record of that party which would now thrust itself into power?" Tant there have been mistakes and abuses we will not attempt to deny, but whether they are past remedying or not is for the republican party to say.

Cannot that party which brought our country safe through all the issues of the great struggle in which we were lately involved, be trusted still? Let every honest, thinking man pause and consider before he renders a verdict which he will almost certainly be ashamed of in after years, and the evil results of which even his children may feel. SINBAD.

Rockingham County Conveyances.

List of conveyances in Portsmouth for the week ending Nov. 14, 1874, as per Rockingham Records:

Henry S. Hartshorn to Albert Shedd, land and buildings on Sagamore Road for $2800.

Uriah Blaisdell to Portsmouth & Dover R. R. for $50.

Benjamin F. Webster to George E. Stackpole, land on Miller avenue for $600.

Circuit Court.

The jury in a bastardy case brought against John Howard of Hampton Falls disagreed.

Mrs. J. A. Vondy recovered damages of Jackson & Co., Friday, for an amount sent by express to Boston which defendants claimed was delivered.

On Saturday, Mr. Charles W. Roberts of Portsmouth was divorced from Annie G. Roberts.

Court adjourned Saturday.

Laconics.

The Boston and Springfield papers are troubling their readers by a discussion of the power of Miss DeMontford, the mesmerist, the Springfield Union charging the lady with collusion with her subjects and an attempt to deceive the public. Miss DeMontford was very successful with her subjects while in Portsmouth, most of them being well known residents, though youthful. Our "devil" affirms that he knew nothing of his own performances while under her control, and is willing to take oath on any lightning rod that may be produced, and own nothing but red-hot coppers hereafter, if any one will prove his statements false. Miss DeMontford certainly made him do something in three minutes, which is more than the present proprietors of his services can accomplish in thirty, unless a brass band is procured to coax him along. We believe in Miss DeMontford.

Mr. Henry C. Walker was a passenger in a sleeping car from Albany one night last week, in which a fellow passenger was found dead next morning.

Diphtheria is prevalent in this city, one physician reporting twenty cases.

Nothing neater is needed than the way in which the Times of Thursday got over the democratic fizzle of the evening previous. After praising the illuminations and transparencies it explains why there wasn't a larger crowd of larger torch-bearers, as follows: "As the wind extinguished the lights in transparency after transparency and the men began to get chilled through, many passed their torches to Young America and stepping from the ranks stood in knots where they were protected from the wind, discussing the change in the aspect of political affairs and congratulating one another over the prospect of better times." Oh!

A report has reached the Concord Patriot that "the greatest enthusiasm prevailed" at the democratic "jubilee" here, and "the demonstration was a success in every particular."

Thanksgiving is coming apace. Bring on your advertisements.

The Atlanta News says that the Belle Boyd who is lecturing is not Belle Boyd, but an impostor, fifteen years older than the original lady. We should say so. Belle Boyd married Mr. Samuel Harding, a Portsmouth boy now attached to Wilkes' Spirit of the Times. Her daughter, fifteen years old, survives.

U. S. S. Ticonderoga came up to the navy yard, Saturday.

"The Historial and Genealogical Register" for October-December, has a striking likeness of the late Col. Joshua W. Peirce of this city, with a memoir by Rev. Thomas F. Davies. Besides the usual contents, there is an article on the Tax-payers of Hampton Falls in 1709, by Benj. F. Brown of Seabrook, a continued article by C. W. Tuttle on Captain Francis Champernowne, a continued article on the ministerial records of Greenland, by Hon. Wm. P. Haines, a list of portraits of New Hampshire Governors, Judges, Senators, etc., by Hon. Benj. F. Prescott, and another of Col. Albert H. Hoyt's admirable Pepperrell papers with sketches of Lt.-Gen. St. Clair and Admiral Knowles. The book is replete with articles of interest to Maine and New Hampshire readers.

Mr. Valentine Doane, Jr., of this city, has purchased the schooner of 165 tons recently launched from the ship yard of Adams & Story at Essex, Mass.

We invite attention to the card of Geo. A. Prince & Co., of Buffalo, N. Y., manufacturers of Organs and Melodeons. This is the oldest house in the country in its line, and their instruments rank among the very best.

Mrs. Helen C. Knight of this city is one of the executive committee of the ladies' Temperance Union.

Ex-Alderman Henry L. Garrett was the purchaser of the stone yard, wharf buildings and other real estate on Green street sold on Saturday at auction by Col. Wendell.

The policemen were especially energetic in closing the rum shops, Sunday. Our expose had the desired effect.

The low price of lumber has given a marked stimulus to the building business. Eight new houses are under way within a space of a few hundred yards, on the land opened up to the public by Hon. Frank W. Miller and B. F. Webster, Esq., near Lincoln Hill. Men who, as truant boys, used to hide away in the swampy wilderness of "Packer's pasture," may well be astonished at the appearance the neighborhood now presents, and at the rapidity with which neat and comfortable houses have sprung up. One reason for the rapid growth of that part of the city undoubtedly is that the breweries have ruined the Creek district as a place of residence for people who can get anywhere else to live, and Christian Shore being distant from the centre of business, the only direction in which the city can well grow is toward the southwest. Mr. Miller, by his enterprise, foresight, indomitable energy and liberal expenditure, has probably added as much to the real prosperity and taxable property of the city as any one man ever did. One such citizen does more to promote the general good than a thousand whiners about hard times, who love to wait for the happy day when they shall "buy two cents' worth of snuff, in a gold snuff-box—for a cent," and to wail and blame others because it doesn't come.

Colonel Arthur M. Eastman states that the impression conveyed in the cable news of the 11th is incorrect in so far as it may lead to any supposition that the Direct Cable Company made any proposition to the British government to purchase Atlantic cables. He says: "The suggestion that the British, United States and Canada governments should combine to purchase Atlantic cables came from parties interested in the Anglo-American Cable Company, who, perceiving that the days of their monopoly are drawing to a close, are anxious to sell their cables to the above-named governments at a higher price than they are likely to fetch when an active competition is established."

The funeral of Hon. Jos. B. Adams on Saturday afternoon was largely attended by the several fraternities of which the deceased was a member, consisting of DeWitt Clinton Commandery of Knights Templar, St. Andrew's Lodge of Free Masons, Mt. Sinai Encampment and New Hampshire Lodge of Odd Fellows. The services at the North church were performed by the pastor, Rev. Carlos Martyn, and were brief and appropriate. The service at the cemetery by the Templars as well as that of the Odd Fellows was cut short on account of the lateness of the hour, and much of the usual ceremony was omitted. The deceased was held in high esteem by the brethren of the several orders to which he belonged.

—There was mourning among the grasshoppers of Nebraska before they quit business for the season. The great-grandfather of the tribe, having exhausted all the fresh provisions within his reach, endeavored to get a dinner off a Chicago drummer's cheek. When he had broken every front tooth in his head, the drummer caught him with a lasso, and has been exhibiting him as a winged rhinoceros. The observing reader will, of course, recognize this as a Cincinnati story.

—A jealous parrot in Paris badly tore the face of a baby, envious of the caresses bestowed upon the child by its mother.

—The dramatic talent of New York is again divided on the subject of moustaches.

Those who are sound on the currency want some sound in the currency.

—The prospect for a democratic senator in Pennsylvania looks Black.

—Negley was defeated. How was that for Negley-gents?

—J. Proctor Knott is now Knott the congressman.

A Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

—THE—

Art Journal of America,

ISSUED MONTHLY.

"A magnificent conception, magnificently carried out."

The necessity of a popular medium for the representation of the productions of our great native artists, has always been recognized, and many attempts have been made to meet this want. The almost decisive failures which so invariably followed each attempt to establish an art journal, did not prove the indifference of the people of America to the claims of high art, so soon as a proper appreciation of the want and an ability to meet it were shown, the public at once rallied with enthusiasm to its support, and the result was a great artistic and commercial triumph—THE ALDINE.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is in its unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there is the chrome, besides!

The national character of THE ALDINE must be taken in no narrow sense. True art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate only on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign sources.

PREMIUM FOR 1875.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in oil colors, of the same noble dog whose picture in a former issue attracted so much attention.

"Hero's Unselfish Friend"

Will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves such a dog, and the portrait is executed so true to the life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage tells us that his own Newfoundland dog (the finest in Brooklyn) barks at it! Although so natural, no one who sees this chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.

THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. To every copy of 1875 subscribers, 100 different pieces, valued at over $2.00, are distributed as soon as the series is call, and the awards of each series as made, are to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.

TERMS.

One Subscription, entitling to THE ALDINE one year, the Chromo and the Art Union,

SIX DOLLARS PER ANNUM, IN ADVANCE.

(No charge for postage.)

Specimen copies of THE ALDINE, fifty cents.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates, nor will subscriptions be sent to be taken to the premises directly tended to the local canvasser, neither responsible to the publisher, except in cases where the subscription is paid in advance, bearing the facsimile signature of JAMES SUTTON, President.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

Any person wishing to act permanently as a local canvasser will receive full and prompt information by applying to

BOOK AGENTS WANTED MARY CLEMMER AMES' new book "Ten Years in Georgia." It portrays the "inner life" of the South, reveals myriads of secrets, and is the most startling book of the day. It is a "whole whole 'Hom-ane soul thing." It is the richest, brightest, and best new book for agents. Sells rapidly overbearing with every revelation, humor, pathos, and power. Chicago forward: "Our Agent took 144 orders in one township; another has averaged 70 each week for 6 weeks. It sends all other books, proved by the sale of over 100,000 copies already, to the shade." It is elegantly illustrated; superbly bound. We want 1,000 more trusty agents NOW—men or women, young or old. We will send Free to those who will canvass. Reader! do you want to make money? Then send for our circulars, terms, etc. Say with us how to do it. They are free and free. Address
